Underwood Is Only Avowed Entry.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

What bids fair to be one of the most extraordinary presidential campaigns in decades is now in progress with a paucity of avowed aspirants in each party and the politicians of neither party exactly sure of their bearings.

The only declared candidate in either party is Senator Oscar Underwood (Dem., Ala.), who is preparing to do battle for the Democratic nomination with former Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo. While the latter has not announced his candidacy it is known that Thomas B. Love of Texas, one of the McAdoo managers in 1920, is organizing the McAdoo forces for 1924.

These two men loom forth as the prospective major contestants in the Democratic party, the other potential candidates being such favorite sons as Gov. Smith of New York, Gov. Silzer of New Jersey, Senator Ralston of Indiana, John W. Davis of West Virginia, Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, and Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

G. O. P. Rivalry Dramatic.

The situation in the Republican party revolves around two more or less well-known candidates, President Coolidge and Senator Hiram Johnson of California, with the other Republican politicians of importance at this writing. The rivalry existing between these two leaders is beginning to take on an exceedingly dramatic aspect.

The unknown quantity in the case of the President is his capacity for his job. He is generally deemed to have made a good start, but sufficient time has not elapsed for a fair judgment of his ability, upon which judgment rests his chance of being nominated to succeed himself.

If his message to congress in December and his subsequent record in dealing with legislative questions prove popular in his party the President will gain a position of vantage from which it will be difficult for any rival for the nomination to dislodge him. It is even conceivable that the President's popularity next winter would deter any of his prospective rivals from entering the field against him. If, however, Mr. Coolidge should disappoint the party in important respects the woods soon would be full of lightning rods.

Will Johnson Qualify?

The unknown quantity in the case of Senator Johnson is his qualification as a starter in the race for the nomination in the event he elects to start.

To qualify as a serious aspirant for the nomination of either party one must have the backing of the delegation from his own state or at least the greater part of the delegation. That President Coolidge will have the unanimous support of Massachusetts is a foregone conclusion. There is no similar certainty pertaining to Johnson and the California delegation.

Senator Johnson is now in California organizing desperately for his political life. His political foes, headed by Republican National Committeeman William H. Crocker, control the Republican organization and are in a position to influence the selection of an anti-Johnson delegation to the national convention, unless the senator succeeds in routing them before the primary on May 8.

Colonel Blows Stale.

In the famous stolen letter published a few weeks ago, Senator Johnson expressed doubt that he could carry California in view of the advantage which had been surrendered by his friends to the opposing faction. He is now stumping the state to rally Republicans to overthrow the Crocker-Chandler combine and insure the selection of a delegation to the convention which will support Johnson in the event he enters the race.

The anti-Johnson forces in California are carrying the Coolidge banner right now, among them being Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, if Johnson should lose his own delegation California would be in a position to cast Hoover forward for the nomination in event of the President failing to win in the party balloting.

Other potential candidates for the Republican nomination are Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Senator Watson of Indiana, Senator Wadsworth of New York, former Gov. Lowden of Illinois and Senator Capper of Kansas.

LOVED TEACHER GAINS HIS WISH

Death Sanctions Honor Living Man Avoided.

Prof. Malcolm McNeil—affectionately known as "Little Mac" on the campus of Lake Forest university—will have his wish.

"I'd rather you wouldn't do that," he protested when students and alumni made it known that they would present an oil portrait of him to the university. "It doesn't seem exactly right, you know, to honor a man that way before he is dead."

But the students insisted, and Dr. Herbert Moore, president of the university, added his voice to their pleas. Certainly it was all right, said Dr. Moore, if a teacher was as respected as Prof. McNeil.

"Well, if you insist," acquiesced "Little Mac." "But still I don't think it's quite proper."

A Visit Home—and Tragedy.

So the picture committee went ahead with its plans. On Oct. 27—three weeks from yesterday—their favorite's portrait was to be hung in the chapel with special ceremonies.

On Friday, after his final class was heard, "Little Mac" took the train for Galena, his native town, to spend the week-end at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas McNeil.

Early yesterday morning, a few hours after his arrival, "Little Mac" died.

"Heart failure," said the physician.

"His wish," said the sorrowing students.

Prof. McNeil was 59 years old and a Princeton graduate. For thirty-five years he had taught at Lake Forest university. Before that he had done astronomical work with the federal government survey.

Coached U. S. Officers.

During the World war he gave all his spare time to coaching army and navy officers at Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes in mathematics. More than one will directed shell on the western front owed its accuracy in part to the proficiency imparted by the drilling of "Little Mac."

Some of those same young officers whom he coached contributed to the purchase of the portrait which was to hang against his will upon the chapel wall.

POLICEMAN SHOT, FATALLY, IN ROW OVER TAXI FARE

Policeman John McCormick, 30 years old, of the Summerdale station, was shot and fatally wounded last night when another policeman, assisted by a building watchman, attempted to take his gun away from him.

McCormick, with his wife, had spent the evening with friends at 1959 Winnona avenue. They took a taxi to their home at 4907 Norwood avenue. Arriving there McCormick became enraged at the amount which John Cody, the driver, said he owed. The policeman, who, it is said, was intoxicated, drew his gun and refused to permit Cody to enter the cab.

Cody ran for help. He got Policeman Henry Foss and Lewis Stevens, watchman, who lives at 5135 North Halsted street. They went to McCormick's home and attempted to disarm him. In the scuffle Stevens shot McCormick in the head.

Stevens is held.

Bavarian Dictator Cuts Price of Beer 20 Per Cent

MUNICH, Bavaria, Oct. 6.—Dr. von Kahr, the military dictator here and head of the Bavarian "brewers' association from raising prices of beer. He has prescribed severe punishment for the raising of prices by brewers or innkeepers. He has also ordered a reduction of 20 per cent in the price of beer.

GEN. MOULTON SAVED FROM MOB

Lodged in Cell After Auto Accident.

Maj. Gen. George M. Moulton, veteran of the Spanish American war and wealthy president of the Western Life Indemnity company, was rescued from the hands of an angry crowd and lodged in a cell at the Grand Crossing police station early today. He was charged with driving a car while intoxicated.

Shortly after his arrest Gen. Moulton gave $1,000 cash bail.

Gen. Moulton, who is 72 years old, was returning to his home from the South Shore Country club. He was accompanied by Malcomb Semmes, 1210 North Dearborn street. At the intersection of South Shore drive and Coles avenue Gen. Moulton's car collided with one driven by Casimir Kouszyuski of 8120 South Shore drive.

Crowd Blocks Traffic.

Both motorists, it is said, sprang from their cars. A heated altercation followed. Witnesses to the accident seemed to think Gen. Moulton was to blame for the mishap, and when he upbraided Kouszyuski, several joined in his defense. The crowd increased until traffic on the two streets was blocked.

Some one sent in a call for police. Patrolmen McGovern and Roskosky arrived as threats of violence were being made against Gen. Moulton.

Kouszyuski signed a complaint against the general.

Precedent in Military Affairs.

Gen. Moulton has long been prominent in military and lodge affairs. He was major general of the Illinois National Guard following its reorganization during Gov. Dunne's administration. He is a member of several of the city's leading clubs.

Infant Dies of Rat's Bite; Mother Is Dangerously Ill

Boonville, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The 9 months old daughter of Basil Thomas died today from a rat's bite and the mother, who also was bitten by the rodent, is in a serious condition and may die.

AMMONIA GAS USED ON 3 SLAIN 48 HOURS AGO

Two Killed Selves, Wounds Reveal.

Western Kentucky State Penitentiary, via Paducah, Ky., Oct. 6.—[By the Associated Press.]—A storming party late today entered the mess hall fortress here, held by three convict murderers since Wednesday, when they killed three prison guards in a desperate bid for freedom—and found them dead.

Indications are that the gunmen had been dead for at least 36 hours, two of them possibly for two days and nights.

Entrance to the bullet torn two story building was effected by a detail of seven picked men after the desperadoes' stronghold had been flooded for an hour with ammonia fumes. Bodies of the convict gunmen were found on the floor of the second story of the building.

Bodies Stripped to Waist.

Monie Walters' body as found near the northwest wall, with a bullet wound through the head and horribly burned from a bursting rifle grenade.

Bodies of Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, Walters' companions in the spectacular "last stand," stripped to the waist, were partly sheltered under a table against the wall on the northwest side. Powder burned bullet wounds over the heart indicated the manner in which Griffith and Ferland died. Ferland's gun hand, stiff in death, still gripped a heavy caliber automatic pistol.

Ferland and Griffith's arms were folded as though the bodies had been arranged after death. These two of the desperate trio lost heart as hope of escape diminished and committed suicide to avoid capture or were slain by Walters, who then fell under the heavy fire from the besieging forces. Physicians said Walters apparently was the last man to die.

Ammonia for Dead Men.

Unaware, of course, that all members of the gunman trio were dead, authorities in charge of the siege of the mess hall today obtained a supply of high proof ammonia from an ice company in Paducah. Under cover of metal shields three pipe lines were laid to the building and for an hour this afternoon the fumes were forced into the desperadoes' bullet torn covert.

After a second hour had elapsed, during which besiegers waited for air currents to sweep the ammonia from the building, the storming party moved forward. Entrance was made at 4:56 o'clock and a moment later word flashed out that all the men were dead.

The barricaded mess hall was under siege of prison guards, more than half a hundred Kentucky National Guardsmen, made up of details from guard companies at Hopkinsville and Mayfield, and citizen marksmen, who volunteered their services soon after the outbreak, for eighty-one hours.

Waiters' Wife Arrested.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 6.—One of the first results of efforts by the state in investigating the manner in which the three mutineers at Eddyville state penitentiary received their revolvers and ammunition occurred here early today when Mrs. Lillian Walters, wife of Monte Walters, one of the gunmen, was taken into custody by police.

Police announced she would continue to be held here on a charge of aiding and abetting prisoners to escape.

Dailey Blames Insurance Ills on Ettelson

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—State Senator John M. Dailey of Peoria, chairman of the special senate committee which last spring investigated insurance regulation under the present administration, startled a meeting of the Illinois Insurance Agents' association last night with some new disclosures.

He placed the responsibility for existing conditions on the Lundin-Thompson-Small organization and, more specifically, on the shoulders of Samuel A. Ettelson, who recently resigned from the senate, and Thomas J. Houston, superintendent of insurance.

Supt. Houston was to have preceded Senator Dailey on the program, but was not present, and the senator commented on this in his opening remarks.

Makes Grave Charges.

"I shall not be deterred," he said, "from saying what I should say were he present.

"Three outstanding considerations prompted the appointment of the special committee to investigate insurance conditions.

"First, alleged political conditions causing insurance interests in many instances to secure the legal services of the law firm of Schuyler & Weinfeld.

"Second, the practical legislative ownership of Senator Ettelson in matters of insurance.

"Third, the almost general lack of confidence of insurance men in the administration of insurance laws by the state superintendent of insurance, Mr. Houston."

Ettelson Back in Firm.

Prior to his appointment as corporation counsel of Chicago under Thompson, Ettelson was in partnership with Daniel J. Schuyler Jr. and Charles Weinfeld, and now has returned to that connection.

"For years," continued Senator Dailey, "Senator Ettelson was chairman of the senate committee on insurance. The committee was a legislative morgue. Members of the senate, mentally and not figuratively, were kept in Stygian darkness in so far as insurance legislation and economics were concerned.

"The legislature demanded that the light be turned on. Ninety-five bills and resolutions pertaining to insurance were introduced into both branches of the assembly, many of them being prepared under the direction of and introduced at the request of the superintendent of insurance.

"These bills for the most part were unjustly restrictive and oppressive upon legitimate insurance enterprise. They were aimed alike at all classes of insurance—life, fire, casualty, stock companies, mutuals, and reciprocals.

Points to Superintendent's Duty.

"If the principles embodies in all these bills were enacted into law, every legitimate insurance business would be driven from the state. I say without reserve, in your presence, Congressman Ireland, as director of the department of trade and commerce, that it is the duty of the insurance superintendent to aid and assist the legislature in the passage of sane, sound insurance legislation in the interest of the whole people.

"I cannot feel that the course of your superintendent of insurance during the last legislature was exercised in a way to bring about this result. The legislative recommendations of our special insurance committee for soundness and fairness will bear close scrutiny. They should have been enacted into law. They were not because the senate had no confidence in the fair enforcement of their provisions by the superintendent.

Praises New Utterer.

"May I be extremely plain and personal about Mr. Ireland, who has recently been appointed director of the department of trade and commerce which has supervision of the acts of the state insurance department?

"Mr. Ireland is a man of a high order of ability and integrity. I know, and I say it to the insurance agents of the state here assembled, that he stands for the 'square deal.'

"You owe it to the people of the state, Mr. Ireland, to see that justice is accorded to these interests and that an immediate investigation be made of complaints that this department has acted unfairly and oppressively.

"The insurance men of the state expect you to do your duty honestly and courageously."

Jam Orland Postmaster Under Counter, Rob Place

Two Negroes entered the postoffice and general store at Orland, about twenty-three miles southwest of Chicago Park, at 5 o'clock last night, forced Postmaster J. P. Schneidler under a counter, and stole the title of approximately $300 in money and stamps.

As the bandits were leaving Schneidler pulled his head above the counter and one of the Negroes fired. The bullet missed.

STATE SERVES WRIT SEEKING 'PLOT' LETTERS

Wife Would Settle, Millionaire Says.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

W. E. D. Stokes, the central figure of an alleged conspiracy to declare his wife, Helen Elwood Stokes, an habitue of the Everleigh club, a rendezvous notorious in Chicago two decades ago, was the real central figure in a group before Chief Justice John J. Caverly in the Criminal court last night. He was there to give $5,000 bonds under the indictment returned against him Friday.

Close on the heels of the New York millionaire stood Mrs. Hattie Johnson, colored, formerly his housekeeper, and later, the state alleges, his co-partner in the conspiracy.

A Study in Contrasts.

Her ebony fingers fluttered nervously in the air, near the fragile, heavily veined hand of the aged hotel owner, as the two took the oath. Next to them, his hand also in the air, stood Daniel Nugent, New York counsel for Stokes, and under indictment with him. Charles M. Daley, representing the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, furnished the $5,000 bonds for all three defendants.

Attorney Frank O. Jordan, Chicago counsel for Stokes, had marshaled the trio, a millionaire hotel owner, a lawyer, and an ignited colored woman, into the hall. The innkeeper was scornfully amused, the eastern solicitor seemed superior and a bit bored.

But Hattie Johnson, resplendent in a black lace gown and an elaborate coiffure, alternated between proudly strutting to the center of this legal stage and bewildered retreasant behind the millionaire.

State Demands Letters.

In the corridor, however, there formation was thrown into confusion. Sergt. John Rush intervened himself amid the trio and served Stokes and Nugent with a subpoena duces tecum. It called for delivery to the state's attorney's office of the original correspondence between Stokes and Nugent and between Nugent and Detective Alts of Chicago.

Half way through the reading of the subpoena Attorney Nugent showed his client back into the clerk's office. Mrs. Johnson, fussing with her back hair, wedged in next to Mr. Stokes.

Nugent appealed to Judge Caverly, declaring the subpoena has been served for the purpose of delaying the Stokes divorce case, which goes to trial in New York tomorrow.

Points to Superintendent's Duty.

"If the principles embodies in all these bills were enacted into law, every legitimate insurance business would be driven from the state. I say without reserve, in your presence, Congressman Ireland, as director of the department of trade and commerce, that it is the duty of the insurance superintendent to aid and assist the legislature in the passage of sane, sound insurance legislation in the interest of the whole people.

As the bandits were leaving Schneidler pulled his head above the counter and one of the Negroes fired. The bullet missed.

Stokes Retreat at First.

Stokes and Nugent, shoved by the crowd into the hall, were served with the writ and rushed for their taxi. At the door Attorney Jordan formally presented his client to Wharton. And Wharton informally repeated his determination to prosecute the case as rigorously as if Stokes were an obscure pauper from the provinces.

Fatigued with the turmoil, Hattie Johnson seated in the cab between Nugent and her former employer, took off her hat and fussed with her hair.

Stokes peered out into the fog as even lighter like and declared he had nothing to say. Nor did he care to practice when he would have something to say. The cab door slammed and the trio of defendants, with Attorney Jordan, were off.

Hattie Plays "Peekaboo."

A group of dark figures clutched the curtain of the rear window and pulled it down as the car swung downtown. The passengers reached the Union station just too late for the 5:30 train and the cab started for the La Salle station.

Suddenly the head curtain rumbled up. Two rows of white teeth flashed a compliment grin and two strong digits again pulled down the curtain. At the La Salle station Stokes and Nugent and the colored woman promptly hidden in the car while Jordan were purchased for the 11 o'clock train.

Hattie was the only one who smiled as the cab started north up the boulevard. Every now and then she peeked out, none too roguishly, from beneath the curtains. But she'd snap it down again quickly.

Taxi Bumps Into Auto.

At Diversey boulevard and Lehman court the cab swerved so suddenly, seeking to lose itself, that it succeeded in bumping itself and another car.

Untangling itself, the cab gyrated down an alley, over a bump, and in front of a garage. Hattie's elaborate coiffure was a bit awry from the rough ride. The men formed a protecting cordon about the immaculate millionaire and the "load," looking over its shoulder, transferre itself to an enveloping limousine.

Through alleys, around squares, across circles, and zig-zag the motor sped along. Hattie, bouncing against the hotel owner and his counsel, was the rear lookout. The party stopped at the Webster hotel.

They sent for Stoke's luggage.

Stokes Gives Interview.

And Stokes, in a triple play through two attorneys and an assistant, gave out his only interview.

It was to the effect that Mrs. Stokes within the last week, before the first indictments were returned, had three times offered to settle with him and had three times been refused.

Stokes, through Nugent, further stated that between the first indictments in the case and the indictment on Friday against himself, his wife had again suggested a settlement.

"But she'll never get a cent of my money," came the word from the automobile up ahead.

Hattie, patting her puffs of hair, sat up straight, the disapproving dowager, as she saw the interchange of messages. There was no rear curtain to the sedan, so her hand fidgeted nervously with her purse which almost jostled Mr. Stokes' knee.

Nugent Promises Sensation.

Mrs. Stokes and her counsel, Charles E. Erbstein, have gone to New York to be ready for the divorce trial, according to word from the pilot car.

"But that doesn't make any difference to Mr. Stokes," declared Mr. Nugent, "There'll be some spectacular revelations at the trial."

It was nearly 11 o'clock. Stokes and Nugent were impatient to make the train. Hattie thought the parley entirely unnecessary. The limousine started away. Attorney Jordan, from the driver's seat, murmured something about "Mrs. Stokes tries her case in the newspaper, but Mr. Stokes—"

The big car sped forward. Stokes nodded a friendly salute. Nugent and Jordan waved pleasantly.

Hattie shrugged her shoulders and sat up very straight between her alleged fellow conspirators, a millionaire and an attorney. And they were gone.

SLAPS WIFE; SHE DRAWS GUN IN PLAY; HE'S SHOT

Forrest Thomas, 25 years old, 3659 West Ohio street, a fireman employed by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, was to report to work at midnight last night. Instead he is lying in the Garfield boulevard hospital with a bullet wound in his abdomen.

Agnes Thomas, his wife, is held at the Austin police station.

"Forrest was to report to work at midnight," she said. "I put an alarm clock alongside of his pillow, but when it rang he pushed it on the floor and went back to sleep. When I came home I tried to wake him and he slapped me. I went to the bureau drawer and got a revolver. I was only kidding. Forrest got up quickly and we started to struggle and the gun was discharged."

When the police arrived they found Mrs. Thomas and Evelyn, their 2 year old baby, praying over the wounded man. At the hospital Thomas pleaded to see his wife and baby.

FILIPINOS RIOT OVER ELECTION RESULT; 1 DEAD

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MANILA, Oct. 6.—There were two serious post-election disturbances in Manila yesterday, one being a clash between Democrats and Coalitionists, wherein Manuel Nieto, secretary to Manuel Quezon, was stoned and wounded, and the other the wrecking of a motor car owned by Ramon Soleto, a prominent Coalitionist, by a crowd of 3,000 Democrats, who paraded the city protesting against the election results.

The Democrats also stoned the National university, which is a Coalitionist stronghold, and a club in which Mr. Quezon and about a dozen other Coalitionists were dining.

Marcia Nordil, Coalition leader of Batan province, who was shot four times by Democrats in an election row, died last night.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR.

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and thirty-five leading universities and found to be superior to ten ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene [coal oil].

The inventor, D. F. Johnson, 829 West Lake street, Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on ten days FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Advertisement.

GERMAN RULE BY REICHSTAG PUT ON SHELF

Stresemann Asks Full Dictatorial Power.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Chancellor Stresemann today presented a new cabinet, made up of all but one member of his old government, to the reichstag with a demand for powers which have not been accorded German governments since the war. He asked the enactment of an "authorization law" which will permit legislation by the cabinet and without reference to parliament.

He proposes to rule Germany under a directorate which shall be shared by representatives of the Socialist, Democrat, Center, and People's parties, with the monarchist and Red extremists out in the cold and unable to hamper the terrific task of reconstruction.

Chancellor Stresemann outlined the impossible situation in which the government finds itself and told what measures he proposed to take under the "authorization law," once the reichstag has put itself on the shelf.

Will Attack Food Trusts.

Of first importance he placed the establishment of new money, which, he declared, must be immediately issued. Secondly, he proposes increased taxes on large properties, and, third, laws to break the food trusts and other combinations to restrain trade.

Chancellor Stresemann further plans laws to increase production to enable Germany to meet its reparations bill and legislation to compel the assistance of the workers in reconstruction. This last refers to the newly framed law setting aside the eight hour day.

Herr Stresemann declared war on both the communists and monarchists and called on the rest of Germany to unite against the forces who are sowing the seeds of strife and bloodshed. Throughout his speech the extreme right and left benches shouted, cat called, and disturbed the chancellor, but he continued steadily to outline his policies, which obviously had the approval of all the other members of the reichstag.

Shames Big Industrialists.

Chancellor Stresemann cried shame on the big industrialists for demoralizing the passive resistance by using government credits for their own interests. He answered the recent attack of the industrialists by declaring they thus far had shown only ability to tear down governments and were unwilling to share in the responsibility of snatching Germany from chaos.

He defended his policy of laying aside the passive resistance, declaring the Rhineland and Ruhr populations were unable to hold out further and that it was impossible to obtain diplomatic advantages while continuing the passive fight. He lauded the heroic resistance of the Rhineland and Ruhr peoples in contrast with the pocket filling policies of the industrialists.

He said it was utter folly to attempt to play one allied government against another. The German government must follow its own initiative. He expressed hopes that France will consent to negotiations now that the passive resistance had definitely been abandoned. The idea of the passive resistance was right, he said, but Germany was obliged to accept defeat because of the superior force and better position of the enemy.

"Can Depend on Reichswehr."

"The German government surrendered the passive resistance, but it did not surrender the sovereignty and rights of German citizens and their officials," he declared. "Ours is the land and ours is sovereignty."

Speaking of recent disturbances, especially the affair at Kustrin, he asserted the outcome had proved that the government could be certain of the loyalty of the reichswehr. He protested against attempts to mix the reichswehr with politics, declaring it must remain an absolutely unpolitical instrument for the preservation of order.

Chancellor Stresemann is determined to steer Germany through the most difficult period in history, no matter what the cost. He is prepared to put down any revolts, right or left, by extreme measures. The salvation of the coalition has made this possible, as Chancellor Stresemann will have the Socialists as well as the bourgeoisie parties behind any measures he cares to take for the preservation of the republic and the reconstruction of Germany.

With the refusal of Herr Schacht to accept the combined finance and economic portfolios, Herr Stresemann named Herr Luther as minister of finance, and Joseph Koeth, who, with the late foreign minister, Dr. Rathenau, organized Germany's war production. The Socialists retain three places instead of four as in the last cabinet.

BERLIN BACKS STINNES

DUSSELDORF, Oct. 6.—A French official today said important steps were accomplished when Hugo Stinnes and his colleagues conferred with Gen. Degoutte, commander of the French forces, yesterday. They had brought definite propositions from Chancellor Stresemann for the recumption of work in the Ruhr. As stated yesterday, Count Krupp Von Bohlen und Holbach, in jail in Dusseldorf, approved of the proposals before they were shown to Gen. Degoutte, who forwarded them to Paris.

Herr Stinnes and his colleagues were fully authorized by Chancellor Stresemann, and Gen. Degoutte by the French government, to open the negotiations which will be continued direct between Paris and Berlin.

The German railway workers in the Ruhr today resumed negotiations with the French régime concerning their return to work.

Escorted by armored cars, about 300 German police were deported from here today following the Rhineland separatist riots Sunday.

Von Kahr Denies Monarchy Plan.

MUNICH, Oct. 6.—[By the Associated Press.]—Dr. von Kahr, the Bavarian military dictator, today declared that the reports that he favored restoration of the monarchy were without foundation. He was not a separatist, he said, but, quite to the contrary, stood for the preservation of a strong state authority in the interests of the entire republic.

STOKES GIVES BONDS IN DEFAMATION PLOT CASE

British Cabinet Shaken Further by Ruhr Speech of Curzon; London Press Attacks It

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—[Tribune Radio.]—Lord Curzon's speech at the imperial conference yesterday has given impetus to the growing opposition to the Baldwin government, and its position now is weaker than ever. If parliament were in session the government would be compelled to fight for existence, and with parliament reassembling in six weeks its position is none too happy.

Lord Curzon's speech had a mixed reception by the press today. The Daily Mail and Lord Rothermere's press generally accuse Lord Curzon of trying to undo the renewal of the entente secured by Mr. Baldwin in his interview with Premier Poincare in Paris. Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express attacks the government for the announcement that it intends to stay in Cologne, ignoring Beaverbrooke's demand that Great Britain withdraw from the continent of Europe.

The Times, while supporting Lord Curzon, deplores the tone of some of the passages in his speech, while other papers generally are favorable to the policy he outlines.

"Beckett of Politics."

The weeklies continue to attack Mr. Baldwin for his lack of policy. The Nation refers to him as the "Beckett of politics," which, in the present state of English feeling about the boxing game, is about the most bitter thing that could be said.

THE TRIBUNE understands the debate Monday on foreign affairs in the imperial conference is likely to be lively. Gen. Jan Smuts is credited with planning to attack the British weakness towards France, and he will probably be supported by most of the dominion premiers, leaving Mr. Baldwin isolated.

It is practically certain that none of the debate will be published unless the dominionists win again in their fight for publicity.

STIRS UP OLD ROW

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—[Tribune Radio.]—The French government and French public opinion generally feel today as if a bucket of icy water had been poured all over the last month's enthusiasm for a revival of the entente.

Where it had been hoped that France and Great Britain could arrive at a permanent productive agreement, leading to an ultimate settlement of the reparations question, the French government now sees only another period of fruitless, exhausting arguments, animated by bad feeling on both sides.

Spokesman for Quai d'Orsay expressed keenest regrets that Lord Curzon had seen fit to phrase his speech in a way which can only arouse all the dormant hostility in France and England which had seemed to have been forgotten completely after Prime Minister Baldwin's amiable interview with Premier Poincare three weeks ago.

Object to Hostile Tone.

It is pointed out that Lord Curzon's speech contains two elements—first, a general tone and atmosphere, which according to the French view, is tactless, hostile, bad tempered and arrogant, and, second, basic ideas.

The basic ideas in this case are less important than the tone, the French say. As a matter of fact, Lord Curzon said nothing which had not been said before and the whole speech was practically a new edition of the old British note of Aug. 13, which was commonly taken as a death blow to the old entente.

However, the method Lord Curzon adopted to advance his old argument seems peculiarly disagreeable to the French. His reference to a "Ruhr victory if it is a victory" and his statement that only the British troops saved Europe from the danger of invasion by the Turks last year seem both ridiculous and unjustifiedly vainglorious to the French officials.

The French, however, base some hope on their conviction that Lord Curzon and Mr. Baldwin will not agree on all points, and that Lord Curzon will soon be forced to resign. France's answer to Lord Curzon's demand that the French must offer a plan of settlement is that Berlin must speak first. France will wait until Berlin does so.

LIFE TERM FOR MRS. WAGNER IN DYNAMITE DEATH

Paducah, Ky., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Henrietta Wagner, 60, was adjudged guilty of the murder of Rosetta Warren and her unborn child, who were blown up by dynamite here last April, and sentenced to life imprisonment in court here today.

Mrs. Emma Skillian, jointly indicted with Mrs. Wagner, as an accomplice, will not be tried until the spring term of court, Judge Price announced after Mrs. Wagner's verdict had been rendered. The convicted woman was alleged to have been jealous of Alfred Warren, 37, husband of the slain woman.

Woman Freed in Slaying Case.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 6.—A verdict of acquittal was returned by a jury late today in the case of Mrs. Lelah Crandall, who was tried on a charge of first degree murder for the slaying here on May 22 last, of W. E. Remington, former state legislator. The jury deliberated sixteen hours.

154 RAIDS MARK CONTINUANCE OF POLICE BEER WAR

"Resign or Get Fired," Is Edict to Captains.

Between 6 o'clock and midnight last night the police conducted 154 raids and arrested 431 persons charged with selling forbidden beer or booze.

Practically every "wagon" in the city was called into service to carry its quota of prisoners and confiscated liquid. In a majority of cases the captains themselves, fearful for their jobs after the execution wrought by Chief Collins' ax during the last two days, led the raiding parties personally.

One of the places raided was Bert Kelly's hitherto immune stables, 430 Rush street. Capt. Patrick Gallery led the raiders who arrested the owner and ten customers. Capt. Gallery took a wire basket used for waste paper and collected bottles of liquor from patrons. When he reached the station Capt. Gallery found he had taken fourteen pint flasks.

Raids and Arrests by Districts.

Some parts of the city were shut up so tight that the police could find nothing to do but watch and wait. Following is a summary of last night's sponge work:

Chief Sets Deadline.

Tomorrow morning is the deadline set by Chief Collins for voluntary resignations from conscience stricken police captains who have realized all too late Mayor Dever's determination to stamp out illicit beer and booze, it was said yesterday.

If, still unable to read in the ouster of five of their colleagues "the handwriting on the wall," the marked officials continue to fight for their posts, more resignations will be "accepted" in a summary general order.

"Through the Jumps."

More than half of the entire corps of lieutenants, eighty-six in all, are suspected, it was learned, of neglect or disobedience of Mayor Dever's order to dry the city and they will be ordered "through the jumps" before a medical examining board, early next week. Should any of the suspected lieutenants sift through the stiff physical examinations outlined for them, they will be asked to resign or given the alternative of defending themselves before the trial board.

Mayor Dever revoked the licenses of 129 so-called soft drink parlors discovered on Friday to be law violators. Since Sept. 20 the mayor has revoked 693 licenses.

"Rewards" to Friends at Small Trial Recalled.

As forecast for some time, Mike Courtney, gunman, beer runner and alleged jury "fixer" in the trial of Gov. Small on a charge of defrauding the state of $2,000,000 interest on public funds, now a convict in Joliet for burglary, is up for a pardon. His name appears on the official list of petitions given out by the Small board of pardons last night, to be acted on next Thursday.

Such action has been freely predicted for some time, and Courtney's friends have boasted that in view of his services in behalf of the governor in the Waukegan trial, he would be free before the end of October.

Indicted as "Fixers."

Courtney and Eddie Kaufman were indicted as "fixers" of the jury which acquitted Small. It was charged they conspired to corrupt John R. Fields, a juror.

After the trial it was charged that "Con" Shea, Michael J. Boyle and Ben Newmark knew much of the "fixing" plot, and Boyle and Newmark are now serving six months' sentences in the Lake county jail for refusal to tell the grand jury what they knew on the ground they might incriminate themselves.

"Rewarded" with Jobs.

With the announcement of the plea for pardon, it was recalled last night that numerous persons who took a "friendly interest" in the governor before and during his trial were "rewarded" in various ways, mostly with state jobs. Among these were the following, with the jobs they were given:

WILLIAM J. STRATTON, Antioch, state game warden.

WILLIAM J. SMITH, editor of Waukegan Sun, member of Illinois commerce commission.

ELMER I. GREEN, former sheriff, superintendent of state prisons.

BEN NEWMARK, assistant state fire marshal.

JUROR FIELDS, assistant game warden.

JUROR W. C. REPKOW, highway inspector.

JUROR FRANK BEARDON, highway inspector.

Several other jurors and others who took an active interest in the trial were made highway police or given other places in the state service.

LLOYD GEORGE TOLD OF LINCOLN BY "ABE'S" SON

Cheers Speed Ex-Premier on Journey to Canada.

Montreal, Oct. 6.—Lloyd George, wartime premier of Great Britain, received a tumultuous reception on his arrival in Montreal at 9:15 o'clock tonight for a visit of two days.

Accompanied by his wife and the smiling Megan, Lloyd George was greeted on the platform by Mayor Martin, Lord Shaughnessy, W. J. Roberts, president of the St. David's Welsh society, and a host of other dignitaries. The band of the Grenadier guards played Welsh airs.

The statesman was conducted through cheering crowds and between rows of mounted police to the Mount Royal hotel, where after a few minutes' rest he gave a reception to a number of citizens.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—On board the Lloyd George Special en Route to Montreal.—In every address he has delivered so far before an American audience Lloyd George, Great Britain's war premier, has held as high the image of Abraham Lincoln as that of the man, among all men in history, whose life and ideals had done most to determine his own course.

Today, while en route for Canada on his special train, the British statesman was afforded an opportunity to meet Robert T. Lincoln, son of the great emancipator.

The meeting occurred after the Lloyd George special had pulled into Manchester, Vt. Mr. Lincoln, now a septuagenarian, has been spending the summer in the vicinity of Manchester. At one time during stay here he was so ill that his life was despaired of. But he had expressed a desire to meet the man to whom the history of his father had meant so much. So he was on hand when the train reached the station.

Stand With Clasped Hands.

Mr. Lloyd George, expecting him, stepped briskly from his car. Their hands met and for fully four minutes while the train was waiting the two stood there, the animated center of a small group of interested onlookers.

Like Lloyd George, who has borne the brunt of the heavy burdens imposed by a great war, Lincoln had lived through five years of similar tragedy and overwhelming anxieties. The ex-premier of Great Britain asked his visitor what he remembered of the civil war.

"It is not much, except that I saw my father grow older and sadder as the struggle went on," he continued. "I was little more than a boy, and at the time was at school or college."

Speak of Assassination.

The assassination of Lincoln came up in the course of the conversation. Mr. Lincoln told the statesman that when first informed that his father had been shot, he was told the bullet had lodged in his father's arm, and that at the time he had lightly remarked, "O, father will get over that all right."

The British visitor stood bareheaded on the station platform while he talked with Mr. Lincoln, who wore a heavy overcoat and was muffled up to his chin. He had been warned by his physicians against exposing himself to the chill mountain air, but had insisted upon coming. Shortly before the start was made, Dame Margaret Lloyd George and Miss Megan, the former premier's daughter, emerged and joined him. Both were presented to Mr. Lincoln.

"This is Abraham Lincoln's son," said Lloyd George simply. "You two know I worship his father."

A Treasured Memory.

After the train got under way again Mr. Lloyd George received the newspaper correspondents accompanying him on his tour. He was full of his talk with Mr. Lincoln and said that the meeting would be one of the most treasured memories he would take home from his visit to the country of Abraham Lincoln.

"I am thrilled with meeting the son of Abraham Lincoln," he said. "There is no man in all the history of the world that I place higher than Lincoln."

"We compared notes," he added. "Abraham Lincoln had to endure the burdens of a civil war for something like five years. The late war lasted about that long. But Lincoln's lot was immeasurably harder than was that of the statesmen intrusted with the conduct of the world war. That was a war with foreign nations. A civil war is much more wearing. You are killing your own people. As I look at the pictures of Lincoln, I can glimpse the deepening shadows of sorrow imprinted on his wonderful face as the great struggle lengthened into years."

Talks of Irish Question.

Another outstanding incident of the British statesman's first day on tour was his meeting with ex-Gov. Martin H. Glynn, who maintained close and confidential relations with Lloyd George while he was prime minister and engaged in the settlement of the Irish question. Mr. Glynn remained on the special from New York to Albany. Here the ex-premier left the train to meet a delegation, and in response to an address of welcome delivered by Glynn, Mr. Lloyd George made a speech in which frequent reference was made to the Irish question and much of the credit for the settlement given to the former governor.

Lloyd George was informed that Gov. Smith would have been on hand to welcome him but for an unavoidable absence. The governor was filling an engagement at the agricultural celebration at Syracuse.

Great Crowd Greets Him.

The ex-premier was brought out on the platform in the midst of a milling crowd and experienced some of the rough tactics familiar to candidates who have been on whirlwind tours in campaign time. The station platform was filled with people and the street below was black with people.

Ex-Gov. Glynn in welcoming him spoke of the humanitarian laws that in the years preceding the war had been enacted as the result of the successive fights made in parliament by Lloyd George.

Mr. Glynn said that but for Lloyd George there would be no Irish Free State.

"But, we love Lloyd George for the same reason that we love Lincoln," Mr. Glynn went on. "Like Lincoln he came from humble beginnings. And in Great Britain he occupies the position that George Washington occupied in three annals of America: 'First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen.'"

Like Election Campaign.

"This is like an old fashioned election campaign—eh?" said Lloyd George after acknowledging the welcome. He beamed on the crowd and the crowd cheered lustily.

"Yesterday," he went on, "I went through the gateway of the western world and the citizens of that far famed city were good enough to extend to me a real American welcome that went straight to my heart. I feel the kinship with you who have fought for liberty and democracy. I can only say in return for the welcome that ever since I entered political life I have fought the battle of the humble people from whom I sprang.

"Ex-Gov. Glynn has made reference to what I with the aid of others was able to accomplish to end the strife between two great races which should have stood together in concord. He has not told you how before the settlement was achieved there was a talk in a rather dingy room at the house of commons. In the course of the talk ex-Gov. Glynn revealed to me views held by the Irish leaders and I told him the intentions of the British government. He brought that message to the leaders. No one can claim to have played a greater part in that settlement than ex-Gov. Glynn."

DEVER PROCLAIMS FIRE PREVENTION WEEK FOR CITY

Observance of "Fire Prevention Week" from Oct. 7 to 13 by a general cleanup of inflammable materials and rubbish was urged upon Chicago by Mayor Dever in a proclamation issued yesterday.

"Our citizens can, by the exercise of care and cooperation with our great fire department, prevent the loss of numerous lives and of much property by fires if they make a concerted effort in the examination of all premises, the disposal of rubbish, and the inspection and supply of necessary safeguards and exits," reads the proclamation.

"Therefore I, William E. Dever, mayor of the city of Chicago, respectfully appeal for the cooperation of civic organizations and the public in carrying out the purpose of Fire Prevention week and especially invite the assistance of the pulpit and the press in spreading the doctrine of carefulness."

CREDITORS TAKE ON CONTROL OF McCRAY AFFAIRS

Millions in Property Turned Over.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—Holdings of Gov. Warren T. McCray, which he values at $5,323,417, today were accepted by a creditors' committee under a trust agreement to satisfy obligations said to total $2,652,682.

Acceptance of the trust agreement, proposed a month ago by Gov. McCray, followed approval of 75 per cent of the executive's creditors of the plan. Announcement of the acceptance was made following an executive meeting of the committee of five.

Given Three Years' Grace.

Under the plan, Gov. McCray has three years in which to work his way out of debt. The governor holds his financial embarrassment to be due to deflated farm values. He is a heavy land owner.

Fifteen thousand acres of land spread over Indiana, Minnesota, Colorado, Iowa, Michigan and South Dakota will be placed into the hands of the committee, under the agreement, to be operated or liquidated to the satisfaction of the creditors. Mrs. McCray has waived her dower rights in the property, only reserving the homestead in Kentland.

Ask for Bankruptcy.

A petition was filed in federal court in Fort Wayne today by the Farmers' Trust company, the First National bank, and the Citizens' Trust company of that city asking that Gov. McCray be declared bankrupt. Attorney Noel, who has been representing the governor, declared his client was exempt from bankruptcy proceedings because his chief vocation was farming.

Mr. McCray's attention now will be centered on the Marion county grand jury investigation into certain financial transactions he is alleged to have made. The jury will resume its investigation Monday.

PINCHOT SATISFIED TO BE GOVERNOR; NOT SEEKING PRESIDENCY

Helena, Mont., Oct. 6.—At the present time Gov. Gifford Pinchot has no ambition for any other job than the one he now holds as Pennsylvania's chief executive, according to a statement made by him in a letter to Gov. Joseph M. Dixon, written after the death of President Harding.

Gov. Pinchot wrote to thank the University of Montana for naming a new building after him. In telling of the action taken, Gov. Dixon expressed the belief that sentiment has changed in the United States regarding progressive policies, and asked if Gov. Pinchot would become a candidate for the presidency.

After reciting that his time is much occupied attendant upon reorganization of the state government "in which there are upwards of 17,000 employes," most of whom have complaints, requests or favors to ask, Gov. Pinchot wrote:

"My feeling about the presidency is simply this—I have no ambition for any other job than the one I am at, and am attending strictly to my knitting here."

SIXTY ARE DEAD AFTER A PANIC IN SYNAGOGUE

RIGA, Oct. 5.—[By the United Press.]—Sixty persons were trampled to death and 100 injured today when a panic ensued in a synagogue at Kleff, after the electric lights had failed. Two thousand persons were at worship when the synagogue was thrown into darkness and a cry of "fire" was raised.

Fire Kills Fifteen at Lemberg.

LEMBERG, Oct. 6.—[Jewish Telegraphic Agency.]—Fifteen Jews were killed and twenty injured in a fire which broke out in the Jewish quarter of Zhitomir, Russia, as a result of the explosion of a quantity of ammunition which was stored in that district. The bolsheviks attributed the fire to counter revolutionists who desired to destroy the ammunition stores.

STRIKING TRACK WALKERS AGREE TO ARBITRATION

Ending a strike which has been in effect several weeks, 1,200 track laborers of the Chicago Surface Lines will return to work tomorrow morning under an arbitration agreement signed with company officials yesterday by Samuel P. Luzzo, president of the trackmen's organization. The men have asked a wage increase of 78 cents an hour over the present minimum of 54 cents an hour. The walkout started when their leaders declined to join in the mediation proceedings instituted by Mayor Dever and indorsed by the surface lines' skilled mechanics, who also seek pay boosts. Luzzo's men, however, "reconsidered."

CONSTANTINOPLE WELCOMES ARMY GONE FOUR YEARS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 6.—[By the Associated Press.]—Turkish troops reentered Constantinople this afternoon after nearly four years of banishment.

Through streets bright with flags and treading on flowers thrown by a populace almost frenzied in its rejoicing, Shukri Naili Pasha's iron brigade marched from Stamboul to Seraglio park, where the formal ceremonies occurred. The troops were veterans of the world war and the war with Greece.

JAPANESE ORDER BIG CUT IN ARMY AND NAVY BILL

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 6.—Under retrenchment orders the Japanese army and navy budgets have been cut deeply, compelling the abandonment of numerous projects. The naval budget of 292,000,000 yen [$146,000,000] has been reduced twenty per cent by the cabinet council. The 58,000,000 yen [$29,000,000] cut chiefly affects construction because of the requirement of 140,000,000 yen [$70,000,000] repairs and for the replacement of damaged yards, bases, etc.

The council holds that the national safety forbids the abandonment of the 70,000,000 yen [$35,000,000] program for the construction of auxiliary warships but owing to the decreased building capacity work on these will be slowed up.

The army estimates have been reduced 20,000,000 yen [$10,000,000]. Including a fifty per cent curtailment of work on insular fortifications, with further projects withheld. The total army budget has been limited to 702,000,000 yen [$401,000,000].

Col. John P. Irish Dies from Injuries of Accident

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 6.—Col. John P. Irish, noted California publicist and attorney, died tonight of injuries received today when he was struck by a street car. Col. Irish, a native of Iowa, was noted largely for the leadership he took among the Democrats in support of the gold standard.

Polacco, Opera Director, and Wife Return to U. S.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Giorgio Polacco, director of the Chicago Civic Opera company, returned today from Europe on the French liner France, accompanied by his wife, who is known in operatic circles as Miss Edith Mason, American soprano.

COOLIDGES SAIL DOWN POTOMAC ON MAYFLOWER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—President Coolidge, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and a party of friends had a six hours' outing today on the presidential yacht Mayflower. The party left the navy yard in the early afternoon and returned this evening after a run down the Potomac.

The guests of the President and Mrs. Coolidge were Mrs. Arthur Capper, wife of the senator from Kansas; Charles G. Washburn of Worcester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gann of Washington, and Miss Laura Skinner of New York city.

40 LASHES AND 20 YEARS DELAWARE JOLT FOR ROBBER

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 6.—James Dudley Major, escaped Kansas bank robber, was given forty lashes at Delaware's whipping post today as part punishment for holding up and robbing a citizen here last month.

The lash was applied by Warden Leach of the workhouse, following the reading of a court order. None of the blows drew blood, but Major's bared back was covered with red welts as he walked unassisted back to his cell.

Major now begins a sentence of twenty years in addition to the lashing. He also must pay a fine of $500, and is said to be liable for twenty-one years in the Kansas penitentiary for bank robberies in that state.

SPEAKER GILLETT RUMORED IN LINE FOR HARVEY JOB

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The successor to Col. George Harvey as ambassador to Great Britain may be Speaker of the House Gillett of Massachusetts, according to inside administration gossip.

It became known today that friends of the President who early pointed out the necessity to lessen the New England dominance in Washington have recommended that Speaker Gillett be offered the St. James portfolio, to remove one of the greatest problems confronting the administration.

Denial was made in administration circles that Elihu Root had been offered the British post. An authorized statement was made that the President had not yet considered a successor to either Mr. Harvey or Mr. Child.

Reports were in circulation to the effect that the post would be offered to ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Says Lady Barber Took Whiskers and Money, Too

E. D. Lumsden, en route from Deval, Okla., to Washington, was shaved by a "lady barber" at 8 West Polk street last night while his wife waited for him in the Dearborn station. Some time during the whisker elimination, he says, his wallet containing $570 disappeared. He placed charges against 18 year old Dorothy Lossman, 916 Mozart street, who handled the razor.

SHOT WHILE AT THE WOODPILE.

Verny Black, colored, 525 East 46th street, was shot last night while he is alleged to have been stealing wood.

POLICE PROHIBIT MAN-GIRL GOING ON STAGE HERE

Mayor Also Takes Steps to Prevent Appearance.

Appearance in a loop theater of Freddie Thompson, the "man-girl" recently acquitted of the murder of Richard Tesmer, was prohibited yesterday by Chief of Police Collins. The chief's order anticipated by only a few minutes the early arrival in his office of Mayor Dever and Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch, both determined to halt the exhibition.

"I shall halt this indecent spectacle, not only because it is an affront to all good citizens and an outrage to public morals," said Chief Collins, "but also because it is highly improper that Thompson should be allowed to capitalize his perverted mentality. The police will keep him off the Chicago stage."

Lay Blame on Subordinate.

Corporation Counsel Busch's inquiry at the offices of the theater syndicate advertising Thompson's appearance, disclosed, it was said, that in the absence of managing officials, a subordinate had contracted to pay the "man-girl" a huge salary for the engagement. It was indicated that even without the action of the city officials the theater managers, who will arrive in Chicago today, would have cancelled the contract of their accord.

As a safeguard, however, against a possible petition for a writ of injunction to compel Chief Collins to allow Thompson's appearance, Mr. Busch has assigned assistants to amplify the emergency opinion he rendered yesterday, holding the act to be immoral and offensive.

Mayor Dever, after he had assured himself that Chief Collins had moved to prevent the showing, said, "It is to be regretted that any audience could be found to view such a person or that any management would cater to such perverted minds."

Ministers Oppose Appearance.

While policemen were notifying the theater that Thompson's inclusion on the program would result in forcible closing of the theater, ministers attending the Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Grace M. E. church, under leadership of Bishop Thomas Nicholson deplored the notoriety afforded the "man-girl" and in a resolution commended the demand that his appearance be prevented.

BURNS OIL IN ANY STOVE.
Cheaper than Coal or Wood—Gives Twice the Heat in Half the Time.

A wonderful new burner which works in any coal or wood stove or furnace is the proud achievement of the International Heating company, 119 South 14th street, Dept. 3321, St. Louis, Mo. This remarkably simple and inexpensive invention heats stove and oven in half the time and does away with all the dirt, ashes, and drudgery of using coal or wood. It gives one of the hottest and quickest fires known, controlled by a simple valve. It can be put into any stove in a few minutes. The present high price of coal makes it a great money saver. The manufacturers offer to send this remarkable invention on thirty days' trial to any reader of this paper. They are making a special low price offer to one user in each locality to whom they can refer new customers. They also want agents. Write them today.—Adv.

STATE STREET AT MONROE

"SUSPECTS" NOW FIGURE IN WEBB MYSTERY DEATH

State Hints Murder View for First Time.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—District Attorney Arthur Rowland of Westchester county tonight made known in White Plains that there were "unquestionably suspects" in the case of Mrs. Gertie Emily Gorman Webb, who died Sept. 25 in the Westchester-Biltmore Country club at Rye.

This was the first time the prosecutor had definitely declared anybody was under suspicion in the case or had advanced the possibility that Mrs. Webb might have been murdered. His use of the word "suspects" also threw a new light on the case, only one name having been prominently mentioned hitherto.

Judge Attacks County.

Rowland's statement was the result of an interview in which former General Sessions Judge Robert S. Johnstone told reporters that those who had demanded an autopsy and grand jury inquiry felt there would not be any indictment. Judge Johnstone said:

"The political clique in Westchester is having its little fun now, realizing that these proceedings are merely the slight splutterings that precede the big fireworks. The case will settle in New York county, and it makes no difference to us how the Westchester preliminaries result."

Judge Johnstone is counsel for Dr. William J. Meyer, Mrs. Webb's physician, who refused to sign the death certificate and who demanded an autopsy.

Rowland Asks Fair Shake.

Mr. Rowland made this comment on Judge Johnstone's statement:

"It is unfortunate that Bob Johnstone has seen fit to make this attack. We all like Bob, but he ought to do what the grand jury is doing, to do justice. The grand jury is investigating both sides of this case.

"There are unquestionably suspects in this case. Both Johnstone and others who should know better are blundering woefully when they seek to force a hasty indictment of a man who has been all but openly accused of murder."

Dr. Meyer, who will be the first witness to appear before the jury, today dictated a statement in which he said that even if Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, toxicologist of the Bellevue hospital, should report that mercury had not been found in lethal quantity, the authorities had sufficient information, based upon the autopsy, to order an arrest.

Mercury Not Chief Cause, Report.

The report was said to declare that Mrs. Webb was suffering from kidney trouble, heart disease and pneumonia. The viscera were found to contain "a certain quantity of mercury," but insufficient to have caused death. Whether the quantity of mercury found contributed to the collapse was not revealed.

Eleven subpoenas were said to have been issued for the resumption of the grand jury's inquiry. Dr. Meyer, at his own request, will be a witness again so that he may have an opportunity to relate certain incidents of the sick room which he says he has recalled since his first appearance on the stand.

That Mrs. Webb feared death from kidney trouble and had declared herself a sufferer from that ailment from childhood, was the assertion made today by her butler. This declaration threw a new light on Mrs. Webb's physical condition, for relatives and friends had said that Mrs. Webb had all her life been in perfect health until she became ill last August.

LORD BIRKENHEAD IN HIGH TRIBUTE TO LLOYD GEORGE

Lord Birkenhead, former lord high chancellor of England, arrived here yesterday for a few days' sojourn. Before continuing his journey, which has already carried him 12,000 miles in this country and Canada, he will speak on the European situation at Orchestra hall, Monday, under auspices of the British Empire association.

Commenting on Lloyd George's reception at New York, Friday, Lord Birkenhead declared it was such as would warm the hearts of all Englishmen, the eggs notwithstanding.

"Lloyd George is incomparably the greatest living Britisher," was the Birkenhead tribute. "I believe that the majority of Englishmen credit the victory of the great war to his courage and initiative."

Lord Birkenhead is the guest of Judge Clarence N. Goodwin at Lake Forest.

ST. LOUIS MAN DISCOVERS NEW KIND OF HEAT.

Mr. B. M. Oliver of St. Louis has invented an amazing device which ends forever the days of woman's slavery to dirty, mussy coal and wood fires. It sets into the firebox of any kind of heater, cook stove, or furnace without any change. Just turning a valve, it gives you any degree of heat—twice the heat of coal.

Mr. Oliver calls his invention the Oliver Oil-Gas Burner, because it burns 95% air—5% oil. Almost 300,000 Oliver burners are now in use. Mr. Oliver wants every woman to have the use of his invention. Absolutely safe. Lasts a lifetime. Write for special low price introductory offer and free booklet. Specify whether interested in furnace, heater, or range burner. No obligation. Address Mr. B. M. Oliver, 2172-J Oliver Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. Live wire distributers interested in making $500 per month in spare or full time should ask for sales plan.—Adv.

It weighs 250 pounds. It will be illuminated.

ORGANIZED LABOR TO FREE ITSELF OF RADICALISM

Gompers Explains Stand of A. F. of L.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Pronouncements of the American Federation of Labor convention this year will not be tinged with Red doctrines or aims, President Samuel Gompers assured the Oregon Civic league today, following the week-end adjournment of the sessions.

Mr. Gompers has stated the sentiment of the delegates during the week, and his declaration was made in reply to an attack on the conservatives on the floor of the convention this morning by Max S. Hayes, Socialist editor of Cleveland.

Mr. Hayes objected to the summary manner in which proposals of radical minorities were being shoved aside in the convention. He warned that 1,000,000 men have left the labor movement during the last year. He thought the Red situation was being oversimplified; that the proposals, such as a farmer-labor party and amalgamation should not be sidetracked because they happen to have so-called radical support. He said the press had been unfair, that such treatment of minorities bodes ill for the federation in the future.

Gompers Answers Hayes.

Mr. Gompers had the manner of one making an apology when he appeared two hours later before a gathering of Portland's most thoughtful men and women.

"From the Hayes speech," he said, "one would think that we, too, were of that variety. The convention is a free forum; when it comes to pronouncements we will take care of that. Delegates have the right to present resolutions and they are never put to sleep in committees. If these members with peculiar notions cannot persuade the labor movement to agree with them it is not our fault.

"If we believe they are wrong, impractical, an obstacle to our movement, that they are undermining our republic, that their aim is to capture and destroy the labor movement, then we will deal with them in our own way. We stand as a rock for America. We have kept pace with the development of industry. Every demand that organized labor will make upon society will bring a greater degree of good strength and virility to our country.

Discuss Child Labor.

"The paramount duty before this convention and before labor today is the conservation of child life in America. This has been our long struggle. Others have helped, but labor has carried the burden, in spite of state legislatures and federal legislation. The Supreme court has declared the child labor act unconstitutional, not once, but twice. It is strange that a country such as ours, rich beyond dreams, filled with earnest, intelligent people, that we find our congress unable to pass a law that will meet the test of the Supreme court in this vital matter of safeguarding child life from exploitation. We are going into that movement to secure an amendment to the constitution."

Lewis Raps "One Big Union."

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mineworkers of America, spoke at the morning session of the convention. He dealt mostly on wage and working conditions of the miners and the various Red activities injected within the last two years in some miners' unions. He also stressed on the obligations of labor unions to fulfill contracts, and pointed out that the stock of the American labor movement was achieved through the adherence of contractual obligations.

"Often times we find ourselves the victims of a group of men who believe in false gods," asserted Delegate Lewis. "In 1919, in northwestern Canada, the mine workers had trouble with the one big union proponents. The methods employed there was to create a reign of strife and dicontent among the miners. They were skeptical to a degree. The entire mining district was shut down temporarily. The same applies to Nova Scotia and other parts of mining districts in Canada. In the Nova Scotia republic agents of the Third International of Moscow even defied the provincial government of Canada. But the Red menace is quickly passing and about to pass in oblivion."

The executive committee report on the child labor law which was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court in May, 1922, was submitted by the committee. The report urges the enactment of the constitutional amendment which was introduced in the senate by United States Senator McCormick [Rep., Ill.].

Radical Peril Less.

Declaring that 91 per cent of the affiliated labor unions have been cleansed of red tendencies, Matthew Woll, vice president of the federation, asserted earlier in the day that these red activities have wrecked to such a degree it will only be a matter of a few months when the entire red program will be relegated to the scrap pile.

"In any class of men or women there is bound to be a certain percentage of a fantastical nature who will adopt and preach on any movement advanced by shrewd manipulators of this kind of people," asserted Mr. Woll. "And so in this manipulators' class we find William Foster. He had a treasonable mission to fulfill in America's labor movement."

Thomas Malley, head of the Motion Picture Operators' union in Chicago, announced last night that Charles Shay, international president of the Theatrical Stage Employes' union of North America, had tendered his resignation in office "because he failed to account for $75,000 which was intrusted to him as funds of the international union's money."

Buying your first pair of glasses

If your eyes are beginning to feel the need of attention, make sure that the glasses you get are scientifically right.

You don't want "bargain" eyesight—that's certain. It is sold—but we don't sell it. Yet we do make your money go a long way.

Schulte has accomplished a remarkable achievement in producing glasses of quality and style at $7.50.

The lenses are the comfortable toric (curved for wide vision) type; the long-life, good-looking frames are in the height of style and good taste.

But, mind you, this low Schulte price includes more than the glasses. Your eyes receive a thorough professional examination in scientifically equipped test rooms; and a prescription is written for lenses especially ground for your eyes in our own shop. Schulte service is so broad in scope that lenses and frames must satisfy you before they satisfy us.

This holds true whether you select glasses costing as little as $5.00 or as much as $30.000. It's the triple foundation upon which Schulte service is built—expert examination, made-to-prescription lenses and guarantee.

Your eyes will be examined by an optometrist who has attained distinction in his profession and who believes in and sincerely adheres to the Schulte principles.

Postponement can gain you nothing and should be avoided. Why not have your eyes examined tomorrow?

R. O. P. SENATORS BACK ESSINGTON FOR GOVERNOR

Indorse Him on His Record in State Senate.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Republican senate colleagues of Thurlow G. Essington, G. O. P. candidate for governor, recommended him to the people in resolutions adopted yesterday at a luncheon for the La Salle county senator at the Brevoort hotel.

The meeting was called by Senator James J. Barbour of Rogers Park, who fought shoulder to shoulder with Essington through stormy sessions of the legislature.

Ten Senators Attend.

Called on short notice, ten senators were able to be present. As many more sent approval and pledges of support to any resolutions that might be offered. Others regretted that business and previous arrangements prevented them from joining the gathering.

Not all of the senators who indorsed Essington yesterday were with him on every measure in the legislature, but they know the character and record of their colleague and espouse his candidacy without reservations.

Glenn Offers Resolutions.

The resolutions were offered by Senator Otis F. Glenn of Jackson county, one of the five candidates who swung his strength to Essington in the harmony caucus last Tuesday.

Senators at the banquet were: Barbour [Rogers Park], MacMurray [Hyde Park], Hicks [Winnebago], Cuthbertson [Macoupin], Webster [Chicago], Joyce [Chicago], Mason [Oak Park], Ross [Forest Park], Glenn [Jackson], and Mills [Cass].

Messages of endorsement were received from Senators Buck [Warren], Turnbaugh [Carroll], Carlson [Rock Island], Searcy [Sangamon], Forrester [Christian], Duvall [St. Clair], and Dailey [Vermilion]. Senator Wright [De Kalb] did not arrive in time for the luncheon.

Senator Dailey [Peoria] one of the leaders of the old senate combine which suffered several explosions this year, sent a letter regretting his inability to be present.

The resolutions, addressed to "the people of Illinois," follow in part:

"We have served in the senate with Thurlow G. Essington, some of us for one session, some for two and others for the three sessions, covering the five years which he has served as state senator.

"We have come to know him most intimately and thoroughly through the close association our service with him has brought.

Why They Support Him.

"We know his character and his record as a public servant and we know his morals and habits in his personal affairs and private life. We recommend him to you without reserve as a candidate for governor:

"1. He is of the highest personal morals and of absolute and unquestioned honor and integrity.

"2. He has always held the welfare of the state above personal gain.

"3. He is able, energetic, a sound thinker with a well balanced mind.

"4. He has made a careful study of government and is experienced in and familiar with the principles and plans upon which our state government is based and upon which it should be administered.

"5. He is of an age that meets the crying demand throughout Illinois that some younger men and some new names be placed in our state offices.

"6. He is in vigorous health and will make a thorough, complete and intelligent campaign, bringing the great issues before our state home to the citizens aggressively, forcibly and seriously.

Friend of Farmers.

"7. His record as mayor of Streator and in the senate conclusively establishes that:

"[a]. No man in the senate has been more loyal to the farming interests, and the overwhelming majorities which the farmers of his district gave him in his primary and election fights in 1922, when he was opposed by Gov. Small, prove that his work for the farmers is recognized and appreciated by them.

"[b]. He has consistently been the friend of labor, and has, without exception, voted for those measures which in his judgment would properly advance the interests of those who toil. To promote the true interests of labor he has not thought it necessary or advisable to be an agitator, a radical, or a demagogue.

"[c]. He has recognized the rights of the investor and believes that the prosperity of our state is furthered by peaceful and amicable relations between the employed and the employer.

"[d]. Legislation in the interest of the women of Illinois, recognizing and establishing their rights, conserving their health, protecting their children, has found in him an unswerving friend. The aged infirm, the crippled, the blind, the widow, and the orphan have had in him an ardent advocate.

"[e]. His record in the senate has been for a sound, economic, and comprehensive hard road program. It has been just as consistently opposed to the use of hard road promises as a political club to exact favors or to punish political enemies. The mandate of the people at the referendum upon the hard road question will be faithfully followed by Essington.

Defended Civil Service.

"[f]. He has opposed and condemned the wrecking by Gov. Small of the civil administrative code established under Gov. Lowden, the destruction of the civil service system, the overthrow of the pensions for aged and faithful employes, the enormous increase in taxes and appropriations, the placing of hundreds of politicians upon the state pay rolls for the purpose of perpetuating the Small machine, the sale of licenses for surgeons, physicians, dentists, and pharmacists, the corrupt and venal abuse of the power of pardon and parole, which has enriched favored lawyers, overthrown the verdicts of our juries and our highest courts, and has given liberty to convicted felons of the most dangerous and lowest types—the gunmen, the panders, the traitors who strove to tear down our country when her soldiers were at war.

"[g]. He has stood for law and order and the protection of personal and property rights in the spirit of our constitution and our laws.

"[h]. He has been through two contests with Gov. Small—in his last primary fight and in his last election—and has won both. He knows how to fight the Small machine and how to beat it."

BAR ASSOCIATION VOTE ON JUDGES EAGERLY WAITED

O'Brien Urges Voters to Back Dever's Fight.

BY PARKE BROWN.

With little likelihood of any big campaign ahead, local political attention in connection with the election of Nov. 6 became centered on the Chicago Bar association.

This verdict of the lawyers cast before each judicial contest is expected to have more than its normal effect this year because of the way the association helped arouse public opinion in 1921. It is predicted that approval or disapproval by the bar will mean election or defeat for more than one candidate.

There has been no formal announcement concerning the primary but members of the committee on candidates, consisting of ex-presidents of the organization, which originates such action is expected this week to recommend the usual form of primary in which all members of the association will be allowed to pick twenty-three candidates from among the Republican, Democratic, Socialist and independent candidates. This ballot will be by mail.

Democrats Get Busy.

Neither Republicans nor Democrats are anxious to raise funds for the battle of the next month, although control of the county board, through the election for one vacancy, is at stake, but the Democratic organization lost no time in opening its publicity campaign.

As chairman of the county managing committee, Martin J. O'Brien issued a statement that the Democratic platform is one of law enforcement.

"When the men and women of Cook county understand the principles underlying the campaign for the judicial election," read the O'Brien statement, "they will appreciate the reason why the party's executive committee exercised scrupulous care in its choice of names to be submitted to the nominating convention.

Pictures a Crisis.

"Chicago and Cook county face a crisis very grave in all its aspects, a crisis threatening the community's sense of order and safety.

"Mayor William E. Dever has constituted himself the chairman of law and order enforcement. He is fighting with exalted courage and tireless purpose the most important battle in behalf of public decency ever undertaken by a mayor of Chicago. And he is carrying on his fight single-handed.

"The Democratic organization is standing squarely and uncompromisingly behind Mayor Dever in his great fight. We know that he is eternally right and we feel, moreover, that complete success will crown his efforts to restore order and respect for law in Chicago.

"We must have good judges, fearless judges, to uphold Mayor Dever's hand."

Chairman O'Brien also indicated that a hot fight will be made for the vacant seat on the county board for which Daniel Ryan Jr. is the Democratic nominee against Robert M. Adams. It was directed at the Weber-Busse-Hoffman organization in the country towns.

MICHAEL J. BELLAMY RETIRES AFTER 35 YRS. AS POSTAL EMPLOYE

MICHAEL J. BELLAMY

Michael J. Bellamy, 2118 North Lawndale avenue, sat on his front porch yesterday afternoon completely surrounded by the pungent aroma of perique. In his teeth he clenched a new briar which ever and anon he rubbed on his nose to make it shine. The taste of good pipe tobacco was in Michael Bellamy's mouth — he was living in the land of ease.

For Mr. Bellamy is a pensioner now after thirty-five years in the Chicago postoffice department. He started away back in 1888, carrying a big pack out of the central station in the Federal building, and after nineteen years of this he was transferred to the Cragin station—not so far from his home—and there he put in sixteen years more as a distributor. F. W. Green, superintendent of the Cragin station, and his "comrades in arms" there gave him the new smoking outfit.

COMIC CONTEST PROVES MAGNET FOR FUN IDEAS

Andy, Walt, and Harold, Too, Are Kept Busy.

BY NORA COLLINS.

THE CARTOON SUGGESTIONS STILL COME POURING IN!

There are ninety-four prizes totaling $1,000 announced again today.

Have you entered this great contest for cartoon suggestions? Have you sent in your ideas? The contest is open to readers of THE TRIBUNE — men, women and children. It does not matter where you live. It does not matter how many suggestions you have to make or how many you have already sent in or whether you have not yet entered the contest.

If you have not—it is just starting for you. You may begin today. Read the details—read the comics in the comic section and—THEN GET BUSY! You do not even have to use the coupon printed in the comic section. It is there for your convenience and is numbered and there is space on it for your name and address.

This Is Fifth Week.

This is the fifth week of the contest and the interest in it is demonstrated by the large amount of mail which continues to come into THE TRIBUNE office for the cartoonists week after week.

Perhaps you have a better suggestion to make than to "Have Uncle Jim send Andy a racehorse named Babe"; "To make Andy Chief of the Bloomington Police Force"; "To Have Min a politician, receiving the nomination for Congress and eventually winning."

All kinds of ideas come in!

Others are: "Show Perry Winkle cutting off his bobbed hair. Have him decide that he is "too grown-up" for bobbed hair and show him cutting it off—and Winnie's dismay when she sees it, etc.

"Illustrate Harold and Lillums at a masked ball," or Harold's experiences in a military academy."

"Find Mrs. Blossom's diary, in which is revealed her love for Walt. Let them become engaged. Let Walt hold hands; plan a wedding, etc."

"Have Moon Mullins inveigled into a card game with his girl's father. To win his favor, Moon decides to let him win for a while—and then tries to 'come back'—because he is short of cash. But, try as he may, he can't win a hand—and the old man has all the chips! When Moon is unable to settle, the girl's father kicks him out, telling him never to show his face again."

Easy? Very—isn't it? All that is necessary is to write to the cartoonist for whom you have a suggestion to make and tell him a new lark—a new exploit or a new achievement of some kind for his brain children.

David J. Talbot, 7821 Eberhart avenue, is today's first prize winner. His idea for a "Smitty" cartoon was derived from an incident that happened to him in his childhood days. While reading about the contest, recollections came to him of the days when he was about "Smitty's" age.

It was thirty-one years ago that this particular boyhood prank took place. He sat down immediately and wrote his idea to "Walter Berndt," who illustrates "Smitty." That was considered the best suggestion received for that week.

May Be Based on Fact.

The ideas can come from actual happenings. You can send in that kind or make them up by using your imagination—your brains! Have you ever wished to see a TRIBUNE cartoonist illustrate some particular idea of yours? Have you ever thought when reading the comic section of THE TRIBUNE that you would like to make a suggestion to any one or all of these great cartoonists? Well—here's your chance to do it and to win a cash prize as well. If you have a suggestion to make, perhaps it will win $250, or it may win $100 or $50 or $25 or $10 or $1. There are ninety-four prizes every week. Then there is the grand prize of $2,000 at the end of the contest to be considered.

If you sent in suggestions on coupon No. 5, which appeared in THE TRIBUNE on Sept. 23, look over the list of winners printed today and see if your name is among them.

Here Are Details.

1. To introduce the new enlarged Eight Page Comic Section of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and to secure suggestions for it THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE offers $10,000 in Cash Prizes for Cartoon Ideas. One thousand dollars in cash will be paid every week for eight weeks; in addition, a Grand Prize of $2,000 will be paid for the best of all the ideas submitted.

The $1,000 given away every week will be divided as follows:

First prize	$ 250
Second prize	100
Third prize	50
Fourth prize	25
Next 25 prizes—$10 each	250
Next 65 prizes—$5 each	325
94 prizes totaling	$1,000

2. Contest is open to every man, woman, boy, and girl, except employes of THE TRIBUNE and their families. It does not matter where you live.

3. You do not have to draw. Simply submit ideas in writing. Ideas must not exceed 200 words. You may submit as many as you wish.

4. Ideas may be submitted with coupons published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Comic Section every Sunday, or on a separate sheet of paper. All ideas must bear a number. Ideas for this week should be marked "No. 5," both on envelope and inclosure.

5. All ideas must be addressed to the artist for whom the idea is intended, Postoffice Box 1589, Chicago, Ill. For instance, address ideas for "The Gumps," to Sidney Smith; "Gasoline Alley," to Frank King; "Winnie Winkle" to Martin Branner; "Smitty" to Walter Berndt, etc. All ideas must be in by 6 p. m. Thursday following the publication of the coupon. Winners will be announced in THE TRIBUNE the second Sunday following.

6. Originality of the ideas, neatness and clarity of expression will count.

7. All manuscripts and ideas submitted in this contest or competition become the absolute property of The Tribune company, and, without any consideration other than that provided in this contest, may be used by The Tribune company as it sees fit.

8. All entries will be judged by a committee of three from the staff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, whose decision will be final. In case of ties the full award will be given to each tying contestant.

BISHOP HOLDS SOVIET THEORY HAS CRUMBLED

BISHOP BLAKE.

Bishop Edgar Blake, in charge of the Paris, France, area of the Methodist Episcopal church, said yesterday at the Rock River conference in session at Grace church, that he didn't believe in a dictatorship in Oklahoma, Italy, Russia, or anywhere in church or state. He said communism in Russia as an economic and social theory had broken down and the Utopia projected by sovietism never could be realized until human nature was changed.

"I have been misunderstood," said Bishop Blake. "I am not a bolshevist, nor, thank God, am I a reactionary. I am a little of both. So far as the present Russian government is uplifting the people, enlightening the masses, doing away with poverty, securing for the workers a right to the soil, I sympathize. This is only plain, ordinary Christianity and not bolshevism."

Scholle's Good Furniture

Louis XVI. Walnut and Rosewood bedroom suite with twin beds—8 pieces. Special price $980.00.

Full 8 size bed, 7 pieces. Special price $863.00.

ONE thing we know about you that's true about everybody. You don't want any but "good" furniture. And for that reason we don't have any other kind.

It pays to be particular about prices; no matter how much money you have, it's foolish to pay more than you need to pay. And if your resources for furniture buying are limited, that's reason enough for studying prices, and getting the goods for as little as possible.

But you know—it isn't necessary to keep saying it to you—that prices may be too low; you may seem to save money at the time of buying only to find that you've really been wasteful in the character of the goods you buy.

In other words, you want "good" furniture; you want it at as low a price as possible and still have it good. If you will examine your own mental attitude about it, you'll see that really that's all you do want when you buy furniture.

You see how that simplifies our operation; all we have to do is to be sure of the excellence of our goods; we set a standard for ourselves which we call "Scholle quality." The only way to make you sure of quality is to be sure of it ourselves. Even then, you may not know us very well; you may think of us as "just a furniture store seeking your patronage." We're a good deal more than that, but you may not know it; and saying it doesn't prove it.

For that reason, not because we have any doubts about it, but because you may have some, we say—"Scholle quality; prices as low as such quality will permit; satisfaction guaranteed, or money back."

We sell a good many nice rugs; we ask very reasonable prices for them; and our satisfaction guaranty covers these goods.

SPEEDS 4 MILES A MINUTE TO WIN AVIATION CLASS

Navy Flyer Takes Pulitzer Trophy; Army Unplaced

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—[By the Associated Press.]—Flying through the air at a speed of more than four miles a minute, Lieut. A. J. Williams, United States navy, today won the Pulitzer trophy, the world's speed classic, in the finals of the international air races here. Williams covered the 200 kilometers (124.27 miles), or four laps around the 50 kilometer (31.07 miles) course at an average speed of 243.68 miles per hour. His total elapsed time was 30 minutes 34.91 seconds.

Lieut. Williams piloted a Curtiss fighter, equipped with a 500 horsepower Curtiss motor.

Lieut. H. J. Brow, United States navy, flying the same type of plane, came in second with an average speed of 241.72 miles per hour.

Marine Is Third.

Lieut. L. H. Sanderson of the marine corps came third with a speed of 238.96 miles an hour, while Lieut. W. Galloway, United States navy, flying six-hundredths of a mile an hour slower, came fourth with an average of 238.45 miles an hour.

The two army fliers who finished in fifth and sixth. They were Lieut. W. Miller, who flew the course at an average speed of 218.91 miles, and Lieut. J. D. Corkille, who flew around the circuit in 216.45 miles an hour.

Stinging under defeats at the hands of army fliers for the first two days of the races, the navy ships made a clean sweep of the Pulitzer race, the nation's outstanding aviation event.

Moore Wins Mail Race.

The other race from today, the Detroit News air mail trophy, was won by J. F. ("Dinty") Moore, air mail pilot stationed at North Platte, Neb., when he forced his mail plane, equipped with a single 400 horsepower Liberty motor, around the 200 kilometer (136.42 miles) course at an average speed of 124.98 miles an hour. D. C. Smith, stationed at Omaha, was second with a speed of 120.33 miles an hour, and Pat F. Collins of Cleveland took third with a speed of 120.09 miles an hour.

The meet was marred by one accident. Lieut. Sanderson, first navy flyer to take off after completing the course, at a speed that smashed existing records, cracked up.

Finishing the race he circled to land. He sighted the planes warming up for the second heat, and thinking they were about to take off, swung down their way. Several miles from the field his gasoline supply gave out and he declared, "I had to choose between landing a tree and a haystack. I chose the haystack."

Sanderson suffered a broken ankle.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DRINKWATER.
[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

FAME, LIKE TIME, FUGITS; COLLEGE SOAPS THE SKIDS

Orono, Me., Oct. 6.—If Henry James, society novelist and short story writer of the late nineteenth century, were to reappear today, one-fifth of the University of Maine freshman class would expect him to be arrayed as a two gun bandit, according to the results of a questionnaire.

Martin Luther was the son of Moses; the author of Vanity Fair was William Shakespeare; Disraeli was a poet; and Moses was a Roman ruler, according to some of the other answers.

Drives Airplane with the Motor Upside Down

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—A novel airplane, said to be the only one of its kind, is at the international air races here. It was flown here from McCook field, Dayton, O., by Lieut. Frank Carroll as a test flight. It is a regulation army DH biplane with the motor installed upside down. The inversion permits much better visibility, Carroll said.

St. Louis Zone Law, Model for U. S., Is Held Invalid

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 6.—[United Press.]—The St. Louis zoning ordinance, after which many other zoning ordinances in the United States are patterned, today was declared invalid by the State Supreme court.

Drinkwater Sued

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Preliminary steps in a suit for divorce have been taken by Mrs. John Drinkwater against her husband, author of "Abraham Lincoln," "Robert E. Lee," and other historical plays. No details regarding the suit have been learned. Mrs. Drinkwater, before her marriage, was Kathleen Walpole, an actress.

Reilly Calls Reservists to War with Pacifism

New York, Oct. 6.—Brig. Gen. Henry J. Reilly, president of the Reserve Officers' association, today issued a call for a convention of the organization Oct. 27 and 28 in Detroit, and a warning against what he termed the "general indifference of the American people to national defense despite the costly lessons of the great war."

MOTORS DRIVEN BY BOYS CRASH; 2 MEET INJURY

Man Felled as He Steps from Behind Car.

Cook county's list of 528 auto fatalities since Jan. 1 was unchanged yesterday, although three persons were probably fatally injured in motor accidents.

Two boys were hurt when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by another driven by Oliver Porter, 16 years old, of 1651 North Mayfield avenue. Those injured were Ragner Jacobson, 16 years old, who was driving the former car, and Richard Velvocvic, 13 years old, both of Elmwood Park. They are in St. Anne's hospital.

Car Is Hurled Fifty Feet.

Jacobson was driving west in Palmer street. At Lamon avenue Porter's automobile, driven at high speed, the police say, crashed into it and hurled it fifty feet away. Porter, driving his father's car, was uninjured. He was held by the juvenile authorities pending an inquest.

Peter Weits of 2400 South Whipple street was injured when struck by an automobile driven by Benjamin Griffin of 1021 Belden avenue at Grand and Major avenues. Weits stepped from behind a street car into the path of Griffin's automobile. Griffin was not held.

Thirteen Killed During Week.

During the week just ended thirteen persons, six of them children, were killed by automobiles. The same number died the week before.

Children Hit by Truck.

Marian Brummel, 3 years old, 737 Kenesaw terrace, and her 13 year old brother, Jerome, were injured at Broadway and Buena avenue last night when a truck driven by Frank A. Quinn of the Hebard storage warehouses struck them just after they had alighted from a street car. Quinn was booked at the Town Hall station.

HOLD SUICIDE WAS INSANE.

Suicide while demented was the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday in the case of Mrs. Angelina Domico, 1727 Cybours avenue, who shot herself last Friday.

The finest "after dinner and after theater" dishes are the low priced North American sea-food specials

The North American Restaurant has become one of Chicago's most popular dining-places for any-time-in-the-evening, and "after theater." Unquestionably our many famous sea-food specialties, at low prices, have been a great factor in the development of this great popularity. However, the one thing in particular which brings the crowds here morning, noon and night is the excellence of our food.

The average number of people dining here between the hours of eight in the evening and midnight, during the past few months, has been doubled in comparison with a year ago. And our increase all day long, from early breakfast to midnight, has been equally steady. Which shows that an ever increasing number of people are learning how well they can dine here, at a small price, by "serving themselves." And remember, here you pay no "cover charge," and there are no waiters to tip.

The North American is just as famous for fine juicy steaks, delicious fried chicken, tender chops and other specialties as it is for sea-food. But this time of the year most people are "hungry" for sea-food. And this is the place to get it.

Blue Point Cocktail: 7—not the usual half-dozen—on the half shell with cocktail sauce 25c
Oyster Stew: An individual stew made with New York Counts and containing a bottle of Certified Milk and a big piece of butter with crackers 40c
Fried Oysters: 7 big New York Counts fried to your order, with tartar or chile sauce or ketchup 40c
Fried Scallops: A big portion with tartar or chili sauce or ketchup 55c
Chicken a la King: Made of Premium Milk-fed chicken, mushrooms, pimentos and real cream. A portion big enough for two 65c
And our breakfast specialties
Honey Waffles: With 3 strips of Premium bacon or sausage, butter and pure maple sap, or honey 25c
Bacon and Eggs: 2 fresh eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of Premium bacon . . . 30c

BOMBS AND BATTLESHIPS.

The theory that aerial bombing has abolished the battleship is swallowed whole by armchair strategists. By professionals, except a few aviation enthusiasts, it is not. They know too many facts. A gentleman, securely intrenched behind a typewriter, will rattle off a generalization like this: "An airplane costing a few thousand dollars, manned by one or two men, can drop a bomb costing a few hundred dollars on a battleship costing eighteen or twenty millions and wipe it out. Why build battleships?"

Nothing is easier or more economical—in peace—than to win wars on that basis. The only defect of the armchair conqueror's theory is that it isn't true. Such an airplane so manned might destroy a battleship, but so far as experience and experiment take us, it would be nothing more than a lucky accident, and would not win a battle, much less a war.

Recent trials at sinking ships from the air have been given much publicity, and most of the inferences broadcasted for the astonishment of civilians are wrong. The truth is that the problems of aerial attack are very difficult and far from being solved. The notion that an aeroplane bomber can sink a dreadnaught as easily as a pitcher can throw a ball across the plate is comforting to the civilian mind, but let us examine the results of the latest bombing experiment. Says an expert's report in the Army and Navy Journal: "During the first day's attacks on the Ostfriesland fifty-two bombs of 600 or less weight in pounds were dropped at it. Thirteen direct hits were made from low altitudes, resulting in only superficial damage. But several other bombs landed close enough to it to start leaks in the hull."

No repairs and no pumping were done, and it lay all night and until the following noon, gradually settling. About this time a 2,000 pound bomb was dropped and landed near it, so that it began to sink faster and disappeared half an hour later.

The Ostfriesland was a German ship turned over to us. It naturally had not been kept in condition after the armistice, and undoubtedly its original watertight compartments, ports, etc., were no longer watertight. Also, it could be and was attacked at a low altitude. If it had guns to reply with, that would not have been so easy.

Two other ships sunk were the Virginia and New Jersey, and neither succumbed until many bombs had struck on or near them. The latter was finally fatally injured by an 1,100 pound bomb which penetrated its deck and exploded inside. The Virginia was disposed of in the same way. But neither ship was constructed with the modern protection against heavy aerial attack, and the problem offered by these later ships is much more difficult.

That is, in order to penetrate the new protection a heavy harveyized nickel steel container is used for the explosive bomb. But the more weight in the container the less can be given the explosive charge, or if the total weight is increased the fewer bombs can be carried by an attacking bombing squadron.

There is the further factor of striking velocity. The expert quoted says that armor cannot be penetrated by any bomb which can conceivably be carried by aircraft, unless a reasonably high striking velocity is attained. If to attain velocity a high altitude is chosen, the percentage of hits is proportionately decreased. If to increase the chances of hits a low altitude is chosen, velocity is sacrificed and penetration is slight. Damage to deck works and casualties to personnel will be accomplished in the latter case, but not fatal hits.

Our armchair conquerors, destroying navies with the click of the typewriter, and our congressmen, anxious to make hits with their constituents as guardians of the taxpayer, do not take these matters into consideration. The professional we quote summarizes the actual situation thus: "When we come to a rational analysis of the menace of bombing planes against battleships, it is evident that the possible destruction of upper work, including turrets and other gun positions, and the injuries to personnel, resulting from the possible detonation of high explosives on deck, is the only serious danger. Just how serious this is nobody knows. But we do know that hostile battleships carry a similar and probably more serious menace from the muzzles of large caliber guns, and that not only the surest but also the cheapest way to defend our battleships and our country against their threat is to have a superiority of battleship strength on our side. As for the enemy bombing planes, our own fighting planes may give an ample and relatively cheap protection."

We especially recommend that last sentence to our armchair strategists. They conceive of a giant bombing plane with enormous bombs galore hovering at will over a helpless ship. But the heavy bombing plane is necessarily slower than the fighting chase planes which would attack it and is no match for them.

We also recommend consideration of a law demonstrated throughout the history of warfare from the earliest time, viz: that new methods of attack quickly produce new methods of defense and vice versa. The science of war evolves through the operation of this law. It is never an one sided as the civilian dreamer imagines.

GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE.

Bernard Shaw the other day told some American professors and students in England studying social and economic conditions that Lincoln's famous phrase, "government of the people, for the people, and by the people" is two-thirds sound.

Government of the people, for the people, said Mr. Shaw, is sound principle, but as for government by the people, one might as well claim that plays should be written not only of the people and for the people but by the people.

"If we are to have theaters," he said, "we must have a certain class of men who are apparently created for the purpose of writing plays. It is equally certain that the business of making laws and governing a country requires certain faculties which only certain men possess. Unless you get these men you are going to make an extraordinary mess of it. Cromwell tried the experiment of selecting extraordinarily good (moral) men to govern, but they were a worse failure than the Long Parliament, and, finally, he had to give up all pretense of representative government and simply govern himself through his major generals, who had proved by experience that they could major generals if they could do nothing else."

Mr. Shaw's comment seems to us timely in view of the fact that one of the most conspicuous candidacies for the most difficult and important public office in the United States is that of Ford, a man who has no claim to the experience and special fitness essential to a competent fulfillment of its duties. There is Walton of Oklahoma and Small of Illinois. And there was Thompson of Chicago.

The American ideal of equality has confused our common sense and brought forth a perverted conception of equality in character, ability, fitness for special tasks. We are assuming pretty generally that democratic equality means that we are all alike and therefore are suited to do anything any one of us can do, or able to reach wise judgments on any subject whether we have the necessary knowledge or training for sound judgment or not.

Of course in what we consider practical matters this fallacy is not followed. We don't fill our own teeth, build our own houses or motor cars, climb on to a locomotive and run ourselves to our destination. But in politics and government we indulge our misconception to a costly degree.

The wise men who established the American plan of government did not intend this to happen respecting public affairs, if they could help it. They tried to devise a system and establish principles which should produce a government by reasonably fit representatives, while leaving such final checks with the people as they hoped would keep our government a government of the people and for the people. They did not intend, and we do not think Lincoln meant, that our government should be carried on by any one of the people. The forefathers who had most to do with establishing our system in its practical workings believed in representation and special selection for office.

Inevitably, human nature being faithful, this disclosed weaknesses. Representation has not always been altruistic, faithful to public trust, competent in public service. We have the predatory boss, the predatory machine, the manipulation and control of representation by special selfish interests. As a result we have always some demand for direct government, government by the people, and the breaking down in some measure not only of the faith in representation but of some of the forms of representation.

This, in our opinion, increases the influence of passing moods and impulses. It enhances the political profit to be gained by unscrupulous appeals to unreasoning emotion and prejudice. It puts a premium on sophistry and violent statement, by speeding up political action and depriving us of what every wise man wants for his own protection, the time and opportunity to be informed and to think things out. It puts a premium on the candidacy of men who have personalities which are attractive, regardless of their real character or fitness to fulfill the duties of public office, and on men who are skillful in appealing to our moods, to the sentiments that happen to be swaying us at the moment, to our prejudices and prejudgments.

Mr. Shaw is right in declaring that unless we, and other democracies, contrive to learn how to select fit men, we shall "make a mess of it." Democratic intelligence, if it can learn from the experience of mankind and from the sincere examination of its own nature, will strive to improve representation and its checks, not destroy them.

ADVENTURE IS ALWAYS WITH US.

The news from Peach Springs, Ariz., of the escape of the United States geological survey party, which was lost to communication in the Colorado river floods some two weeks ago, will bring a thrill of olden days of adventure into the comparative placidity of modern life. Brave days and daring men are not of the past alone. Frequently, as in this case, they rise again to move and inspire the workaday world.

The true quality of mankind changes but little. The same heart and the same spirit which moved a one armed veteran of the civil war, Maj. John Wesley Powell, to dare the unknown currents and cataracts of the Colorado river fifty-four years ago, doubtless inspired the little group of geological survey attaches. True, they knew a little more about the treacherous stream in the great cañon than did Maj. Powell. They did not face the same unknown danger of hostile savages. But they faced a dangerous task to accomplish important work, and did it eagerly. How dangerous it really was is revealed in the story of their escape from flood and death.

There is a thought for the restless boy and for the sedentary man in this story of adventure. Opportunity for deeds of courage and of great achievement, for adventure and romance, is never lacking to those who have the heart for it. We can never again make the romantic and agonizing journey of the covered wagon. No man can again be the first to navigate the treacherous course of the Colorado. But if we will we can find equal adventure and thrill in life.

If the lost river party does not convince us of that, a map of the world must do so. It is charted and drawn to minute perfection of detail, but by no means to the final detail. Every mark upon it represents hardship, and service to mankind. A vast amount of that service has been done by men now unknown and unsung. Common sailors before the mast did much of it. There was a life of grinding labor and hardship, but of adventure. Out of such work as theirs has come safety to thousands upon thousands of ships, and millions of travelers. They have done and are doing some of the most important work of the world and of civilization.

There is inestimably more of it to be done. Some of it will be done in steam heated offices, and some in the great out of doors. Adventurous youth may choose its field. Sedentary age may enjoy the deeds of an earlier day, vicariously or in personal memories. But adventure is always with us if we have eyes to see it or the heart to enjoy or take part in it.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

The wind is out of the north. There are blue black clouds on the horizon. The white birch and the poplar have had their leaves torn from them and are widows reaching with long finger to the sullen sky. Even the maple which yesterday was fire on an altar is dull, and the wind is bringing it that same bereavement with which the rebellious aspen trembles.

The equinox is past. The year is down hill. Days fly from the book of days as the leaves from the wild cherry and are as brown as the bracken by the way. Recollection is tenacious as the bronzed oak which will not be robbed by the north wind, and green as the pine which sings with it. But who shall put into words the white birch in the moonlight or the song of the white throat in the brush at the water's edge? The flight of mallards into the heart of the setting sun or the blue heron in the windfalls of the marsh? The kingfisher dropping as a plummet into the water from a burned stump or the scurry of the red squirrel in the rustling fallen leaves? The voice of the wind when it touches the hemlock or the gold of the moon before dawn when it touches the lake? The white mists veiling the water or the white frost covering the ground?

The days are dying, but all are alive.

THE HUNTER'S MOON.

As autumnal woods and fields and the return of the open season call the hunters from office and street into the open, certain sentimentalists among us arise to wither them with scorn.

What pleasure do men find in shooting half tame quail and pheasants, asks one, or what pleasure in pulling out of the water with steel hooks fish bred especially that some one may do that very thing? And then he answers that they inherit through five hundred thousand years of ancestry the pleasure in killing, born of the fact that killing was necessary before they could eat. But to the sentimental mind that is no excuse.

It is a common point of view, commonly expressed, but not the more tenable for that reason. Whether we admit that the hunter kills to satisfy an inherited blood lust is beside the point. If he does, it is because the human race has come through the ages to civilization by a process of the survival of the fittest, not because of pleasure in killing. The fact that it has acquired civilization is sufficient justification for that.

In this modern day it is more likely that the hunter journeys to the woods and fields after the harvest moon has waned because the woods and fields are lovely, and the sitting of hand and eye against birds and beasts provides an active reason for being there. We hunt partly because there is a certain expertness required in successful hunting, and normal men enjoy the exercise of skill. It is an additional pleasure that this exercise takes place in delightful surroundings. The birds we bag are trophies, as well as dainties for our table.

It is good for modern man thus to be drawn away from his modern environment, and his struggle to maintain modern life, into the more primitive environment and activity of the hunt. It relaxes and strengthens him for his ordinary tasks. It broadens and smoothes the way of life, both for him and his associates. It lends variety to the commonplace. No half tame pheasant or pool bred trout could serve a better purpose.

As for contemptuous reference to the lack of sportmanship in shooting down a bird hatched for that purpose, or hooking a fish similarly provided, it is as consistent as most criticisms by such critics. Such a one rises without a qualm from the remains of a beefsteak smothered with onions to denounce another carrying a brace of partridges triumphantly homeward. Blah!

OUR CHARLIE FALLS FOR ART.

[Decatur Herald.]

Charlie Chaplin has announced his purpose of going into serious Shakespearean rôles, and it probably will not be long before Harold Lloyd is doing Hamlet.

Chaplin is notoriously successful in drawing a laugh from the crowd. It doesn't take an intellect to see the humor in his antics. Little children scream with joy; Chaplin could be understood in a school for the feeble-minded, at the picnic of the guano shovelers' union, or at a bankers' convention. His appeal is almost universal—almost, but not quite. There are a few lofty highbrows whom Charlie fails to move.

And the strange thing about it is that, not satisfied with his name a household word, Charlie wants to quit comedy, discard the baggy trousers and the custard pie and go in for the approbation of these intellectuals. He prefers the commendation of the few to the whooping enthusiasm of the many. He wants to be noticed by such critics as write about Barrymore, Maude Adams, and Mrs. Fiske. Charlie thinks he is an actor, but he wants to be sure about it.

Charlie is like all the rest. The hack writer who can always sell his stories to be read by the vulgar many, wants to write a book that will be accepted as literature. The composer of the ephemeral popular song wishes to turn out a work that will live through the ages as great music. Country doctors want to be specialists. Good trial lawyers want to be expounders of the Constitution. Some of them achieve their ambition; others find that their talents are only sufficient for the kind of work in which they have been succeeding.

Charles Dana Gibson, after delighting his thousands of admirers with his pen and ink drawings, announced that he never would draw again, and went off to Paris to become a painter. He came back in a little while—to make pen drawings.

AN EXACTING FIT.

A CIRCUS STORY.

An old man approached the ticket wagon on the circus grounds and asked for three seats for the afternoon performance.

"Sorry, but we're sold out," the ticket seller told him.

"You mean to say you haven't even three seats you can sell me?"

"That's about the situation."

"Well," opined the old man, with acerbity, "I call that derned poor management!"—Courier Journal.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, of matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

MUCOUS COLITIS.

MUCOUS colitis is a peculiar condition, for it is rather more of a condition than a disease. Physicians know very little about its cause, its nature or its treatment. It kills no one, but it does cause a great deal of discomfort over a long period of years. At times the discomfort gets into the zone of definite pain.

In addition to the physical ills which accompany it, mucous colitis furnishes an excuse for introspection, self-centering and self-pity that is not equaled by many conditions. So prominent is this phase of the condition that physicians are about equally divided as to which is the horse and which the cart. About one-half say the nervousness causes the mucous in the bowels; the other half say the bowel condition causes the nervousness.

The outstanding symptom is mucous or jelly in the bowel movements periodically and is a chronic condition. These qualifications are put in to distinguish mucous colitis from the acute dysenteries and diarrheas. In typical cases every so often the patient will pass long, mucous casts of the bowel. These attacks are accompanied by considerable pain. Whether constipation be the cause or not, these cases give a history of long continued constipation.

Some people have written me that they have been cured by the free use of bran, vegetables, and fruit. Others write that the above diet makes them worse. The latter group probably have a spastic condition.

Some physicians advocate a treatment for mucous colitis which is simple, easily carried out, and which it can do no harm to try. It consists of drinking a pint to a quart of acidophilus milk each day. The patient drinks a full glass of the milk one hour after each meal, or until he has taken the pint or the quart which is his allowance. From one-third to one ounce of milk sugar or lactose is added to each portion of milk.

Bacillus acidophilus milk is milk which has been inoculated with a culture of bacillus acidophilus and then allowed to stand one to two days. The culture for the first inoculation can be purchased through drug stores. After one has learned how, it is not difficult to keep the culture going by inoculating a bottle of milk each day with a teaspoon of the milk that is to be used that day.

The milk to be inoculated is to be first heated in order to kill the barnyard bacteria. After being inoculated it is kept one or two days before being drunk, to give the acidophilus bacilli time to multiply.

The treatment is used for constipation and eczema, as well as for mucous colitis.

EXERCISE FOR WRITER'S CRAMP.

L. E. R. writes: I feel I ought to send a bit of advice to the telegrapher with writer's cramp. The advice you gave may be good, but it won't do him any harm to try mine, and will be much cheaper.

Some thirty years ago I was using typewriter and pen constantly when I began to have trouble with my right arm. I took a three weeks' vacation and then went back to work. I was just getting along when one of our lineman came into the office and inquired about my arm. Then he said: "The trouble with you is that you use just one set of muscles." When I thought it over, I decided he might be right, and that week I started in with a class at the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium. I attended two evenings a week for the next two winters, taking from five to fifteen minutes' exercise at home every day (nearly every day), giving especial attention to hand and arm muscles.

I worked for five or six years longer without any further trouble from my arm.

CURING BATH ITCH.

H. writes: The sick in ancient Babylon were laid out in the public square and got the benefit of any passerby that had recovered from the symptoms shown. If he took the trouble to tell the sufferer. So I say to the victim of bath itch: Bathe in as hot water as possible, lying down in it, and rubbing it in ten minutes or more, with soap. Then rub down with copious cold water, running from the tap, using the hands, beginning with the head. It was a heroic remedy for me, but I love it for its curing me of bath itch in severe form, and for its comfort. Let me say that your contribution to human welfare in the propaganda of water and bran for constipation ranks with that of insulin.

WATER CRESS.

E. B. writes:

1. Please tell me what is water cress?
2. Where can I procure it?
3. How should I use it?

REPLY.

1. A vegetable.
2. In the market.
3. As a salad.

Be certain it is from a clean stream and has been properly cleaned. I have seen watercress growing in waters that were not nice. Like the housefly, it hangs out in places that health officers do not approve of.

PAVING STOPPED BY REQUEST.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—Almost a year ago a petition was sent to the city hall to have the alley paved between 67th and 68th streets, back of Loomis street. Nothing more has been heard from the city about it. What happened? P. A. F.

We had a proceeding for paving the alley between West Marquette road, West 68th street, South Ada street, and Loomis street, which proceeding started by request of some of the property owners. At the request of the aldermen of the ward all proceedings for the paving of this alley were abandoned.

MUST PAY FOR CORRESPONDENCE COURSE.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Do I have to pay in full for a correspondence school course, which I took on the installment plan, whether I finish the course or not? I signed a contract and have received the books and lessons. E. McC.

Unless you have some defense, such as minority or fraud, they can get judgment for the amount that you agreed to pay and can collect out of your unexempt property or income.

MUST PROVIDE RECEPTACLES.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—With the exception of two families, nobody in the block has garbage cans and so the alley on the north side of Roosevelt road west of Kedzie has grown to be a fine breeding place for flies, germs and rats. How long must the condition continue? L. K.

Notice have been served on the householders to provide receptacles for the accommodation of refuse for alley bounded by Roosevelt and Grenshaw; Spaulding and South Kedzie avenues. Alley will be kept under surveillance to see that notices are complied with. THOMAS, H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

BARN IS OVER THE LOT LINE.

Chicago, Sept. 30. — [To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A neighbor has nailed a gate to my barn, claiming he has a right to, as the barn is standing partly on his lot. Have I the right to tear off this gate, after giving him verbal notice to move it?

2. If the lot is surveyed, do I have to get official notice or must I take my neighbor's word for it?

3. Must the barn or shed be moved if it is found to be on a neighbor's lot, after the building has stood there for twenty-five years? C. T.

1. Not if all that he has done is on his side of the line.

2. If you wish to act upon the assumption that the line is at a certain point you will have to satisfy yourself that you are right.

3. In general, such facts would give you a right by adverse possession.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 6.—The Committee on General Equalization submitted their report to the Board to-night. They make the total equalized property, exclusive of railroads, $1,186,-789,105, which is a little over $2,000,000 more than the assessed value. To that total is to be added the value of the railroad property, which is $20,838,977; and to that will be added, when the Capital Stock Committee reports, the amount of value which they attach to that class of property.

The third week of the Exposition began yesterday under cheering auspices. Since the opening the attendance has been larger than was expected by the most sanguine of the managers, and in spite of the depressing influence of the late panic, the undertaking has been a pecuniary success. The railroads brought thousands from the country, and there are many more thousands coming, it being calculated that at least 100,000 strangers will visit the show before its close. The railroads which have granted excursion rates have given evidence of a public spirit which shows that at least some monopolies have at least a fragment of soul. Of course they made money by Five Hundred Houses Destroyed and Property Damage Is Estimated at $1,500,000.

NOME, Alaska, Oct. 6.—Nome has been almost destroyed by a storm. All the south side of Front street is gone.

The sand spit is gone. Two miles of territory next to the sea was devastated.

No lives were lost.

Five hundred houses have been demolished and more are following.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Emperor William today agreed to a compromise in connection with the estate of $800,000 left to him by Herman Knorr, a patriotic but eccentric wood dealer of Kanzebritz. He has consented to take one-half and allow the widow to keep the remainder.

MANILA, Oct. 6.—Francis Burton Harrison of New York, the newly appointed governor general of the Philippines, arrived today on the steamship Manchuria.

He was greeted by a crowd of several thousand people, many of whom had come from the provinces. Traffic in the streets of the city was brought to a standstill by the crowds. Several of the welcoming fusillades were accompanied by bands.

PANAMA, Oct. 6.—The village of Tocumen in the western part of the republic, according to a report as yet unconfirmed, was destroyed by an earthquake on Saturday.

TAKING THE MORUM OUT OF SOME "POOR INDIAN" TALK.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Your account in this morning's paper of the council of Indians at Palatine contains this statement:

"Duncange, a young Chippewa chief from the community of Reserve, Wis., which sent some seventy men to the front in the recent war, talked intelligently on the present needs and desires of the red men.

"'We volunteered and were accepted,' young Duncange said in his labored but correct English, 'and what we did over there can be learned from the records of the war department. When we came back every one praised us for our courage and our service, but when we ask for the rights of citizenship and of franchise, every one is silent.'"

Apparently young Duncange is misinformed as to his own status and so is unintentionally responsible for spreading this misinformation to the public. The act of congress of Nov. 6, 1919 [par. 3404a of the federal code], conferred citizenship "with all privileges pertaining thereto" upon "every American Indian who served in the military or naval establishments of the United States during the war with the imperial German government." So if young Duncange served in the war he is a citizen and a voter without knowing it.

I quote from a speech by the Hon. Edgar B. Merritt, assistant commissioner of Indian affairs: "While two-thirds of the Indians of the United States are already citizens, the doors of citizenship are open to any Indian who cares to comply with existing law."

FLORA WARREN SEYMOUR,
Member Board of Indian Commissioners.

THIS MAN WOULD HAVE THE COURTS STOP GUN TOTING.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Just a few remarks about your editorial, "Stop Gun Toting at Its Source." You seem to have some vague idea about it, but are unable, or for certain reasons, just don't want to pull the right lever to the gun toting problem. You still harp on your favorite tune, the man killer. Judging from your clock, I'd call the automobile a general and unscrupulous killer. It makes the gun look like a piker. How about it? According to your own admission, certain public officials are giving many well known crooks and criminals permission to carry guns. Why is this? For a good reason, I say. There is the place to stop gun toting and all crime. Take the dollar sign out of our courts and halls of justice. I noticed that Charles R. Murray, in a recent article to you, quotes as follows: "O Mr. Dollar, How We Love You." This is more truth than poetry. Throw away your grouch and prejudices on guns, and get after the real game.

JOSEPH J. URBAIN.

ADD MOTORISTS' TROUBLES.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Motorists are wailing about unjust arrests in villages that extend their limits as far into the woods as they can reach, but no one has touched on an evil that probably costs the average automobile driver more money and time than these useless arrests.

Almost every time I have taken [River road or Waukegan road on a Sunday I have been delayed for as much as two hours, because some small town official stations himself at a cross road and deliberately holds up traffic on the main roads, while he lets every machine coming on the comparatively untravelled road through. Imagine keeping your engine going for almost two hours, making a total mileage of not quite a mile! And all because these "officers" want a little public attention directed to their city development.

Last Sunday there was a lineup almost four miles long on River road, north of Irving Park boulevard. Over one hour [actual time] was consumed until we reached Irving Park boulevard and when we got there, we found the usual small time "Kaisers," stopping traffic every time an automobile showed up on Irving Park boulevard.

Of course anybody can kick without offering a better method of handling the situation. I offer this suggestion: Allow traffic on the main road to go through for three or five minutes instead of stopping it every thirty seconds. The road would be cleared without any difficulty.

A. A. STEINBERG.

WHAT IS MORE NEEDED IS JUSTICE TO VETERANS.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Three communications have appeared in the "Voice of the People" recently to which, in justice to the United States veterans' bureau, reply should be made. The writers, all signing as ex-service men, complain of the economies which Director Hines has effected in the veterans' bureau, and draw the conclusion that the service to the disabled veterans has been injured thereby. Such is not the case.

General Hines' economies have been directed solely at administrative expenses; the budget system has been adopted; rents have been reduced; excess personnel relieved; and in general the bureau has been placed on a better business basis, the saving in the Chicago district alone [Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin] exceeding $300,000 annually. The bureau and the law it administers are not perfect and mistakes will be made, but no just claim against the government need be given less consideration as a result of reduced administrative expenses.

Director Hines has demonstrated his broad sympathy for the disabled and his desire to enlarge the bureau's scope by his published statement that congress should amend the law so as to give prompt hospitalization to sick or disabled veterans without the necessity of proving that their disability is connected with their war service.

Surely sound business methods should prevail in a bureau which expends $[illegible],000,000 annually, the largest appropriation for any government department, and ex-service men themselves should be strongest in support of an economical administrative policy.

C. W. SCOTTON,
District Manager, U. S. Veterans' Bureau.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

A ROSE WILL FADE.

By Dora Sigerson (Mrs. Clement Shorter).

You were always a dreamer, rose-red rose,
As you swung on your perfumed spray,
Swinging, and all the world was true,
Swaying, what did it trouble you?
A rose will fade in a day.

Why did you smile to his face, red rose,
As he whistled across your way?
And all the world went mad for you,
All the world it knelt to woo.
A rose will bloom in a day.

I gather your petals, rose-red rose,
The petals he threw away.
And all the world derided you;
Ah! the world, how well it knew
A rose will fade in a day.

...ney and time than those mailed ...ests.

Almost every time I have taken River ...d or Waukegan road on a Sunday ...have been delayed for as much as two ...urs, because some small town official ...tions himself at a cross road and de...erately holds up traffic on the main ...ds, while he lets every machine com... on the comparatively untraffic...d through. Imagine keeping your ...e going for almost two hours, making ...tal mileage of not quite a mile! And ... because these "officers" want a little ...blic attention directed to their chest ...velopment.

Last Sunday there was a lineup almost ...r miles long on River road, north of ...ving Park boulevard. Over one hour ...tual time] was consumed until we ...ached Irving Park boulevard and when ... got there, we found the usual small ...e "Kaisers," stopping traffic every ...e an automobile showed up on Irv... Park boulevard.

Of course anybody can kick without of...ring a better method of handling the ...uation. I offer this suggestion: Allow ...affic on the main road to go through ...r three or five minutes instead of stop...ng it every thirty seconds. The roads ...ould be cleared without any difficulty.

WHAT IS MORE NEEDED IS JUSTICE TO VETERANS.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Three communica...ons have appeared in the "Voice of ...e People" recently to which, in jus...ce to the United States veterans' bu...eau, reply should be made. The writ..., all signing as ex-service men, com...ain of the economies which Director ...ines has effected in the veterans' bu...eau, and draw the conclusion that the ...rvice to the disabled veterans has been ...jured thereby. Such is not the case.

General Hines' economies have been ...rected solely at administrative ex...enses; the budget system has been ...opted; rents have been reduced; ex...ss personnel relieved; and in general ...e bureau has been placed on a better ...usiness basis, the saving in the Eighth ...istrict alone [Illinois, Michigan and ...isconsin] exceeding $200,000 annually. ...e bureau and the law it administers ...e not perfect and mistakes will be ...ade, but no just claim against the ...overnment need be given less consid...ration as a result of reduced adminis...rative expenses.

Director Hines has demonstrated his ...road sympathy for the disabled and ...s desire to enlarge the bureau's scope ...r his published statement that con...ress should amend the law so as to ...ve prompt hospitalization to sick or ...sabled veterans without the necessity ...f proving that their disability is con...ected with their war service.

Surely sound business methods should ...revail in a bureau which expends $500,...0,000 annually, the largest appropria...on for any government department, ...nd ex-service men themselves should ...e strongest in support of an economical ...dministrative policy.

WALTON CALLS SOLONS; FINISH FIGHT PREDICTED

Troops in Oklahoma City Are Demobilized.

Oklahoma, City, Oct. 6.—[By the Associated Press.]—A call for an extraordinary session of the state legislature on Oct. 11, "for the purpose of the enactment of a law to protect the people from masked and lawless marauders and secret organizations," was issued tonight by Gov. J. C. Walton.

Simultaneously a statement was made public by Aldrich Blake, executive counsellor, declaring that "the governor is ready" and that he is "eager to meet the legislature."

Challenge to Finish Fight.

The governor's action was accepted as a challenge for a finish fight with members of the legislature who have sought his impeachment, and his advisers made no effort to hide the fact that they were preparing for the attack.

The governor's call precedes by less than a week a session summoned by a majority of the members of the lower house for Oct. 17, at which a general investigation of impeachable state offices would be made.

The call indicated that evidence adduced by military courts of inquiry throughout the state would be placed before the legislature to support the executive's demand for anti-Ku Klux Klan legislation.

Counsellor Blake declared that "the call indicates that martial law, declared throughout the state three weeks ago, will be lifted soon."

The last troops on duty in Oklahoma City were demobilized today upon orders from Gov. Walton. About 125 officers and men were affected by the order.

Acting Adjt. Gen. Barrett said that martial law has not been lifted.

He said that troops are off duty in Sulphur, Shawnee and Tulsa, where military courts are in session.

Solons Plan Action.

Gov. Walton's action in calling the legislature to meet a week ahead of the time the house members had intended to assemble only will hasten an investigation of the impeachment charges, the lawmakers declared tonight.

"We will do some unmasking, but we have more urgent work to do than to proceed immediately to the Klan matter," Representative R. A. Singletary of Oklahoma county declared.

House members indicated that a caucus will be held tomorrow night.

"Walton's Rule Deemed."

Duncan, Okla., Oct. 6.—Predicting that he could "write on a slip of paper the time when Walton will cease to be governor," A. D. McBee, member of the Oklahoma house and leader in the fight of legislators on Gov. Walton, declared here this afternoon the governor's "days are numbered."

McBee, at home for a few days' rest, will return to Oklahoma City tomorrow, he said.

EDWIN PHELPS OF WILMETTE IS MADE HEAD OF B. Y. P. U.

Edwin Phelps of the firm of Rummler and Rummler, lawyers, has accepted election as head of the Baptist Young People's Union of America. The position has hitherto been held by a minister. 9,007 U. S. ARMY OFFICERS FAIL IN PHYSICAL TESTS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Out of 12,000 regular army officers examined by medical boards 9,007 were found to have physical defects of sufficient importance to justify notation on the report, according to the surgeon general's office. A total of 12,040 defects were reported for these 9,007 officers, some of whom presented two or more.

Some of the most frequent defects were: Abnormalities of the nose and throat, 159.59 a 1,000; abnormalities of the mouth, gums and teeth, 146.67 a 1,000; overweight, 139.42 a 1,000; pes planus, 106.91 a 1,000; arterial hypertension, 100.92 a 1,000, and defective vision, 95.42 a 1,000.

It was noted that the incidence of physical defects was much greater among staff officers, medical department, quartermaster corps, than among line officers.

Magnus Meets the "Foe" and Isn't a Bit Skeered

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 6.—Enthusiastic over his first "official" visit to Washington, Senator Magnus Johnson returned to his home state today, confident over his future in the senate.

"Sure, I can take care of myself all right down there," he assured newspapermen, as he stopped here enroute to the annual Sauerkraut Festival at Springfield, Minn.

YOUNGSTER COP, TWICE A HERO, WINS $100 PRIZE

Slays Robber, Captures Maddened Killer.

For intrepidity and utter disregard of his own life in the performance of duty, displayed when he killed a heavily armed robber and captured a maddened murderer, THE TRIBUNE awards its September $100 hero prize to Policeman William Thomas of the Cottage Grove avenue station.

Patrolling his post near 51st and State streets on the night of Sept. 26, Policeman Thomas, a youngster with less than a year's service in the department, was told that a colored bandit had held up several pedestrians in quick succession a few blocks away.

Bandit Offers Battle.

With witnesses to the holdups, Thomas dashed to the scene and the bandit was discovered waiting for new victims to approach. Thomas' demand that he surrender was answered when the bandit, later identified as James Mosely, 319 East 29th street, flashed a revolver.

Drawing his own weapon, as he advanced, Thomas warned Mosely to throw up his hands and, after the bandit clicked his trigger twice in a vain attempt to shoot him, Thomas grappled with the man.

Grasping the man's gun hand, Thomas sought to disarm him, but was compelled to fire a bullet into Mosely's abdomen. Even then Mosely continued to struggle to a position where he could use his revolver, and the policeman shot him again. At the county hospital, where he died, Mosely was found to have a second revolver with a pistol belt loaded with thirty cartridges.

Captures Hidden Slayer.

The night before, Thomas displayed unusual bravery when he was told that Claude E. Guest, who a few minutes before had shot and killed Sylvester Foster, 4558 Prairie avenue, was hiding in a dark hallway at 51 East 51st street. Guest, the officer was told, threatened to kill any one who entered the hall.

Aware that he was probably being stalked by a murderer who would not hesitate to kill another man, Thomas rushed into the hallway, and grappled with Guest. After a furius struggle, Thomas pinioned the man and not until Guest was brought out into the light and searched was it learned that he had thrown his gun away immediately after the killing. The gun was never recovered.

Praised By Superior.

Thomas, when he followed the man to his place of refuge was under the impression he was following an armed and desperate criminal who had just taken a human life" declared Capt. James McMahon of the Cottage Grove avenue station in his report to Chief of Police Collins.

"In view of his demonstration of bravery and activity, Thomas on both occasions showed that he was a man of whom the citizens of Chicago may be proud. His actions in both cases indicate he is without physical fear and when duty calls, is willing, if necessary to sacrifice his life in the performance of his duty."

Leaps Into River To Save.

Policeman Frank Sedlack, of the traffic division, assigned to duty at the Michigan avenue link bridge, is given creditable mention for his part in attempting to rescue a man who committed suicide by jumping into the river. Sedlack, told that the man had jumped over the bridge railing, jumped after him but before either the policemen, or a rescue squad from a nearby boat could reach him, the man had sunk for the last time.

Policemen Thomas Lantry, James E. Corcoran, Edward J. O'Connor, William V. Kennedy and Christopher Callahan of the Wabash avenue station are commended for the capture of August Hartkoff, a convicted murderer who escaped from Joliet and who was discovered hiding in a basement at 4543 Grand boulevard.

WITHOUT FEAR

ALLISTER AGAIN AT ALTAR; BRIDE 10 MINUTES LATE

Notable Guests Witness Church Ceremony.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—[Tribune Radio.]—Allister McCormick of Chicago and Joan Tyndale Steven of London were married at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the British embassy church in Paris. The ceremony was attended by a crowd of fashionables from London, Paris, New York, and Chicago.

Unlike that other memorable occasion in Chicago, when Miss Mary Landon Baker failed to appear at the church, Mr. McCormick's wedding ceremony today went off without the slightest hitch. True, the bride was ten minutes late, and some ill natured members waiting in the crowd, remembering the other occasion, wondered if she, too, was going to be ill.

But Miss Steven, pretty and smiling as a picture, finally arrived with her entire family, including a good slice of Burke's peerage.

Wed Amid Autumn's Festoons.

The church was decorated for the autumn wedding with chrysanthemums and golden autumn leaves. "Earth's offerings," fruits, vegetables and festoons of black and white grapes were arranged about the altar for tomorrow's "harvest festival" in the church.

The international aspect of the ceremony, with its crowds of British, American and French guests, was emphasized by the arrangement in the church which placed friends of the groom on one side of the aisle and friends of the bride on the other.

The bridesmaids were Anne Boyd, daughter of Mrs. John Edis of Paris; Geneva Lane of Cincinnati, Edith Haas of New York, Barbara Wright of Pau, France, and Joy Butterworth of London.

Bride Wears White and Gold.

The bride, who, with fair hair and blue eyes, is a representative type of English beauty, made a most attractive picture in a gown of white satin, cut in classic lines, with a deep girdle of glistening pearls and gold. She wore a headdress of orange blossoms and gold leaves and a court train fifteen feet long, lined with gold cloth, which was borne by her younger brother in a page's costume of white satin. She carried white orchids.

The white and gold scheme was admirably carried out in the dresses of the five bridesmaids, who wore georgette crêpe skirts, with sleeves of gold lace, and hats of gold tulle and carried yellow roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, the Hon. Charles Melion Astley, while Edward McCormick was best man for his brother. Comte De Janze, husband of Alice Silverthorne of Chicago, and Gordon McCormick, son of Cyrus, were ushers.

Many Notable Guests.

Among the guests at the wedding, London was represented by Field Marshal Lord French, Marquis and Marchioness Huntley, Lord and Lady Hastings, Dowager Lady Hastings, Lord and Lady Nunburnholme, Lady Monica Wilson, the Earl of Cathcart, the Earl and Countess of Portarlington, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett, Sir Bruce Porter, Lady Bruce Porter, Lady Esme Gordon-Lennox, the Hon. Mrs. Alan Brodnell, Sir Henry and Lady White-Snell, Col. Geoffrey Glynn, Lord and Lady Maitland, Col. and Mrs. Henry Gordon Selfridge, Commander and Mrs. C. D. Burney (Gladys High of Chicago).

Chicago was represented by Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Gordon and Anna Fairbank, Mrs. Howard Lynn, Jane Betty Scriven, Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Kenneth Godmann, Robert Hall McCormick, and Mrs. Edward McCormick.

Paris was represented by Prince and Princess Wesgenisky, Count and Countess de Sibourney (Violette Saltridge of Chicago and London), Count and Countess de Janze (Alice Silverthorne of Chicago), Viscountesse and Mlle. de Jumilhac, Count and Countess de Gramedo.

Señor de Gama, Brazilian ambassador to London, and Mme. de Gama, Antoni de Navarro, Mr. and Mrs. Parmely Herlick and Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Whitehouse of the American diplomatic corps and Sir Frederick and Lady Banbury of the British diplomatic corps were among the other guests.

FARM BLOC HEAD URGES DEATH OF RAIL LABOR BODY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Repeal of the rate making section of the transportation act and abolishment of the present railroad labor board were among recommendations made to President Coolidge today by Rep. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.], a leader of the house farm bloc. Suggestions for the development of inland waterways and coöperative marketing warehousing of farm products were put forward by Mr. Dickinson.

Among others who discussed agricultural questions with President Coolidge during the day were Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., who was associated with the war industries board and chairman of the industrial board which attempted to control prices of leading commodities. Mr. Peek was taken to the White House by Secretary Wallace to explain his plan for an export corporation to market surplus wheat.

EMPLOYES OWN SIXTH OF TRAMS IN PHILADELPHIA

Few More Years May Find Them in Control.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The Philadelphia Rapid Transit company is a $30,000,000 corporation of 600,000 shares of $50 each. About 101,000 of these shares, par value of $5,000,000, are owned collectively by the 13,000 employés of the company.

In four to six years more the employés will own a majority of the stock, in the opinion of Dr. A. A. Mitten. "Four or five years," is the estimate of C. J. Joyce. It was to these two men that THE TRIBUNE representative was referred for information by T. E. Mitten, head of the transit company. Dr. Mitten is his son and "understudy," and Mr. Joyce is a lawyer for the company and vice chairman of the Mitten management.

Employés Get 10 Per Cent.

On the shares purchased the employés receive about 10 per cent dividend because the price paid for the stock was around $30 a share instead of the par value of $50, on which the dividend rate is 6 per cent, or $3 per share per year.

This stock ownership is one of the listed benefits of the coöperative plan by the management. Regarding it the company says:

"The plan recognizes the right of employés to bargain collectively upon all matters affecting their wages, working conditions, and discipline."

Each unit of employment has a committee to settle disputes and grievances—one in each car barn, shop, and office. Each committee is composed of half employés and half persons representing the management. If they are unable to settle the question it is appealed to the departmental committee, which is also made up on a fifty-fifty basis. Above is a general committee. If it cannot settle the trouble there is an arbitration, in which the public has the deciding vote.

Welfare Body Formed.

From these representatives of employés and employer has been selected a council which has charge of a welfare association. To this the employés contribute about $10,000 a month and the company a like amount. This welfare association engages in several activities.

It provides a life insurance policy of $1,000 for each employé and a pension of $40 a month for those who have retired. At present 151 persons are on the pension list. The welfare bureau operates a savings fund into which has been deposited $1,200,000. Also it has a "helping hand" fund to care for employés who are sick or injured. In that fund at present is between $25,000 and $30,000.

It should be recited that there has never been an arbitration of the wage question. In 1911, when the scheme was started, motormen and conductors were getting 22 cents an hour. That was the equivalent of 22 cents out of each dollar of income. At that time the management promised that the employés should have the same proportion out of any increase in gross revenue.

Pays Average Wage.

This wage adjustment basis was superseded later by an agreement that Philadelphia would pay the average wage which was paid in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo. That is the plan of wage settlement at present, except that Buffalo has been dropped from the list of cities.

Last year the management told employés that in addition to their wages—average of the three cities—they would be given 10 per cent of their earnings at the end of the year as a wage dividend—if they earned it. The earnings of the company were sufficient to pay that 10 per cent and it was paid to the trustees of the wage dividend fund on the previous agreement that it would be used to purchase stock of the company. The total was about $1,450,000.

That stock was used to borrow more money, with which still more stock has been purchased. The total is now about 181,000 shares, which the employés expect to pay for fully at the end of this year.

But will the company continue to pay the wage dividend? There is no surface reason why it should not. The wage dividend is an operating charge of the company which has been indorsed by the state utility commission. It is not classed as a surplus earning, although the company has decreed that it shall not be paid employés until after the stockholders get their 6 per cent dividend.

Sells Auto to First Prospect

When Dr. Guy Steffy, 2353 Belmont, decided to sell his car he ordered the following Tribune Want Ad:

BUICK—TOUR. CAR; GOOD RUNNING cond.; looks good; $150. 3838 Ellsstrick.

The Want Ad appeared on September 9. After the one insertion, Dr. Steffy told us that the first man who came to look at the car bought it.

You may have the car that some Tribune reader is anxious to buy. Why not sell now while prices are still good. You can sell most quickly by phoning your Want Ad to Central 0100.

WORLD STAGGERS BENEATH DEBTS, TRADERS ASSERT

Report Urges Parley for Settlement.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Some "fair way" of canceling interallied indebtedness, which has "thrown the world balance sheet out of gear," is recommended as a means of obtaining world economic restoration. The proposal is contained in the first report just made public here by Chairman Fred I. Kent of the international chamber of commerce committee on economic restoration. The report is based upon materials obtained as a result of the chairman's visit to most of the European countries. During that visit he talked with public men and representatives of business and finance. The committee on economic restoration is acting under resolutions adopted at the Rome conference, urging the calling of an international economic conference to bring about the economic and financial stabilization of the world.

Offers Proposals on Debts.

"The questions surrounding the interallied indebtedness and its possible funding or cancellation in part or in whole," the report declares, "are matters that only can be settled by the nations concerned and in such manner as their laws make possible, the opinions of their peoples justify, and the economic progress of the debtor countries may allow.

"A careful study of financial and political conditions, as they exist in European countries, has disclosed facts which make it seem advisable to suggest to the creditor nations that it may be to their interest equally with that of the debtor nations to study the interallied indebtedness in the light of possibly making use of it as a means to reestablish sound economic conditions in Europe and a safer political development.

For Trade Rebuilding.

"There would seem reason to believe that a careful study would prove beyond doubt that in so far as the creditor nations are concerned they would gain more through the restoration of conditions in Europe, to allow the rebuilding of trade and commerce to start promptly on a sound basis, than through the collection of the interallied debts over a long period of time."

Restoring livable conditions in Europe is a matter of evolution, the report asserts, which requires constant and careful thought and great patience. The remedy lies in the continued application of intelligence to problems of government wherein all of the difficulties which beset the European countries of today take form. Two things are required: First, right principles of government; and, second, the proper men in government to carry them out. Neither alone will avail.

AIR FLIVVERS WILL RACE FOR $12,500 PRIZES

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HYTHE, England, Oct. 6.—[Tribune Radio.]—The motor glider competition at Lympe aerodrome will be opened on Monday with twenty-eight entrants. The prizes amount to more than $12,500, the principal one being the Daily Mail prize of $5,000. The Duke of Sutherland is giving a prize of $2,500, open only to British machines. The Adulla company's prize is for the machine which circuits the course, approximately 25 miles, in the fastest time, open to all nationalities.

The Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders and the British Society of Motor Treatise are each giving $7,500 for the machine which makes the largest number of complete circuits during the entire time of the competition.

The pilots and machines in these competitions must be British, and the same machine used throughout the course, which will be from the aerodrome three and one-half miles northeast to Postling, then four and one-half miles northwest to a point about one mile south of the little village of Hastingleigh, and thence back about five and one-half miles to the aerodrome.

Course Is Rolling.

The course is over a rolling country all the way, and between Postling and Hastingleigh the machines will pass over two points about 900 or 600 feet above sea level.

The big prize is for the machine driven with an engine fitted with a cylinder capacity of not more than 750 cubic centimeters, roughly about seven and one-half horsepower, which makes the longest flight, and which must be more than fifty miles.

The competition is being run by the Royal Aero Club and is open to any heavier than air machine with an engine that is shown to have a total displacement not exceeding 750 cubic centimeters. At the same time any additional motive power may be supplied by the pilot himself. The pilot must weigh 165 pounds, or he must carry ballast to complete the weight before entering the competition.

Must Carry Two People.

The pilot must demonstrate that the machine can carry more than two people and must get in and out of the field by ordinary means and then proceed along a fifteen foot road, not occupying more than half that space. Each pilot must carry a log book, which must be handed to the officials of the aero club after each flight. Ten machines already have arrived, mostly by road, but two DeHavilland machines flew from Croydon in less than fifty minutes to show their capability.

The Six Sedan for Five

First, the new body. It is a splendid example of the most artistic coachwork to be found here or abroad.

Next the appointments. There's a new instrument board with dull black satin finish.

All the instruments are grouped deftly and conveniently in three assemblies, covered with heavy plate-glass panels.

There's a rear-vision mirror; an automatic windshield wiper; kick-plates below the doors to guard the finish from heel or toe.

And there are finely-fashioned new vanity and smoking sets, of flush-type.

These and a score more of tasteful fittings testify to the luxury Nash has built into this enclosed model.

Then the performance. It has the briskness and vigor of a speedster. It's a real delight to drive because it handles so easily and lightly.

Right now we're putting on a special Autumn showing of this particular model. Come in and view it.

MRS. McCLURG'S SISTER BRIDE OF BRITON IN EAST

Dorothy Schwarz Wed to John Lithiby.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Miss Dorothy Grant Schwarz, daughter of Mrs. Theodore Edward Schwarz of Bronxville, N. Y., was married yesterday afternoon to John Stuart Lithiby, only son of Sir John and Lady Lithiby of 11 Porchester square, London, England. The ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock at St. Thomas' Episcopal church by the Rev. Leighton Parks. It was followed by a reception at the Plaza hotel.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ogden Trevor McClurg of Chicago, as matron of honor, and by Mrs. McClurg's daughter Eleanor as flower girl. The maid of honor was Miss Evelyn Spaulding of Boston.

Wedding Tour in America.

Thomas Gaff Wilder of Boston was Mr. Lithiby's best man. Ushering were Herbert E. Harrington and Daniel C. Comstock of Boston, William Richmond and John W. Weber Jr., of New York.

Following a wedding trip in America, Mr. and Mrs. Lithiby will sail for Europe Nov. 3 and make their future home in Paris.

John W. Weber Jr. entertained the bridal party at dinner at Pierre's and the theater on Thursday evening. On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Ogden T. McClurg gave a small dinner dance at the Club Royal in honor of Miss Schwarz and the bridal party.

Sullivan-Ryan Nuptials.

When Miss Carlisle Sullivan, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Denis Emmet Sullivan of 6009 Winthrop avenue, became the bride of William Mathew Ryan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Ryan of Chicago, yesterday afternoon in Holy Name Cathedral Monsignor Fitzsimmons officiating, she wore a gown of white satin beaded in crystal and pearls, made very simply along straight lines, and a tulle veil edged with rose point lace outlined with seed pearls, and held in place with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. The honor maid, Miss Mary Krans, was gowned in turquoise blue chiffon trimmed with bands of sable, and she carried yellow roses. Her hat, in poke bonnet style, was of silver lace and she wore silver slippers and stockings.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Joseph W. Rice, Mrs. Harold K. Howe, Miss Virginia Chilins, Miss Margaret Tilt, and Miss Dorothea Felt, wore frocks of peach color chiffon, and hats of brown tulle and silver lace made in the same style as Miss Krans' hat. They carried shower bouquets of lavender sweet peas and peach color roses. The gowns of all the attendants had full skirts and long-waisted basque effect bodices.

James D. Ryan was his brother's best man, and ushering were Harold K. Howe, Joseph W. Rice, Denis E. Sullivan Jr., Mauran Smith, Burton Mudge Jr., and J. Estabrook Wahl. Following the ceremony there was a reception at the Blackstone.

WAR STIRRED UP HATRED OF JEW, ZANGWILL SAYS

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special]—Israel Zangwill, foremost Jewish literary figure of his time, who arrived here today on the French liner La France, thinks anti-Jewish feeling is on the increase all over the world. He ascribed this largely to the war, believing that an inevitable consequence of the war was to sharpen racial prejudices.

He has come here to address the American Jewish congress on "The Problem of the Jewish People." He will be the guest in New York of Oscar Straus. Mr. Zangwill said he would probably have one of his recent plays produced while here, although it is incidental to the real purpose of his visit.

Told that Lloyd George had dubbed the anti-Semitic movement as "extraordinarily stupid" yesterday, Mr. Zangwill nodded his head vigorously, and said Lloyd George had always been right on the Jewish question.

"But I am going to criticise him in my address," he added amiably. Discussing Hilaire Belloc and his book, "The Jews," the poet and dramatist took fire.

"It is the worst book I have ever read," he declared. "It is really a scandalous performance, full of flaws of logic and without any real knowledge. Why, I could have written a much more effective book—against the Jews—myself."

Recent "Ace" of Crowe's Staff Announces New Son

William Scott Stewart III. arrived yesterday morning at the University hospital, the father, Attorney William Scott Stewart, announced. Mr. Stewart was recent "ace" of the state's attorney's staff and is now the law partner of W. W. O'Brien.

HOW TO FINANCE U. S. HOSPITAL HERE DISCUSSED

Announcement that repeated complaints regarding government neglect of psychopathic ex-soldier cases may bring the construction of a new hospital was made yesterday by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director general of the United States veterans' bureau. The hospital, to be used exclusively for such cases, would be erected on the Dewey tract at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, provided sufficient funds are available.

Gen. Hines' statement followed a conference on ways and means with Col. A. A. Sprague, Myron E. Adams, C. W. Spofford, and John Hartmann. It is hoped that funds may be obtained from the amount appropriated by the second Langley bill, which provided for hospitalization and care of disabled veterans. It may be possible to begin with an institution of 200 to 300 beds, Gen. Hines declared. The cost per bed will be, roughly, $1,000.

Present figures indicate 591 ex-service psychopathic cases are being cared for in county and state institutions in Illinois alone. In addition, 150 or more veterans are being cared for in private homes.

The new hospital would care for all psychopathic cases in the Eighth district of the veterans' bureau, comprising Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

2 RIVAL BRITISH PUBLISHERS BUY HULTON PAPERS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—[Tribune Radio.]—The sale of Sir Edward Hulton's papers, including the London Evening Standard and the Daily Sketch, is now confirmed. The purchasers are said to be Lord Rothermere and Lord Beaverbrook jointly, and the price mentioned is £5,000,000 ($22,500,000), but no official announcement has been made. The two reported purchasers are rivals in the journalistic field.

It is stated that Lord Beaverbrook, who wanted the London papers published by Sir Edward, found he had to take the whole property or none. He approached Lord Rothermere, getting him to go in on the deal, taking for his share the Manchester dailies and forty or more weeklies and monthlies.

It is not likely that any of the dailies will be discontinued, but Lord Rothermere may merge some of the weeklies with his own publications.

SALVATION ARMY TO OPEN CHICAGO DRIVE ON OCT. 15

Leaders Say $341,000 Is Imperative Need.

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

The Salvation Army of Chicago is completing its plans this week for its annual Chicago drive to help "carry on." The campaign starts on Oct. 15. Every dollar given will be spent in Chicago.

The disasters of last year have dipped heavily into the Army's treasury, and the budget planned for the Salvation Army Home Service Program for 1923-24 requires at the very least rock-bottom, according to the Advisory Board, $341,000. This is the amount the Salvation Army hopes to raise in its two weeks' drive.

How Money Is Used.

The following is an itemized list of the way in which the $341,000 will be spent:

Booth's home and hospital [operating expense to provide for unmarried mothers and babies]	$30,000
Emergency relief [distribution of food, fuel, clothing, medicines, and three slum settlements]	60,000
Summer outings [for poor mothers and children, with upkeep for camp and equipment]	15,000
Corps budgets [deficit on combined budgets of twenty Chicago corps, including local relief work]	50,000
State divisional headquarters [operating expense]	6,000
Disabled officers' fund [for care of Salvation officers broken down on account of age]	15,000
Territorial headquarters [administration of welfare work]	40,000
Territorial special efforts departments [operating expenses]	40,000
Completion of maternity home and hospital [Crawford and Argyle]	25,000
Equipment of same [furnishings and hospital necessities]	35,000
Corps and settlement house extensions [for carrying on welfare activities]	25,000

Folk in Charge.

Among those who are on the executive committee are J. Ogden Armour, Lester Armour, E. J. Buffington, Charles G. Dawes, John F. Gilchrist, Herman H. Hettler, R. P. Lamont, A. D. Lasker, Cyrus McCormick Jr., Marvin B. Pool, Stuyvesant Peabody, Earl Reynolds, Col. A. A. Sprague, and William Wrigley Jr.

Of those who compose the executive committee, woman's division, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger is the chairman. Others are Mrs. T. Phillip Swift, Mrs. Ignacy J. Reis, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. George Packard, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. George W. Dixon, Mrs. Randolph Blome, and Mrs. Orville E. Babcock.

SPEAKS TODAY

GEN. BALLINGTON BOOTH.

Gen. Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America, will speak at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Rader tabernacle at Barry and Clark streets. In the evening he will deliver a second address at the Volunteers' headquarters, 1201 Washington boulevard.

Gen. Booth arrived in Chicago yesterday.

Speaking of the work necessary this winter, Gen. Booth declared that 4,000,000 men, of whom 15 to 20 per cent are service veterans, are now out of employment.

1,000 FAMILIES IN CHICAGO TO LEAD NEGROES SOUTH

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—With 17,000 Negroes in the cities around the edges of Lake Michigan wishing to return to the south, the first definite move to bring back any large number of them was given a definite start today when R. J. Carmichael, assistant general passenger agent for the Illinois Central railroad, and L. K. Salsbury, president of the Delta and Pine Land company, left this city for Chicago where they will make arrangements to move 1,000 Negro families to the 40,000 acre plantations of Mr. Salsbury's company at Scott, Miss.

The movement will require at least ten trains, it is estimated. Mr. Salsbury's action is the first to follow the announcement by Carmichael that the Negroes were awaiting only transportation and knowledge that places would be provided for them upon their return.

The Delta and Pine Land company plantation, said to be the largest cotton acreage in the United States, has been taxed for labor and Mr. Salsbury hopes to be able to finish picking the large crop with the Negroes he will bring back.

(A Business Editorial)

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL

The glory of this season's garden has departed. The planting of a tulip bed may hold a fascinating promise for the future but at present it teaches by contrast the ever-new delights of a grate fire. Once more, family interests center around the hearth and its cheery hospitality. It is in honor of this growing recognition of the value of genial surroundings that our nation has set aside this coming week as HOME BEAUTIFUL WEEK—a period of inspiration for the home maker which may lead one to greater things.

For every improvement—no matter how simple—is great if it makes the family dwelling more beautiful.

CHINESE CABINET PROLONGS LIFE OF PARLIAMENT

PEKING, Oct. 6.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Chinese cabinet has issued a decree prolonging the life of parliament until successors are elected to the present members whose terms otherwise would expire Oct. 10.

Following yesterday's election of Marshal Tsao Kun as president, there was an overnight exodus of Tsao's adherents for Paotingfu, his headquarters, preparatory to a triumphant entry of the president-elect into Peking on Oct. 10.

Reports reached Peking today that preparations for the presidential election were not as smoothly made as some had supposed, and there also exists some doubt as to how Gen. Wu Pei Fu and Chang Tso-Lin will receive the election.

May Hear from Wu.

Wu, powerful military commander of Chihli province, in which Peking is located, was silent until recently on political issues. On the eve of the election, however, he telegraphed the acting premier, warning against government indorsement of an arbitrary extension of the present parliament beyond Oct. 10. Wu also is reported to have said that if the election were legally conducted and held before the 10th, he would offer no opposition.

Chang, it is said, circularized the provinces, cautioning against making the election a plaything and against the election of "an unqualified person."

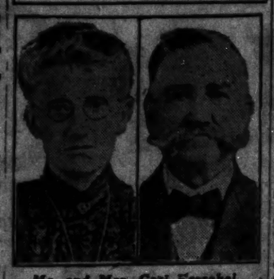
Reports from Shanghai say that leaders of Sun Yat Sen's party have issued circular telegrams denouncing the election. Coming from sources under the control of the southern constitutionalist leader, this opposition was not unexpected.

Reports of Bribery.

Locally there are ugly rumors of accusations against prominent members of the Paoting faction, Tsao Kun's party, by disgruntled members of it, growing out of the distribution of election funds.

Preelection reports said there was a liberal distribution of checks payable to members of parliament but made negotiable only after the vote was delivered. Even then there was doubt whether plans of the Chihli leaders to force the election through by the 10th were progressing as smoothly as they would have had the public believe. The price offered for votes was allegedly $5,000. Yet there were groups of parliamentarians whose votes were necessary for the election of Tsao Kun to the presidency but whose loyalty was uncertain.

50 YEARS WED



Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fatschel.

Three children and fourteen grandchildren helped Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fatschel, 3224 North California avenue, celebrate their golden wedding yesterday. Mr. Fatschel is 77 years old. His wife is 74. They have lived in Chicago thirty-six years.

"UP IN CLOUDS" CLUB BANISHED BY COURT ORDER

Devotees of Terpsichore no more shall gambol in the dignified precincts on the topmost floor of the City Hall Square building, Judge Hugo M. Friend ruled yesterday. The "Up in the Clouds club" can no longer advertise for attractive young women, who charged men dancers 10 cents for deigning to dance with them and shared their profit with Attorney Harry W. Standidge, president of the club, the judge decreed.

Reversing the recommendation of Master in Chancery Ninian H. Welch, who urged that the dances be permitted to continue, Judge Friend, after listening to arguments by Attorney Frederic Burnham, issued an injunction banning the dances.

Dances Public, Judge Holds.

"There is nothing in the evidence but proves that the dances were public," Judge Friend ruled. "The rooms were leased for clubroom purposes. Here we have the 'Up in the Clouds club.' Is it more than a name? Are there any other activities, any dues, any benefits to members—anything that constitutes a club? The evidence doesn't show it.

"Are the dances given for the benefit of the club or for the benefit of Standidge, the president of the club?

"Everything seems to indicate that the lease was wanted to provide a clubroom for the Lawyers' Association of Illinois. Other such societies, under the lease, could well have used the place for a meeting room. But it cannot be used against the owner's wishes for a public dance hall."

Declares Ordinance Violated.

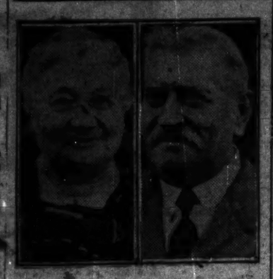
Attorney Burnham, stating that Master Welch had been most "gullible" in hearing the evidence, said that Standidge was violating a city ordinance in conducting the dances for a revenue without procuring a license.

"We need not raise the question of the immorality of the dances," Mr. Burnham argued. "The evidence shows that Standidge is a one-man organization, using the name 'Up in the Clouds' as a cloak to hide a money making scheme."

Mr. Standidge pleaded with Judge Friend to allow him one more dance.

"If the dances should not be held at all," Judge Friend declared, "there would be no excuse for holding them tonight. The injunction will be issued at once."

HERE 60 YEARS



Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heiden.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heiden of 2336 North Springfield avenue, residents of Chicago for more than sixty years, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the Auditorium hotel last night. Five children and five grandchildren were present. Mr. Heiden retired from the Chicago police force in 1910 after twenty-five years of service. He is 70 and Mrs. Heiden is 69. Their daughter, Mrs. Emma Cahill, is soon to be married to Hart Hanson, member of the board of education.

SEVEN EXPERTS BACK CITY PLEA FOR PHONE CUT

Declaring the revenues of the Illinois Bell Telephone company are sufficient to warrant a reduction in rates, the city yesterday filed its answer to a petition of the company for a permanent injunction restraining the Illinois commerce commission from enforcing the lower rate schedule.

The city's answer, filed by Stephen A. Foster, special counsel, supports the commerce commission's claim that the value of the telephone company's property is $96,000,000 instead of $144,000,000 as the company claimed.

Seven Experts Back City.

Affidavits from seven expert accountants and telephone engineers are filed to support the contention. Those who made affidavits, after an intensive study of the situation, are Harry G. Westphal, accountant; William H. Crumb, telephone engineer; Willis Cummings, telephone engineer; John Flint, New York accountant; Milo R. Maltbie, noted economist and former member of the New York public service commission, and J. G. Wray and Cyrus G. Hill, telephone engineers.

The Federal District court last month granted the telephone company a temporary injunction against the lower rates ordered by the commerce commission and the city asked leave to file an answer. The date for the hearing was set for Oct. 15 before Federal Judges Wilkerson, Page, and Evans.

Company Sees Revenue Cut.

In the company's petition it is declared the new rates as prescribed would decrease the revenue by $1,700,000 a year. This the city denies and the affidavits assert no proof has been shown.

KEWANEE

Classed with the enduring things

Progress and profit go hand in hand. It used to be that the heating boiler was the last thing thought of in the erection of a building. Now, it's the first. In other days, the owner never knew what boiler was being installed. Now he realizes the boiler is the heart of the building and the boiler determines whether the building is a success or failure from an operating standpoint.

It is this dawning intelligence that has vastly increased the sale of Kewanee Boilers and developed its plant from a modest factory to one with an output of millions a year. It is this attention to boilers that has put the Kewanee in the finest buildings in America, including scores of fine government buildings, great office buildings, churches, warehouses, hotels, big and little apartment houses, school houses and what not.

No building can be classed as successful which doesn't pay a profit and take good care of its tenants. A poor boiler which cracks or leaks in cold weather when it is needed most, will ruin the finest building in the world. And this fact is proved by the rapidly growing list of architects who specify Kewanee All-steel Firebox Boilers just as they specify the steel beams for construction.

Just remember that the enduring things are built of steel—great buildings, great steamships, great locomotives. And the Kewanee Boiler is built of the same material and with the same thoroughness and skill.

Write to The Old Man Behind the Boiler and ask him why the best buildings in this country are using his boiler.

COSTELLO'S FISTS TOOK THE PLACE OF TRIAL BOARD

That's Why Police Called Him "Regular Fellow."

BY JOHN KELLEY.

In the enforced retirement of Capt. Thomas Costello the police department loses one of its most picturesque characters and one who perhaps has figured less in the public prints than any other commanding officer.

Costello has always been more or less of an enigma to his brother officers of every rank. During his third of a century service in the department he has made few confidants. He has always kept himself aloof from the men who served under him and for this reason he formed no strong attachments.

"A Regular Fellow."

But aside from his aversion—or whatever it was—to get chummy with his men, he is known in the department as a "regular fellow." In all the years he has been a commanding officer he has taken but few men before the trial board, and that is the thing on which a policeman's popularity is often measured. As sergeant, lieutenant, and captain in some of the worst districts in the city, Costello—usually found a way of making a "copper" do his duty without taking him before the board. Many a recalcitrant sported a black eye given him by Costello because he wouldn't attend to business.

"If I take you before the board you'll be fired or fined" Costello used to say to a policeman too fond of his liquor.

Then he would give him a trimming, and one of these lessons usually cured this policeman of his desire to drink up all the booze on his post.

Many a "copper" can testify that the trimming he got from Tom Costello made a man of him.

Came from Ireland.

But little is known of Costello's life before he joined the police force. He seldom talked about himself, and then only to intimate friends. That he was

"A Regular Fellow."

But aside from his aversion—or whatever it was—to get chummy with his men, he is known in the department as a "regular fellow." In all the years he has been a commanding officer he has taken but few men before the trial board, and that is the thing on which a policeman's popularity is often measured. As sergeant, lieutenant, and captain in some of the worst districts in the city, Costello usually found a way of making a "copper" do his duty without taking him before the board. Then he would give him a trimming, and one of these lessons usually cured the policeman of his desire to drink up all the booze on his post.

Many a "copper" can testify that the trimming he got from Tom Costello made a man of him.

Came from Ireland.

But little is known of Costello's life before he joined the police force. He seldom talked about himself, and then only to intimate friends. That he was born in the north of Ireland about sixty years ago is the extent of knowledge his friends have of his early career.

He went to sea when about 15 years of age as a sailor before the mast. He followed this life for several years, and became a navigator. There is not a seaport in the world into which he has not sailed.

Lover of Italian Opera.

Although of Irish parentage, Costello speaks Italian fluently and is often mistaken for a native of Italy. He dotes on spaghetti and ravioli, and he has not missed a performance of grand opera in Italian in twenty-five years. He is familiar with the score of all the operas and can whistle them from start to finish.

LAWMAKER'S SON IS ARRAIGNED

Scene in Judge McKinley's court as Charles Curran, son of State Representative Thomas Curran, is arraigned with two companions on a larceny charge. Curran and the two others were found in a stolen automobile. Second from the left of the picture is Assistant State's Attorney McCarthy; next to him is Frank McKnight, one of Curran's companions, and Curran is the youth holding the cap. The case was transferred to the Boys' court. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

In Again

A charge of larceny against Charles Curran, son of State Representative Thomas Curran, was transferred to the Boys' court yesterday when he pleaded he was only 16 years old. Lieut. William McGurn of the police motor division declared he would prove Curran is 22 years old.

William McKnight and Edward Slanek, who were arrested with Curran in a stolen automobile, tried to attack him as the trio was being led, handcuffed, from the courtroom. They struck at him and cursed him for not telling the judge he had merely invited them to have a ride.

TAKE BODY OF WELL DRESSED MAN FROM LAKE

Police are seeking the identity of a man, whose features indicate he was Jewish, who leaped into the lake near the Municipal pier late Friday, and whose body was recovered by members of the coast guard yesterday. He was dressed in a blue-brown mixed suit, a soft black hat and brown shoes.

Upon his wrist the man wore a ladies' wrist watch and another watch in his pocket had stopped at 4:35 p. m. The man wore a blue striped shirt bearing the laundry mark 782-G-44 and in the hat were the initials "E. S."

BRITISH PLUNGE INTO NEW RAIL WORK IN MEXICO

BY FREDERICK WRIGHT.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Mexico City, Oct. 6.—The first railroad electrification in Mexico is now under construction in the state of Vera Cruz. The Mexican railway, a British owned line, is installing electric equipment on the mountain division of its line between Esperanza and Orizaba, a distance of thirty miles. The General Electric company is supervising the work and furnishing the equipment.

The 150 ton electric locomotives are being built in the United States for use on this stretch of track, which is known as "El Infernillo"—little hell. The average grade is nearly 5 per cent, with some grades 7½ per cent, with many uncompensated curves.

With steam power it is necessary to run ordinary trains over this division in two sections and the maximum haul is 4,500 tons. Electric power will increase the maximum capacity to 10,000 tons and cut the running time by nearly an hour.

The overhead system, with a capacity of 3,000 volts direct current, will be used.

Chief Engineer Ingram of the Mexican Railway company told THE TRIBUNE that stabilized conditions in Mexico had encouraged his company to undertake the improvement.

"Increased traffic," Mr. Ingram said, "made it necessary either to double track or to electrify the Esperanza-Orizaba division. The country through which this part of the road runs is extremely rugged and the double tracking would have required widening the tunnels and right of way. Our engineers, therefore, recommended the use of electric power.

The Mexican railway has a branch line running from Mexico City to Pachuca, in the state of Hidalgo. The company recently secured a concession from the Mexican government to build this line through to Tampico, a distance of 200 miles.

Don't go through another winter in a "half-heated house"

Is your home hard to heat? Will you find it necessary on the bitter cold, windy days that are coming to close up some of the rooms? No matter how difficult it has been in the past to keep your home comfortable, you need not live in a "half-heated house" this winter. Install a Weil-McLain Boiler now and be comfortable any time of day or night in any room of the house.

This famous heating plant will supply an abundance of cozy warmth to every room in your home—and, yet, require less fuel than will many plants too small and inefficient to keep you comfortable. In thousands of homes the installation of a Weil-McLain Boiler has been the means of cutting fuel bills materially, as well as increasing home comfort.

Round Type Boiler

For steam, vapor, vacuum and hot water heating; suitable for bungalows, residences, 2-flat apartment buildings.

Many years of study by Weil-McLain has resulted in perfecting the two major functions of a boiler. These are: complete burning of fuel; full utilization of the heat units developed.

In Weil-McLain Boilers every pound of fuel is completely burned—made to yield a maximum number of heat units. Waste is practically eliminated.

Then the heat thus created is fully utilized to heat the house, due to three remarkable Weil-McLain features.

The Weil-McLain fuel-saving corrugated "double-surface" crown sheet gives double the heating surface directly above the fire. The simple candle test shows that this is the most valuable surface in any boiler.

All other heating surfaces are corrugated, also. This further promotes economy of fuel and heating efficiency.

A long "back-and-forth" fire travel holds the hot gases in continuous contact with all the fuel-saving surfaces so that the water, steam or vapor absorbs all the heat from the fire.

Other features of Weil-McLain Boilers are: large fire door; handy front clean-out door for each section; smooth, non-clogging surface of lower one-third of firepot; triangular grates which cut and shake all ordinary clinkers.

Weil-McLain Boilers are very efficient, also, when oil is used for fuel. The heat produced by the oil burning device is fully utilized by the double-surface crown sheet directly above the fire, other corrugated heating surfaces and the long "back-and-forth" fire travel.

Prompt deliveries of Weil-McLain Boilers can be made now. Large stocks are carried in Chicago and Michigan City, Ind.

Write us for further information. We will send you, if desired, the name of a competent heating contractor who will serve you.

Square Type Boiler

For steam, water, vacuum and hot water heating; suitable for apartments, factories, schools, churches and all public buildings.

An erratic Northwestern team opened and stumbled to its first football victory of the season by bumbling Beloit, 21-0, at Northwestern field yesterday. Over 15,000 fans saw the contest.

Captain Bill McElwain was the outstanding performer, personally making more than a half of the Purple points. He showed well at running back punts, carrying the ball around end, and heaving passes. His backfield mates, Hugo De Stefano, former Princeton star, and Wally Banner, who replaced him at fullback, also helped make the victory certain.

Dawson Starts.

Pat Dawson, diminutive quarterback, with consistent heaving of the oval and two beautiful drop kicks from the 40 yard line, was the star. McAuliffe, hefty Beloit halfback, was the only man who gained much ground through the Purple line. He, aided though Northwestern's line frequently.

Until Red Herman was injected into the game at one flank, Coach Thistlethwaite's men seemed unable to stop the opposition or to block passes. Although Beloit was considered a trial horse for the north shore boys, the visitors held the Purple to a 3 to 0 score in the first half and opened up with a dangerous aerial attack in the second which threatened Northwestern constantly.

Purple Penalized.

Andrew Lipski repeatedly called the Purple for holding and offside play, giving the Stafe Line boys more than 50 yards in penalties during the afternoon.

Northwestern's initial tally, in the first half, came from the toe of Alva Graham, quarterback, who drop kicked over the bar from the twenty-eight yard line. In the second half, two passes from McElwain were responsible for touchdowns. The first one fell in Van Doren's arms. Bill Johnson, end, caught the second toss. The Purple captain chucked Van Doren's catch from the thirty yard line, after completing through the line for a thirty-one yard gain. Johnson's touchdown followed a throw of equal length.

Both teams showed a much more powerful offense than defense. Northwestern's ends were "sucked in" repeatedly. Red Herman and Roy Bousfield were the best the Purple had to offer.

De Magnuson Plays.

De Magnuson made his first football appearance since the Chicago game two years ago when he was badly injured. He put up a strong defensive game, and repeatedly spotted plays on the other side of the line. Ted Davis, at right tackle, smashed several long gains by slapping the Beloit backs to the ground. He also opened up huge holes for Banner and De Stefano.

Rosebo, Beloit fullback, was taken from the game in the final quarter with a twisted left knee, after he had played a consistently good game, carrying the ball and backing up the line equally well. Lauder, back field utility man, was not in the game long enough to display his real ability, for he was injured from the field with a gashed head.

McAuliffe dashed about the ends and through the line for frequent gains. Pat Dawson shot a score of short passes which made Beloit dangerous through all of the last quarter. C. Butler and Roosebo, on the receiving end, showed much more ability in pulling down the throws than did the Purple wings.

Cub Mascot on Hand.

It took two hours and a quarter to complete the game, due to Northwestern's eccentric circular system of calling signals. The Purple was frequently penalized for stalling.

Better team work and cleaner playing are necessary if the Purple is to show much real opposition to the Big Ten this fall, Capt. McElwain was the only player who could be called a star performer from yesterday's game.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

INFLUENCE OF FOOTBALL.

THE Wake considers that football offers the greatest spectacle and the most wholesome environment for spectators of any outdoor sport.

This is not disparagement of baseball, our great American game, for there is this difference—participants in college football are not paid for their services. Their reward is plaudits of their fellows and luster for their alma mater—incentives greater than which there are none.

Some critics of present college customs deprecate the importance attached to gridiron contests by undergraduates and the publicity resultant from public interest. These conditions exemplify, we think, merely the American trait of going into anything, sport or business, wholeheartedly. We would not have it otherwise.

What of the young men who play the game? Do they become obsessed with self-importance and take a wrong slant at the rest of the world? Possibly so, in rare instances. Of the large majority, we answer an emphatic "no."

If any person is qualified to remove trace of egotism or self-love, it is the average college football coach. His efforts are toward team play and victory, not individual aggrandizement. His players are called upon to sacrifice self to their team, to practice self-control, to maintain perfect physical condition by clean living. The fundamental groundwork is just as wholesome as are the games for the spectators.

Casting a balance, arguments are all in favor of football, both for players and spectators.

Grange Is Illinois "Punch" That Fells Nebraska, 24 to 7

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 6.—Harold Grange, who learned to play football at Wheaton high school and who bids fair to excel the gridiron deeds of Harold Pogue and Posty Clark, was responsible for Illinois' victory over Nebraska here today by the score of 24 to 7.

It was Grange's superb open field running and clean handling of the ball that enabled him to make three touchdowns, while Britton, star of last year's freshman team, made the other points by booting all three goals after touchdowns and kicking a field goal from placement from the 27 yard line.

Grange Scores at Start.

In the second quarter Grange skirted the Nebraska left end for the first touchdown after Illinois had taken the ball to the Cornhusker 8 yard line by a concentrated line attack. In the same period Britton made his field goal. Neither team was able to score during the remainder of the quarter, and the half ended with the score 10 to 0 in favor of the Orange and Blue.

Nebraska came back with its customary fighting spirit in the third quarter and by a series of line plunges and end runs by Capt. Llewellyn and Noble, the fleet Nebraska backs, the ball was carried to the Illinois 9 yard line. Noble, one of the best sprinters in the Missouri Valley conference, then got around the locals' right end for a touchdown. This score and the marker registered for the goal kick made the count 10 to 7 in Illinois' favor.

Illini Cut Loose at Close.

For the remainder of the period neither team threatened to score, but in the final quarter Illinois cut loose. The Orange and Blue rushed the oval to the visitors' 20 yard line, where Nebraska held. A forward pass, Britton to Grange, then was uncorked, and the latter, after making a beautiful jump and running catch, eluded the Nebraska tacklers and scampered across the goal line. Britton kicked the goal from placement.

After an exchange of punts the ball rested on Nebraska's 35 yard line. The Scarlet and Green was unable to gain, and Capt. Llewellyn lifted a high punt to Grange. The former Wheaton boy gathered in the oval and raced through the entire Nebraska team for 65 yards and a touchdown. It was a beautiful run made down the east side of the field with the runner using the stiff arm and pivot dodge to good advantage.

Run a Real Spectacle.

It was a spectacular piece of work, the sort expected of a player with the speed of the former Wheaton star who has all the earmarks of developing into a wonderful player. His activities today will make him a marked man in all the remaining games of the Illinois schedule.

It was a football game from start to finish. There was none of the expected interchange of plays. In fact, just before the game Coach Dawson of Nebraska said to Coach Zuppke: "Let's make it a football game." The Illinois mentor replied: "That suits me." And such it turned out to be.

The University of Chicago football machine recorded its second win of the season yesterday in defeating Colorado Agricultural college, 10 to 0, in a battle of strength and wit at Stagg field. The Aggies contested every yard of ground and in brilliant attacks in the third period twice threatened the Chicago goal line.

Coach Stagg was unable to send all of his regulars into the fray for the entire route, some of them being kept on the bench through much of the battle because of injuries.

The Chicago points were gathered largely through pranks of Ted Henderson's touchdown in the first quarter resulted from a blocked punt, after which the ball rolled back over the goal line.

Penalty Gives Maroons Chance.

In the second quarter, Rohrke drop kicked a perfect field goal, after Chicago had been given the ball as a penalty to the Aggies when Torrey committed a foul in the illegal use of his hands in tackling Campbell Dickson, who, after this crash, was sent to the showers with a dislocated knee.

The Aggies showed great fitness and fight, as well as the result of able tutelage in withstanding the mighty onslaughts of Chicago's famous backs, Bill Zorn, Harry Thomas, and Capt. Jim Pyott. The Coloradoans' strength in offense was due principally to tricks taught them by Coach Harry Hughes.

One play, a triple pass, in which Brown, right end, came into the back field to receive the ball from Trefferson, quarter, who previously had received it from a half, netted the Aggies a total of 55 yards. The variation of the Aggie attack, and the finish with which the plays were executed foiled the Maroons at times.

Zorn was the outstanding star in Maroon offensive play. He and Fred Law also figured prominently in secondary defense work. Art McCarthy, who replaced Harry Thomas through most of the battle, was quite active in plays.

In the line Lloyd Rohrke's value was enhanced by his prowess as a drop kicker, and he was used frequently in plays calling for drives through the Aggie left guard. Joe Pondelik, veteran guard, got into the game for a while, replacing Rolleston.

First Period All Maroon.

Ralph King, mammoth Maroon center, sustained a badly sprained ankle shortly after the opening of the first period, and was helped from the field.

The Maroons had a lopsided advantage in the first period, making successive first downs. Two passes, Pyott to Law for seven yards, and Pyott to Dickson for fifteen yards, were salient features of an attack leading up to Pyott's punt, which sent the ball over the Aggie goal line for a touchback. Houser dropped back to his goal line to kick, but Henderson blocked the play and fell on the ball. Rohrke kicked goal. In the remaining minutes of the quarter, Chicago lost the ball and Colorado was forced to punt.

Shortly after the second period opened, the Maroons got possession of the ball on Aggies twenty-nine yard line. Zorn and Harry Thomas reducing the distance to twenty-two yards. Here Rohrke dropped back to the thirty yard mark and scored his three points.

Just before the end of the half, the Maroons had three yards to go for a touchdown as the whistle blew.

Aggies Dazzle Maroons.

In the third period the Aggies opened their kick box. Ben returned Rohrke's kickoff to the Aggie twenty-five yard line. Brown made ten yards on a triple pass, Rohrke and Lampe colliding in tackling him. Houser, Reid, and Riddle advanced the ball ten yards, but on the third down the Aggies were penalized and forced to abandon their tricky attack.

The fourth frame opened with an exchange of kicks, after which the Maroons assumed the aggressive, keeping the ball in Aggie territory for the most part.

CHACOLET WINS BIG KENTUCKY RACE AT 21 TO 1

THE victory of Miss Edith Cummings of Ouwentsia in the national golf championship at the Westchester-Biltmore club yesterday marked the second success of a Chicago player since the championship was inaugurated in 1895. In 1902 Miss Bessie Anthony of the Glen View club won at the Chicago Golf club, defeating Miss J. Carpenter of Chicago in the final. Twelve years later Miss Elaine Rosenthal of the Ravisloe club, now Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt, was runnerup to Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson, formerly Miss Kate Harley of Fall River.

Lafonia, Ky., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Chacolet, an imported 5 year old daughter of St. Amant and Martial Note, won the Kentucky Jockey club's $50,000 added Kentucky special here today for Hal Price Headley, prominent owner and breeder of Paris, Ky. Carl Wiedemann's 5 year old, In Memoriam, was second, a half length behind the winner, and Shuffle Along, which ran coupled with Spot Cash as the entry of A. C. Bostwick, was third.

The winner ran the special's distance of one and three-sixteenth miles in 1:56 3-5, which is two-fifths of a second slower than the track record for the distance.

Mr. Headley receives the handsome sum of $49,250 through Chacolet's triumph, while second money of $6,000 went to Carl Wiedemann and Shuffle Along's third gave $3,000 to Owner Bostwick. The Rancocas stables Knobbie, which finished fourth, earned $1,000 for Owner H. F. Sinclair.

The winner was ridden by Jockey Lawrence McDermott, who rated her beautifully far off the early pace, then brought her around the field in the last three furlongs and got up to win from In Memoriam by a half length.

In Memoriam followed Shuffle Along's early pace almost from the start and was easy for Chacolet when she challenged. Shuffle Along tired badly in the last furlong and was beaten a length and one-half for the place.

A $5 mutuel ticket on Chacolet to win paid $44.60; place, $16.10; show, $11.40. In Memoriam for a place was $3.50, and show $3.00. Shuffle Along for show was $6.90.

The Question.

What football team do you pick to win the Big Ten conference championship?

Where Asked.

Clark at Madison street.

The Answers.

John A. Phillips, 253 West Hill street, student—Right off the bat, the Maroons look best for the Big Ten championship this year. They have unusually strong men in the backfield, men that will be hard to beat. Besides, they have an equally strong team in their substitutes.

O. W. Rewey, 6225 Drexel avenue, chemist — Wisconsin. With Jack Ryan at the helm of the Badgers, ready to open his bag of eastern tricks upon the Big Ten, watch the Cardinals break their jinx of the last few years and come through with the title.

L. A. Carr, 6218 Drexel avenue, piano tuner—Chicago, I think. Stagg has a world of good reserve material this year that is almost equal to his first string men. It all rests with his quarter back. If he develops a good one the hunting will float over Stagg field. The Hawkeyes are strong, too. Their line is 210 from end to end.

Douglass B. Warwick, 422 North Parkside avenue, automobile dealer—It really is too early to form a definite opinion, but I think it will probably be a close race between the Maroons and the Gophers, judging from past performances and the present lineup. If the two teams pair together I'd like to see the game.

Frederick Mulvihill, 208 Whiting street, student—I think Illinois will win the Big Ten championship because of its strongest line and fast backfield. The game with Nebraska will set them for the best competition the conference can offer them. If they beat Nebraska I boost them conference champions or the champions' equal.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Rye, N. Y., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Edith Cummings closed a week of thrills and brilliant rallies today when, standing in the cuplike swale in the Westchester hills on the sixteenth green, she was crowned queen of the golfing world and climaxed years of work and sacrifice by winning the women's amateur golf championship for Chicago, 3 and 2 to play, from Miss Alexa Stirling.

There in the little cuplike valley surrounded by rock mounds upon which the thousands of men and women who had followed the match for thirty-four holes grouped and clung, the supreme triumph and the saddest tragedy of the golfing year was enacted.

At the moment Miss Stirling failed to make her ball fall into the cup on the green where in the morning she seemed to have clinched the title for the fourth time, she smiled and stepped forward to clasp the hand of the new champion, who smiled through tears of joy and weariness.

Chicago Enamores Victor.

The little swale became the throne room in which the Ouwentsia girl received her new subjects. The crowd came swarming down the rocky cliffs until the high hats of the U. S. G. A. were a center of the swirl.

Girls, and even a few favored men, kissed her, and at the side, still smiling, Miss Stirling received the condolences of those who followed her through her game struggle to recover the crown she wore so gracefully for three years and which at the close of the morning round she seemed certain to wear again.

The victory of the tired, fighting girl in brown skirt and sweater, who had struggled so hard to achieve the highest title in women's golf, was hailed as a triumph for the westerners and came at the end of a day of thrills and spills.

Miss Cummings Play Erratic.

For in the morning round Miss Cummings, after a good start, rallied, lapsed again, started at the ninth hole to make short putts, seemed to break badly, rallied, and broke again just at the finish, and was 2 down at the luncheon period. She had not four glorious chances to win holes, and had she played the game she did earlier in the week through the entire round she would have been 2 up.

At noon the cause of the west seemed lost, the southern delegates and easterners who claim Miss Stirling because she belongs to a New York club, were preparing polite speeches of condolence for Miss Cummings.

Then, starting out in the afternoon the Chicago girl gave the crowning thrill of the week, a thrill better even than the one of yesterday when she came from behind and defeated Mrs. Vanderbeck when she seemed hopelessly down.

Grabs Golf by Putts.

Shooting superb golf, she raced through the first four holes in 4 3 3 4—under par golf, halved the fifth hole, took the next three in succession, and electrified the gallery by her marvelous control of herself. She weakened a bit after that, lost a chance to gain another hole, but finished the first nine holes in forty strokes.

Miss Stirling seemed to weaken badly under the strain and showed traces of nervousness. She had two fine chances to regain the lost ground and missed them by failing to stop short putts. Her work from the tee grew ragged and when she went 3 down her case seemed hopeless.

But women are women—and one never can tell anything to or about them. She rallied at the thirteenth hole and won it with a beautiful 4, only to lose the next when she failed to sink a putt.

At the short fifteenth Miss Cummings climbed to the top of the high pillar of rock where the tee lies and swung her club over the assembled gallery below. She seemed to have ascended her throne as queen of golf, with her club as a scepter.

Across the deep valley, on the hillside by the woods, lay the green. On that green, in the morning round, she had come near making a hole in 1. The crowd was jammed on the hillside under the brilliantly colored trees and lined along a stone wall.

Miss Cummings shot and the ball fell on the edge of the green and stuck there. Miss Stirling was short, almost ran into a trap, and then pitched up short, and when Miss Cummings sank her stiff putt for a 3 her victory was within grasp.

She was dormie 3—but she did not let down.

They drove toward the cuplike valley far away and Miss Cummings' ball ran around two traps and laid safe on the green. Miss Stirling hit further, and was under a tree at the slope of a small knoll. She was short on her third and just managed to reach the green while Miss Cummings was on the green in 2, after hitting through a tree.

Forget Violated Rule.

There was a brief flurry at the close of the morning round because Miss Cummings, in the excitement of the moment, technically violated a rule. There probably would have been a big argument among the followers of the two girls had the match been closer, but Miss Stirling scoffed at any idea of protest.

Miss Cummings should have won that hole, but putted wretchedly and missed two shots for a win, and as she missed the second she putted out of turn, then picked up both her ball and that of her opponent. Under strict rulings a hole which was halved might have been declared lost because of one player touching the ball of the other, but the act was of no effect and was construed as conceding a putt to an opponent.

Nerves appeared to play an important part in the finals as they did all week. Miss Stirling has been extremely nervous and appeared to be holding her muscles by sheer will power. Yet during the early part of the day her putting was immaculate.

Edith Misses Easy Ones.

It was Miss Cummings who weakened during the morning. After making an eagle 3 on the long fourth hole and sinking a putt of nearly twenty feet, she commenced missing easy ones. She simply threw away the ninth and tenth holes, the tenth by a foolish shot trying to run through trees and traps guarding the green. She was worst on the eighteenth.

Her afternoon round, however, started in marvelous style, and she was under the men's par on the first four holes, sinking a twenty foot putt.

The great shot of the day, however, was the one made by Miss Stirling on the sixteenth hole of the morning round, which seemed to be the turning point of the game and which prevented Miss Cummings from winning a hole that seemed certain.

Miss Cummings almost sank a long, down hill putt for a win and the ball rolling straight across the edge of the cup laid Miss Stirling a two-thirds stymie. It seemed impossible for her to squeeze the ball past that of her opponent to the cup, she studied it carefully, hit the ball with a cut which sent it into a gentle arc around the stymie, and it plunked into the hole giving her a half on the hole that seemed surely lost.

Great Shot by Chicago Girl.

The other feature shot was by Miss Cummings at the fifteenth of the morning round. Her tee shot dropped less than ten inches from the cup and stuck there, and even then, due to a half stymie, she had to make a difficult putt to win a birdie two.

While the golf that was played today was not of the best, the breaks, due to the strain, were attended by brilliant shots and recoveries. Miss Stirling was below her par today, and has been almost all week after her magnificent start in the qualifying round. Her failure to regain the championship she can blame on Mrs. Vanderbeck, who allowed Miss Cummings to win yesterday after she appeared certain of defeat.

The nerves are all gone tonight and the western women are rejoicing. The photographers, however, are angry. The golf association ordered all photographers to put away their cameras today after the morning round when they got on Miss Cummings' nerve. They lost the most beautiful picture of the year in failing to catch the massed grounds around the victor and the vanquished in the rocky valley at the end of the match, when the setting sun lighted the final scene of the brilliant drama.

14 MIDWEST GRID GAMES ON TODAY

This afternoon at the various fields in and near the city, fourteen grid games are slated to be decided by the Midwest league, as follows:

Logan Squares and Waukegan Elks, at Waukegan; Opal A. A. and Gary Elks, at Gary; Tri-City Boosters and Aurora Legion, at Geneva; Yellow Cabs and Hammond Secretens, at White City; Washington Park, of Evanston and Medos A. C., at De Paul field; Oakwyns and Cicero Colts, at 52d and Laramie; St. Florian A. C. and Forest Park circle, at Roosevelt; Proviso Accotinks and Hadley A. A., at Maywood; Gilbert A. C. and Berwyn, at West Pullman; Rockford N. A. C. at Pullman, Parlers Park Country club at Forest Park, Waukegan A. C. at South Chicago, West Side Arrows at Harvey, Dundee A. C. and Evanston, at Evanston.

L. H.	Connell, D. Miller	Cox
L. H.	Hoover, Crowley, Bergman	Hannan, O'man
F. B.	Conroy, Layden, Liversedge	Rummel, Rainey

Touchdowns—Miller and Crowley. Goals after touchdowns—Layden [2]. Referee—Gardeo of Cornell. Umpire—Griffith of Beloit. Linesman—Kielley of Illinois.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—With Army and Princeton scouts in the stands, Notre Dame relied on simple plays today and beat Lombard college, 14—0, by the splendid running of Crowley and Miller, Notre Dame regulars, who were sent into the game after the second string had failed to cross the Lombard goal.

The vistors were never within dangerous scoring distance, but completed six of eleven short passes. Lamb was the individual star of the visitors.

After the Lombard team had held the second Notre Dame eleven for the first quarter, Rockne sent his regulars into the game, and Crowley and Miller hit the tackles for long gains that resulted in a score. The same paly repeated in the last period after much of the play had been in Notre Dame territory. Notre Dame gained eleven first downs to three for Lombard, and outgained the visitors from scrimmage, 3 to 1.

BRICKIES MEET CANADIANS AT SOCCER TODAY

The Bricklayers, who have a two point lead over the Canadians in the major soccer league, will clash with them in the feature match of today's series at Cicero avenue and Roosevelt road. Vic Neate, Carroll and Reid, last year with the Brickies, will face their former mates today, but the south siders have three fine new players in Watson, Berryman and Corbett.

Another good match is that between the Thistles and Sparta-Unions at 27th street and Kostner avenue. The last time they met was in a national cup match last year and the Scotchmen won after thirty minutes' extra time. The Swedish-Americans, who gave the Bricklayers a hard fight last Sunday, will tackle the champion Olympias at Riverview Park, and this looks like a tossup. Today's soccer schedule:

MAJOR LEAGUE.

Bricklayers and Canadian Club at Cicero and Roosevelt; Thistles and Sparta-Union at 27th and Kostner; Swedish-Americans and Olympia at Riverview.

DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Western Electric and North Shore at 22d and Kostner; Y. M. H. A. at Harvey; Chicago F. C. at Gary; Ulster United and British Legion at 70th and Drexel; McKinley Park and Indiana Harbor at 35th and Rockwell; Juro-Slave and Ravenswood at Sherman park.

MARYLAND PULLS A GRID SURPRISE BY BEATING PENN

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—University of Maryland furnished a football surprise today by defeating the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin Field, 7 to 0. Groves, of Maryland, who went into the last quarter in place of Easley at quarterback, drop-kicked a field goal from the fifteen yard line that gave the Marylanders their victory. Thirty-five thousand saw the game. The big star of the game was Capt. McQuade, fullback for Maryland. The ball was carried to within scoring distance largely by his terrific plunging. Lineup:

MARYLAND [3].		PENNSYLVANIA [0].
R. E.	Lanigan	Stephens
R. T.	Burger	Graf
R. G.	Hough	Popworth
C.	Pollock	Dern
L. G.	Hale	Kaufmann

Goals from field—Groves. Referee—Williams [Washington]. Umpire—McCarty [Germantown]. Linesman—Palmer [Colby].

Princeton Tigers Win from Johns Hopkins, 16 to 7

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Princeton's 1923 football season got away to a poor start this afternoon when the Tiger eleven defeated Johns Hopkins, 16 to 7, before 6,000 people. A drop kick by the reliable Ken Smith and touchdowns by Crum and Beattie accounted for Princeton's total, but not one of the scores was the result of a sustained attack. The visitors' line had no difficulty stopping the Tiger backs, and when both teams resorted to a kicking game Johns Hopkins had the better of it. Of Princeton's kicks, almost half a dozen attempts were blocked or booted into the opposing players.

LAPORTE BEATS LOWELL.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Laporte high school defeated Lowell in football here this afternoon, 13 to 0. Magnuson going over after a series of line plays, and Wells after catching a 20 yard pass.

HOW BELOIT SCORED AGAINST PURPLE

Capt. John McAuliffe, Beloit's left half back, is here seen on the receiving end of one of many passes he caught from Quarter Back Pat Dawson in the game with the Purple yesterday. He grabbed a half dozen tosses for substantial gains in the fourth quarter. This one netted forty yards for the Gold and brought them within booting distance of the goal. The Purple quarter back, Rae Lauder, is seen ahead of him, while Ole Magnuson, tackle, and Fred De Steffano, full back, formerly of Princeton, are bearing down on him from the rear. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CARDINAL ELEVEN TO FACE ROCHESTER PROS; BEARS PLAY HORLICKS

TWO powerful gridiron machines, presenting lines averaging 200 pounds and with stars of the first magnitude operating in the backfields, are slated to collide at Normal Park, Sixty-first street and Racine avenue, this afternoon when Chicago Cardinals, piloted by the peerless Paddy Driscoll, make their second National League championship stand of the season, opposing the famous squad from Rochester, N. Y. Kickoff at 2:30.

The invaders are fortified with many stars of leading eastern institutions, among the group being Ray, end, and Woods, tackle, of Cornell; Clark, end, Fordham; Lowery, giant tackle from Hobart; Matteo, tackle, Syracuse; Laird, fullback, and Argus, a halfback, from Colgate. Laird is generally regarded as the hardest hitting fullback in the league.

Tickets for the contest are on sale at Pete's Place, Fifty-fifth street and Racine avenue. Probable lineup:

CARDINALS.		ROCHESTER.
L. E.	Kiley	Ray
L. T.	Montgomery	Lowery
L. G.	Zeis	Woods
C.	McInerney	Smith
R. G.	Brennan	McShea
R. T.	Leonard	Matteo
R. E.	Anderson	Clark
Q. B.	Driscoll	Sheard
L. H.	King	Kasper
R. H.	Crarie	Argus
F. B.	Koehler	Laird

The Chicago Bears will play the Horlick Legion team in Racine this afternoon in another National Professional league game. A number of supporters will accompany the Bears.

Chick Harley's Great Record Earns Him Honor as Leading Buckeye Grid Hero

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.
ARTICLE IV.

Whenever anything pertaining to Ohio university football is mentioned, the name of Chick Harley is always emphasized and to him goes the honor of being the greatest player in the history of the gridiron game at the Buckeye institution.

It was not until Dr. John W. Wilce, the former Wisconsin player, took charge of the football situation at Columbus that Ohio State became a factor in middle west football. Before the coming of Dr. Wilce, Ohio State was represented on the chalk lined fields but its teams were not composed of really great warriors. Those elevens were seldom considered worthy contenders for the best in the section and as a result little attention was paid to the results of their games.

Wilce Successful.

Dr. Wilce was among the first to appreciate the possibilities of the new rules and he was quick to grasp the idea that plays must be planned to suit the material as players could not be expected to execute certain formations which demanded quick thinking and fast running. In other words, Dr. Wilce planned his attacks according to the ability, mental and physical, of his players.

From his inception as head football coach at Ohio State, Coach Wilce has been successful. His teams have won western conference championships and they have always been well coached offensively and defensively. The Buckeye mentor has always leaned toward the quick thinking, fast running player and in 1916 he sprung Chick Harley on the football world. Harley's very actions on the gridiron were enough to convince the most casual follower of the game that he was a football player of the first magnitude.

Had Football Instinct.

He was among the best the west has ever produced in executing the triple threat and any coach could not hope for a better player. Chick had that uncanny football instinct. He knew when to throw the ball on forward passes and he knew when to run. He sized up situations at a glance and was the type of player who thought it best to gain two yards on a forward pass play by running than to take any chances of hurling the oval and have an opponent intercept the toss.

Among his many qualifications was his ability to dodge. He used sort of a fade-away effort. He appeared to run into a tackle, when all of a sudden he would side-step and by use of the stiff arm would elude his tacklers. He was also very good on the pivot and on numbers of occasions wheeled out of tacklers' arms. It was not so much his speed that enabled him to make ground as it was his dodging ability.

In advancing the ball on rushes, he took openings quickly and ran with so much weight forward that he made a yard or two when opposition was met. He was clever in the interference and seldom missed his man. He realized the danger point in football was in the vicinity of the ball and one generally found him in the danger zone.

Best Kicker in Big Ten.

During his three years of conference football he was rated as one of the best kickers in the Big Ten. His punts were unusually high and well placed while his drop-kicking ability pulled Ohio State out of a few tight games and these results had something to do with the winning of the conference title. He was a cool, deliberate kicker who timed his efforts splendidly.

On defense he was equally effective. Like the smart football player, he guessed opponents' attacks and generally was mixed up in the play regardless of where it was sent. He caught punts almost perfectly and generally was moving forward at the time of the catch. In fact everything he did about football came naturally.

He was placed on the All American eleven of 1919 when his team lost to Illinois in the final game of the season. In fact his eleven met with the same fate when he played his last prep school struggle with East High of Columbus, but his general all-around ability combined with the respect he merited from Ohio State's opponents makes him the greatest player in Ohio State's football history.

Probably the nearest approach to Harley was Pete Stinchcomb, another brilliant player. Other sterling players who wore the colors of Ohio State were Powell, Raymond, Kittle, Barrington Trott, Huffman, and Spiers.

PURPLE'S BEAR RUNS WILD ON FIRST DAY'S WORK AT MASCOTTING

BRUIN FIRPO, the "Wild bear of the campus," won the popular decision over Northwestern university's student council president yesterday, then the new cub mascot all but slapped George Fry out at the Sigma Nu fraternity house in Evanston.

Fry, as head of the student body, had charge of the bear, and he and Ollie Nichols, head cheer leader, let Bruin out of the cage to slip the harness on him. Then the fun began. Fry came out with a badly gashed forehead after Football Capt. McElwain and a half dozen other gridiron players tackled the three months' old cub football fashion. It was taken to Lincoln park zoo, where its claws were clipped.

Touchdowns—Wood [2], Smythe. Points from try after touchdowns—Garbisch [2]. Referee—H. B. Hennage, Dartmouth. Umpire—L. H. Andrews, Yale. Head linesman—H. Hastings, Cornell. Field judge—L. G. Eisenberger, W. & J. Time of periods—15 minutes each.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Army's football team defeated University of Florida, 20 to 0, today in a hard fought game. All three of Army's touchdowns were gained only after terrific driving at the line.

Army tried every weapon of attack in the first half, but failed all along the line. Twice Garbisch missed field goal attempts. Nor could Army get its overhead game successfully launched until well along in the third period. It was this method which gave them their first opportunity to score, however, and a blocked punt, on which Goodman of the Army fell on Florida's 5 yard line, led to their second score in the same period.

"Tiny" Hewitt, former Pittsburg star, dashed thirty-five yards through the Florida team and put the ball in line for Army's last touchdown in the final quarter. But the "Gators" defense was so strong even at the point, that Army took four terrific plunges to carry the ball the necessary three yards to a touchdown.

NAVY'S LINE PLAY BEATS DICKINSON

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Gaining more regularly on straight line plays and thrusts outside of the tackles, the Naval Academy won today from the hard fighting Dickinson eleven, 13 to 7. Through a brilliant run, Rupp, the Navy quarterback, scored for the visitors in the second quarter and made possible their one point lead at the end of the first half. The lineup:

NAVY [13].		DICKINSON [7].
R. E.	Stolz	Logan
R. T.	Walker	Behman
R. G.	Shewell	McQuade, Wier

Touchdowns—Steger [2], Hornstein, Parker. Points after touchdowns—Kipke [2], Hunt. Goal from field—Kipke. Referee—Costello [Georgetown]. Umpire—Kennedy [Chicago]. Head linesman—Olds [Michigan Normal].

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Brilliant open field running by Steger and Hornstein was primarily responsible for Michigan's easy victory over Case here today, 36 to 0. Taking the ball on his own 40 yard line in the second quarter Steger made a wide run around the right side, and dashed through a broken field 60 yards for a touchdown.

A few minutes later Uteritz, standing on his 40 yard line, passed to Steger on the 30 yard line, and after straight-arming five Case men, the halfback made a brilliant run to the goal line. Hornstein, who was sent in for Steger at the opening of the second half, ran back the Case kickoff to the Case 40 yard line. After a line buck he again took the ball and dashed through a broken field for a touchdown.

GOPHERS GET A SCARE, BUT BEAT AMES BY 20 TO 17

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Minnesota football fans, jubilant over the prospects this year, received a sad shock on Northrop field this afternoon in the first game of the season when the Gophers barely nosed a 20 to 17 victory over Ames in a most exciting battle. Using an aerial attack successfully throughout the game, Ames held the outcome in doubt until the final whistle.

After the Gophers counted their first score in the first period on a recovered fumble, Ames uncovered a baffling pass attack. Four successive passes, thrown accurately by Roberts and caught just as well by the Behm brothers, Norton and John, put Ames in even footing in the second quarter, Anderson scoring the touchdown.

Touchdowns — Lidberg [2], Eklund, J. Behm, Anderson. Goals from touchdowns—Reykenson [2]. Roberts [2]. Goal from field—Roberts. Referee—Frank Birch, Earlham. Umpire—A. Haines, Yale. Head linesman—F. H. Nichols, Oberlin. Field judge—H. H. Cruz, Nebraska.

PURDUE'S FIRST BATTLE A ROMP BY 39-0 SCORE

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 7.—[Special.]—Purdue defeated Wilmington college today, 39 to 0, in the opening contest of the season for both teams. The game was featured by long runs by Dahr, Spradling, Carlson, and Gladders, and numerous penalties against Purdue. The Boilermakers were the recipients of three or four fifteen yard penalties. Lineup:

GOPHERS GET A SCARE, BUT BEAT AMES BY 20 TO 17

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Minnesota football fans, jubilant over the prospects this year, received a sad shock on Northrop field this afternoon in the first game of the season when the Gophers barely eked a 20 to 17 victory over Ames in a most exciting battle. Using an aerial attack successfully throughout the game, Ames held the outcome in doubt until the final whistle.

After the Gophers counted their first score in the first period on a recovered fumble, Ames uncovered a baffling pass attack. Four successive passes, thrown accurately by Roberts and caught just as well by the Behm brothers, Norton and John, put Ames on even footing in the second quarter, Anderson scoring the touchdown.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—By sheer weight Wisconsin defeated Coe college, 7 to 3, here this afternoon, but the victory brought no comfort to Wisconsin.

The first quarter went scoreless, with neither goal in danger. In the second quarter Peirce, Coe quarter back, drop kicked from the 45 yard line. The score remained 3 to 0 at the end of the half, which consisted entirely of line plays. The air attack was not opened until the last quarter.

In the third quarter Wisconsin used its weight and marched steadily down the field with straight line plays. With one foot to go Harris went over, and Capt. Below kicked goal. Coe presented a finished football machine, and in spite of lack of weight kept Wisconsin guessing through superior playing.

HAWKEYES RIP UP SIWASH, 44 TO 3

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Flashing into holes at tackle, skirting the end, and completing long passes to Hancock and Fisher, Parkin started an offense against Knox that won for Iowa, 44 to 3, here today. Miller, Fry, and Hancock were the other long gain getters, dodging through holes made by the heavy Hawkeye forward wall. Coach Jones sprung the unexpected, both in using Parkin, who has not been in the lineup before this season, even in scrimmage, and in drawing Hancock from right end to be one of the principal ground gainers.

To Readers of The Tribune

Here you see the most scientific apparatus for treating Falling Hair, Baldness, Seborrhoea, and other scalp ailments that is known to present day Science.

Application brings about increased activity of the blood vessels, hastens the elimination of dead tissue and the growth of new, the germs causing baldness are killed, and conditions made more favorable for a renewed growth of the hair papillae.

No matter how severe the case, genuine improvement is assured when my treatments are followed out as directed.

In connection with the above treatments we give hot oil treatments and scientific shampoos when required.

To acquaint readers with this wonderful method of treating the hair I am making a special offer during the month of October of one-half the regular rate.

Penn Staters Defeat North Carolina, 16-0

State College, Pa., Oct. 6.—Pennsylvania State college was forced to fight all the way against North Carolina State college today, the local eleven winning by 16 to 0. The visitors played a stubborn defensive game at every stage. Harry Wilson and Mike Palm were the principal ground gainers for Penn State, while Capt. Bedenk played a great game in the line.

MAROONS HANG UP SECOND GRID VICTORY OF 1923

Indiana Loses to DePauw; First 'Big 10' Team Defeated

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Indiana lost the lid lifter game of the season, 3 to 0, to Depauw before a crowd of 5,000 here today. Depauw had the ball in Indiana territory practically all of the time in the opening quarter. Indians outplayed the visitors in the other periods, but lacked the punch to win. Both sides tried the pass time and again, but only a few were completed. Depauw gained 25 yards in the final pass on the aerial attack and 30 yards on two end runs, putting the ball on Indiana's 20 yard line, when Krushmer made a drop kick in the final quarter for the only score. It was Depauw's first victory over Indiana since 1896.

BUCKEYES SHOW CLASS, BEATING WESLEYAN 24-7

Columbus, O., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Playing the courageous, intelligent football of 1920, when it won its last Western conference championship, Ohio State this afternoon defeated Ohio Wesleyan, 24 to 7, in the opening game of the season.

Four minutes after play Wesleyan appalled 30,000 fans when the visitors, by affording Sandy Pearce excellent interference, enabled him to dash 50 yards after receiving a punt for touchdown, and Tackle Evans kicked the point after touchdown. Lineup:

100 AND 98 YARD RUNS FOR TOUCHDOWNS TOP SYRACUSE'S 61-3 WIN

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Syracuse established what is believed to be a record for long runs in the first quarter of its 61 to 3 victory over William and Mary here this afternoon.

Bowman, Syracuse half back, taking the opening kickoff on his goal line, sprinted 100 yards to a touchdown. Less than five minutes later Foley, a sub, rushed into the backfield, took a kickoff on his 2 yard line, and ran the 98 yards to a touchdown.

Speed accounted for practically all of the touchdowns. William and Mary's effort in the scoring column was confined to a drop kick from the 38 yard line by Matsu.

Lake Forest Academy Beats St. Joseph's College

Lake Forest academy defeated St. Joseph's college at Lake Forest, 40 to 0. Consistent line plunging marked the game, St. Joseph's playing better football than the score would indicate. Several long passes by Lake Forest helped to run up the score.

LANE TECH, 39; MAINE, 0.

Lane Tech ended its string of practice games yesterday by smothering Maine Township High at Des Plaines 39 to 0. Puckiewartz, Capt. Babusky, and Rane did most of the scoring for the victors and punctured the line at will. A good aerial attack also gained much ground. Maine had little success at driving through the Lane line, and resorted to passing, with little better success.

ST. VIATOR WINS.

Bourbonnais, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Jack Crangle's St. Viator eleven ran rough shod over Lewis Institute of Chicago here today, piling up an 88 to 0 victory.

HARVARD ROMPS ON RHODE ISLAND, WINNING, 35 TO 0

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Rhode Island State college offered no real opposition to Harvard today in the Crimson's opening game. After scoring two touchdowns in less than four minutes, the Harvard coaches began to send in substitute players until they eventually used the entire squad with the exception of the cripples. In winning, 35 to 0, the Crimson made five touchdowns, adding a point for each one, and at no time was its goal in danger.

"Y" COLLEGE IS VICTOR IN GAME AT WHEATON, 19-0

Showing strength both in offense and defense, Chicago Y. M. C. A. college defeated Wheaton, 19 to 0, at Washington park yesterday. Fedosky, Meyers and Edgren starred in the backfield. Bill Rowe, star tackle of the Chicago outfit, was carried off the field with a broken leg. Capt. Nelson, end, and McGraw, "Y" half, were kept out of the battle on account of injuries. Lineup:

AGGIES TROUNCE LAKE FOREST

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Michigan Aggies were victors in the first game in their new stadium today, defeating Lake Forest university, 71 to 6.

Lake Forest scored their six points in the third quarter. After the kickoff Johnson circled left for 25 yards and Folgate added another 5, placing the ball in midfield. Lake Forest worked a triple pass in which Jackson ran 15 yards before being downed. The Aggies were penalized 5 yards, giving Lake Forest first down on the Aggies' 32 yard line. A 30 yard pass, Bell to Jackson, carried the ball to the Aggies' 3 yard line, and Bell went over for a touchdown, Jackson failing to drop kick goal. Lineup:

Kenneth Rouse, Lindblom quarter back, will probably begin practice in the art of watching where he throws the ball in the back field. Yesterday at Highland Park he took the pigskin from the center, turned, and tossed it into midair. Jim Robbins scooping it up and prancing twenty-five yards for the touchdown which insured Deerfield a 14 to 6 victory over the south siders.

Aside from that one bobble, the city and suburban eleven struggled on about equal terms, each earning a touchdown, the Blue and White by shattering the Lindblom line in the first five minutes of play, and Coach E. L. Moore's charges by following through an aerial attack in the third period.

Deerfield Scores Early.

Heidorn missed his kick for the point after the touchdown, while Full Back Joe Proctor's toe added two points for the team of Coach J. L. Rothacker.

For five minutes after hostilities opened, it looked as though Lindblom was in for a severe licking. Its line yielded readily before the plunging of Dyer, Proctor, and Dever, and before the fans were well settled in their seats Dyer, on a cross buck, had smashed through for a touchdown. During the period Lindblom never advanced the ball into Deerfield territory.

The second quarter was one of line hitting, in which honors were shared equally. Borelli, Heidorn, and Cornely made some substantial gains for Lindblom, but could not near the goal.

Leads by 140 Count.

At the outset of the second half, Rouse's eyesight went bad as related and Deerfield was soon boosting a 14 to 0 margin. Not to be downed that easily, the city leaguers began passing, and one great aerial assault, Rouse to Marks, placed the ball ten yards from the white line. Walter Yates charged through for the touchdown on the second play.

Lindbloom made a heroic effort to even matters in the final period, but could only get near enough to attempt a place kick. Heidorn's attempt was blocked. During the quarter it seemed that every pass attempted by Lindblom fell into the arms of Robbins, Deerfield end.

Despite the defeat which came tumbling down on it, Coach Moore's machine showed power which should advance it far in the city league race.

Lineup:

LINDBLOM (6).		DEERFIELD (14).

Touchdowns—Dyer, Proctor, Yates. Points after touchdowns—Proctor (3). Referee—Eichler (Michigan). Umpire—Gross (Illinois).

SCHURZ HIGH LOSES.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The Northwestern Military and Naval academy football team defeated the team from Carl Schurz High school, Chicago, 3 to 2, in a bitterly contested game. Academy scored in the first quarter when Falk booted the oval over the Schurz goal. In the second quarter Johnson, left half for Carl Schurz, had his collar bone broken. In the second quarter a long forward pass put the ball on the academy 6 yard line, but the enemy held for downs. Several plays later, however, Falk, academy tackle, fumbled the ball behind his own goal line, scoring a safety for Schurz. In the last minute Schurz reached Northwestern's 10 yard line, but a field goal try failed.

MORGAN PARK LOSES.

Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Ottawa High school defeated Morgan Park High here today, 27 to 0. Captain Brown of the locals starred with long open field runs. Morgan and Edwards featured the visitors' attack. Henry, substitute half back, intercepted a forward pass in the last minute and ran sixty-two yards through the Chicago team for a touchdown.

LOUISVILLE, 74; AUSTIN, 0.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Scoring at will and running circles around their opponents, Male high eleven today crushed Austin high of Chicago, 74 to 0, despite the efforts of Capt Gleason of the invaders to stem the tide of touchdowns. Paul Morris Marks of the local eleven scored five touchdowns.

EMERSON, 18; PARKER, 0.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Emerson High of Gary, last year's state gold champions, defeated Parker High, 18 to 0, champions of Chicago, 18-0, here this afternoon. Emerson secured on touchdown in each of the first three quarters.

MOMENCE, 19; WALLER, 3.

Momence, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—The Momence High school football team defeated Waller High of Chicago, 19 to 3. The Waller team was clearly outclassed, almost every player of the locals. The feature of the game was Ward's interception of a forward pass and a 90 yard run for a touchdown.

MOOSEHEART, 26; MARSHALL, 0.

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Moosehart defeated Marshall high school of Chicago, 26 to 0, using long forward passes for four touchdowns.

DE LA SALLE IS WINNER IN LEAGUE OPENING

De La Salle, joint holder of the Catholic High School league title, yesterday made an auspicious entry into the 1923 race by defeating St. Philips, newcomer on the circuit which last Saturday upset DePaul academy, by the score of 25 to 0 at Normal Park.

Taylor, the plunging De La Salle back, accounted for two touchdowns and later was replaced by McDonald, who also made substantial gains. White, a half back, scored the remaining counter for the victors, and Cowkins gave the jeers their points. St. Phillips' backs could make little progress through the heavy De La Salle line. Sweeney played a good game for the losers at half, while Hoolahan at quarter and Drumm at half did good work for the winners. Lineup:

DE LA SALLE (25).		ST. PHILIPS (0).
R. E.	Mackie, Beiser	Ryan
R. T.		Murray
R. G.	Behnke, Kelly	Keegan, Workan

PROVISO WINS LEAGUE TILT FROM LA GRANGE

Proviso Township high, which fell before Morton in its first suburban league game a week ago, yesterday staged a whirlwind comeback and downed La Grange, 28 to 7, on the Maywood field, the losers being helpless after scoring a touchdown in the first five minutes.

Halfback Williams carried the oval over for La Grange by a 30 yard dash, but thereafter the Proviso backs, with long end runs and accurate forward passes, were masters of the combat. Follett, right half, scored two touchdowns, and Rau and Berry one each. Bullard kicked for one point after touchdown, and a pass, Rau to Merritt, added another point. Lineup:

PROVISO (28).		LA GRANGE (7).

EXPECT RECORD CROWD TO SEE PAPYRUS RACE

BY FRENCH LANE.

Racing in America will reach a new high spot in attendance and gate receipts when the English derby winner, Papyrus, meets Zev, America's greatest 3 year old, at Belmont park track in New York on Saturday, Oct. 20.

A crowd of more than 100,000, yes, probably upwards of 125,000 may be packed into August Belmont's beautiful wooded racing grounds.

This huge throng, which may be almost twice as large as any that has ever before witnessed a turf event in America, will pay close to a half million dollars to see the running of the race. Added to the thousands of dollars which are sure to go into the hands of ticket scalpers—there are only 23,000 reserved seats in Belmont park—the race will take rank with the three or four most costly sporting events the American public has ever been called upon to support.

What a demand there will be for those 3,000 inclosure reserved seats which will go on sale at $22 each! And what a price the New York scalper could get for them!

Almost as great will be the clamor for the 20,000 reserved grand stand seats quoted to sell at $11 each.

It should be possible to get on an average of $100 for every one of the 3,000 choice inclosure seats, one New York ticket speculator has already estimated. The 20,000 grand stand seats might average $25 or more perhaps, this same scalper believes.

Belmont park has housed few crowds of more than 50,000 and its capacity has never really been taxed. But it has been estimated that fully 100,000, including 75,000 standing, can see parts of the great international race. Standing room on the grand stand side of the track will sell at $5 a ticket, while a general admission charge of $1.50 will prevail for a spot on which to stand on the infield.

PAPYRUS BEGINS TO LOOK LIKE REAL HOSS AS HE WORKS A MILE

New York, Oct. 6.—Papyrus, English derby winner, which will race the American champion, Zev, in the $100,000 match at Belmont park in two weeks, today showed his first flash of speed since arriving in this country. American trainers who watched the work were impressed with his form.

Coming to the end of a mile workout, Papyrus stepped the final quarter in :24 flat, without effort and without urging. The colt settled down to a long, rhythmical stride that convinced critics he is a formidable distance runner. The time for the mile was 1:44⅘.

Zev had a long gallop of a mile and a quarter under restraint in 2.13.

DUBUQUE ELEVEN SMASHES DE PAUL

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Dubuque university gridders outclassed De Paul here today, 55 to 0. Dubuque backs shattered the visitors' front at will and used forward passes successfully. Dubuque scored its first touchdown two minutes after the game started, and had the ball in enemy territory almost all the time. Lineup:

DE PAUL (0).		DUBUQUE (55).
R. E.	Raymond	Klein
R. T.	Thoms, Klassen	Gluzinkin
R. G.	Callahan, Bulles	Wolfe
C.	Meers	Sachnis

Dunn of Marquette Stars as St. Mary's Is Beaten, 33-0

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6.—Three touchdowns, and five or six sensational runs by Captain Red Dunn featured Marquette University's 33 to 0 win over St. Mary's College, Winona, Minn., here today.

CANADIANS BEAT CHICAGO TEAM AT LACROSSE, 6 TO 5

The crack Lacrosse team of Strath..., Ont., four time winner of the West Ontario District championship, defeated the Chicago team composed of players from the Illinois A. C. and Canadian club, 6 goals to 5, at De Paul field yesterday. The game was played ahead of the De Paul-St. Rita football match, and the speed and action of lacrosse appeared to please many of the crowd.

The home team, considering its lack of practice, did remarkably well against the speedy boys from the Dominion, the defense being especially good. By reason of the football match the final period was cut short to 10 minutes.

Sarnia scored twice in the opening period, Kerr and Glentz counting with Graham netted the ball for Chicago. Chicago did its best playing in the second period, Henke, Graham, and Tadd scoring, while Glentz counted for Sarnia. With Chicago leading 4 to 3, the Canucks attacked smartly in the final session and Glentz getting a goal from McGuire scored with a shot.

The visitors took the lead three minutes later when from a scrimmage around the Chicago goal, a lone defense man turned the ball into the net. Karn added another goal putting the visitors in the lead 6 to 4, but nearing the finish the Chicago team attacked and Scott scored from close range. The lineup:

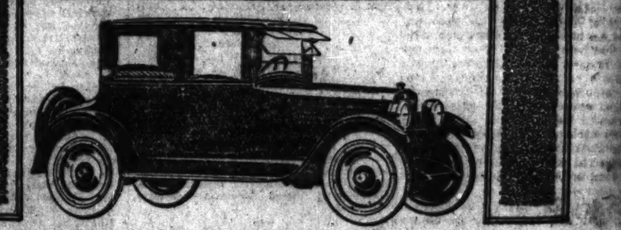
SARNIA (6).		CHICAGO (5).
Atkinson	Goal
Wilson	Point
Jackson	Cover point
McAllister	Third defense
Geary	Second defense
Howard	First defense
McGuire	Center
Fry, Tinsley	Third home
Perry	Second home
Karn	First home
Kerr, Zeil	Outside home
Glentz	Inside home

Goals—First period: Kerr, Glentz. Second period: Glentz, Henke. Third period: Glentz, Karn, Graham. Referee—Capt. F. E. Guest for British Army; J. G. Conley for Meadowbrook. Scorer—Meadowbrook: Belmont [3], Hitchcock [3], Strawbridge [2], Milburn [1], American Navy [1], British Army: Melville [7], Leaf, Hurndall.

Score by periods:

Meadow Brook	012	121	74—17
British Army	211	120	11—9

Time of periods—7½ minutes each.



Rickenbacker

A CAR WORTHY OF ITS NAME

Luxurious—

Not only in terms of bodily comfort, but in that which is even more enjoyable—mental tranquility.

Rickenbacker enclosed cars represent the longest and broadest experience in the building of fine automobile bodies.

B. F. Everitt, President and General Manager of Rickenbacker Motor Company, was the pioneer body builder of this industry.

To pass his critical inspection and recieve his approval, a body must be a masterpiece of design, construction, finish and interior appointments.

Rickenbacker cars are strikingly beautiful in appearance and experienced motorists frequently exclaim: "This is the most comfortable car I have ever ridden in."

But that isn't all—nor is it sufficient.

Every vibration—every sound—is exaggerated in a closed car.

Prior to the discovery that those "Periods of Vibration" to which all cars were formerly subject could be eliminated, buyers of the best cars were resigned to this condition.

So, while the seating might be ideal, the upholstering perfect, still there was a mental and nervous discomfort due to vibratory sounds in most cars—especially closed types.

"Tandem Fly Wheels"—a Rickenbacker invention—renders this car free from any period of vibration.

Until Rickenbacker engineers called attention to this most destructive force in a motor car, others had been singularly silent about "Periods of Vibration."

Again: Rickenbacker found that impurities in the air were accountable for excessive carbon in cylinders. Eradicated that by the "Air-cleaner."

And now—Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes add that degree of safety and security that result in a mental tranquility such as you have never previously enjoyed.

A demonstration is a revelation.

See—ride in—drive this new Rickenbacker Six.

The car itself answers all questions—most convincingly.

Today—won't be a minute too soon.

AMERICAN POLO TITLE RETURNED TO UNCLE SAM

Westbury, N. Y., Oct. 6.—[By Associated Press.]—The open polo championship of the United States came home today.

Undefended by the "Four Horsemen of the Argentine," the title they won last year was stubbornly contested for by the British army team, which went down to a glorious defeat before the Meadowbrook club, 12 goals to 9.

The teams went into the last period tied at 6 goals each, and as the lead wavered, first to the British and then to the Americans, spectators stood up in their boxes and cheered wildly.

In that last period Melville of the British army first scored a leading goal, but in less than a minute Hitchcock had tied the score. Then Milburn with one of his typical long drives, sent Meadowbrook into the lead. Hitchcock and Belmont then cooperated in making the American score 12.

R. E. Strawbridge Jr. was Meadowbrook's star. He always rode the ball, he constantly broke up the British attack, and time and time again he fed the ball to Raymond Belmont at No. 1.

Lineup:

MEADOWBK. [12].		BRIT. ARMY [9].
R. Belmont	No. 1	T. F. Melville
M. Hitchcock	No. 2	J. S. Leaf
H. Strawbridge Jr.	No. 3	F. Hurndall
D. Milburn	Back	V. Lockett

Umpires—Capt. F. E. Guest for British Army, J. G. Conley for Meadowbrook. Scorer—Meadowbrook: Belmont [3], Hitchcock [3], Strawbridge [2], Milburn [1], American Navy [1], British Army: Melville [7], Leaf, Hurndall.

Score by periods:

Meadow Brook	012	121	74—17
British Army	211	120	11—9

Time of periods—7½ minutes each.

COLD WEATHER ENDS OUTDOOR BOXING SEASON

Jim Mullen, matchmaker of the Aurora A. C. announced yesterday that he had closed the outdoor boxing season at his arena with the Sammy Mandell and Eddie Wagner bout of last Friday. The present chilly weather is given as the reason.

The star attraction Mullen had planned for next week between Harold Smith, local bantamweight, and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, at the open arena has been cancelled, owing to the fact that both boxers are on the sick list. Taylor's right hand, which was broken in his bout with Panche Villa at Hawthorne on Sept. 3, still is bothering him, while Smith received a sprained knee in his bout with Danny Lee at New York on Friday night.

The Smith-Taylor bout probably will be staged at one of the nearby suburban clubs before the first of the year.

Eddie (Kid) Warner and Joe Jackson, the Philadelphia boxers, who appear at Aurora Friday night, will leave for the Quaker city today.

Local fight fans along the Stetic rialto were surprised to hear that Charlie White, local lightweight and a contender for Bennie Leonard's title, had been knocked out by Pal Moran. This spills White's chances for a crack at the champion and may mark the end of Charlie's long career.

AUTO DRIVERS COMPETE TODAY AT ROBY TRACK

Leading dirt track drivers of the middle west, piloting fast cars, will engage in a series of five races at Roby speedway, 108th street and Indianapolis avenue, today.

There will be two ten and one twenty mile events, feating both light and heavy cars. A five mile special has been added to the program to take care of the pilots who do not qualify for the longer race. A tire changing event in which the cars must circle the track once, retire to the pits, and go on for another lap will be the fifth race.

Ethan Wenneston, the "flivver king," probably will have his toughest competition of the season, Sam Davis, Nichols, Curley, and Nonneman being conceded a chance in the light car event. Cliff Woodbury, driving a Frontenac, and Al Cotey, with a Peugot, are the class of the open events. The races will start at 2:30.

DEVER CUP GAME TO ST. MICHAELS NINE, SCORE 4-3

St. Michaels downed the Belle Plaines, 4 to 3, yesterday in a Mayor Dever cup race battle at St. Michael park. Irvin held the Plaines safe until the ninth when they scored two runs.

Fast Field in City Handball Title Battle

Play starts Oct. 15 for the handball championship of Chicago. The field this year is one of the strongest ever entered, comprising the Illinois A. C., Chicago A. A., Hamilton club, Union league club, Wallace, Kimrock A. C., M. C. A., and Chicago fire department clubs. Twelve players are entered from eight organizations and three sets of games will be played every Monday and Thursday nights.

PYOTTS, 19; NORMALS, 1.

Pitcher Baisley hard and taking advantage of his opponents loose fielding, the Pyotts chalked their lead in the city semi-pro championship, winning, 19 to 1, at Schurz park yesterday. Bernels relieved Baisley in the sixth after the Pyotts had scored six of their eight runs in that inning. Bernels was hit over the heart by a batted ball in the same inning and had to be carried from the field.

AMERICAN POLO TITLE RETURNED TO UNCLE SAM

Westbury, N. Y., Oct. 6.—[By Associated Press.]—The open polo championship of the United States came home today.

Undefeated by the "Four Horsemen of the Argentine," the title they won last year was stubbornly contested for by the British army team, which went down to a glorious defeat before the Meadowbrook club, 12 goals to 9.

The teams went into the last period tied at 4 goals each, and as the lead was served, first to the British and then to the Americans, spectators stood up in their boxes and cheered wildly.

It was that last period Melville of the British army first scored a leading goal, but in less than a minute Hitchcock had tied the score. Then Milburn with one of his typical long drives, sent Meadowbrook into the lead. Hitchcock and Belmont then cooperated in making the American score 12.

R. E. Strowbridge Jr. was Meadowbrook's star. He always rode the ball, he constantly broke up the British attack, and time and time again he fed the ball to Raymond Belmont at No. 1.

Lineup:

MEADOWBR. [12].	BRIT. ARMY [9].
R. Belmont	No. 1 ..... T. F. Melville
T. Hitchcock	No. 2 ..... J. S. Leat
E. Strowbridge Jr.	No. 3 ..... F. Hurndall
D. Milburn	Back ..... V. Lockett

Umpire—Col. P. E. Guest for British Army, J. C. Cosby for Meadowbrook. Scorer—Meadowbrook: Belmont [3], Hitchcock [3], Strowbridge [2], Milburn [1]. American [6]. [illegible]. British Army: Melville [7]. Goal: Hurndall.

Score by periods:

Meadow Brook	013	121	74—12
British Army	211	120	11— 9

Time of periods—7½ minutes each.

COLD WEATHER ENDS OUTDOOR BOXING SEASON

Jim Mullen, matchmaker of the Illinois A. C. announced yesterday that he had closed the outdoor boxing season at his arena with the Sammy Mandell and Eddie Wagner bout on last Friday. The present chilly weather is given as the reason.

The star attraction Mullen had planned for next week between Harold Smith, local bantamweight, and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, at the open arena has been cancelled, owing to the fact that both boxers are on the sick list. Taylor's right hand, which was broken in his bout with Pancho Villa at Hawthorne on Sept. 9, still is bothering him, while Smith received a sprained knee in his bout with Danny Lee at New York on Friday night.

The Smith-Taylor bout probably will be staged at one of the nearby suburban clubs before the first of the year.

Eddie [Kid] Wagner and Joe Jackson, the Philadelphia boxers, who appear at Aurora Friday night, will leave for the Quaker city today.

Local fight fans along the Italic rialto were surprised to hear that Charlie White, local lightweight and a contender for Bennie Leonard's title, had been knocked out by Pal Moran. This kills White's chances for a crack at the champion and may mark the end of Charlie's long career.

AUTO DRIVERS COMPETE TODAY AT ROBY TRACK

Leading dirt track drivers of the middle west, piloting fast cars, will engage in a series of five races at Roby speedway, 108th street and Indianapolis avenue, today.

There will be two ten and one twenty mile events, feating both light and heavy cars. A five mile special has been added to the program to take care of the pilots who do not qualify for the longer race. A tire changing event in which the cars must circle the track once, come to the pits, and go on for another lap will be the fifth race.

Eddie Wenneston, the "flivver king," probably will have his toughest competition of the season, Sam Davis, Nichols, Curley, and Nonneman being entered a chance in the light car event. Cliff Woodbury, driving a Fronty-Ford, and Al Cotey, with a Peugot, in the class of the open events. The races will start at 2:30.

Coolidge Favors Ike Waltons' Plan for Mississippi Valley Game Preserve

The energetic fight being waged by the Izaak Walton League of America to prevent the draining of the upper Mississippi river valley bottom lands and to have the huge tract taken over by the government as a fish and game reserve, has gained notice of the officials in Washington.

Will H. Dilg, president and founder of the Walton league, held a conference with President Calvin Coolidge in Washington last week and has gained the support of the chief executive in the movement to have the government take over that 300 miles of river bottom between Lake Pepin, Minn., and Rock Island, Ill., for a national reserve.

Heart of Wild Life.

"This region represents the heart of the wild life in the whole of the Mississippi river valley and should not be destroyed," was the plea President Dilg made to the President. "The district is the home of the warm water food and game fishes and its destruction by drainage would mean the rapid extinction of the fishes, especially the black bass."

At the close of his interview with President Dilg, the chief executive, who is deeply interested in outdoor life and outdoor America, declared that he was in favor of legislation to have the 300 mile tract taken over as a reserve by the government.

Dilg Is Confident.

President Dilg is sure that the project will go through. "Already I have received voluntary letters from more than forty congressmen and ten senators stating that they are favorable to such legislation," Mr. Dilg said. "Among these letters is one from Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, who declared that he will bend every effort to have the tract adopted as a reserve.

"We have a number of government officials as members of the Washington chapter of the league, among these are Secretary Herbert Hoover of the department of commerce, Elliott Wadsworth, assistant secretary of the treasury, Thomas O'Malley, of the bureau of fisheries, Maj. Gen. Lansing H. Beach, chief engineer of the United States army, and Maj. Gen. Taylor."

Every one of the 500 chapters of the league throughout the country is waging a battle to have the district made into a reserve, and the league has high hopes of having legislation passed in favor of the reserve tract by early summer.

Headquarters of the Walton league have been re-established at 536 Lake Shore drive, where memberships to the league can be obtained. Subscriptions to the magazine also can be made at headquarters.

Woods and Waters — BOB BECKER

WHEN THE GREENHEADS COME SWINGING IN.

There may be prettier sights to stir the bird hunter's fancy, but to watch a flock of mallards circling 'round a bunch of decoys, to see them pitch in and then get their medicine—well, you have to go some to beat that kind of a picture.

With October knocking at the door it means that soon the weather man will slip us some cold weather and then down will come the waterfowl from the north. This spells green head shootin' for a fare thee well. They're wary cusses, but with decoys, especially live callers, a fellow doesn't have much trouble in bringing them in if the blind is well made. Another thing a hunter has to keep in mind or learn, if he is just starting in the shooting game, is to keep quiet when the wily greenheads begin to circle around a blind. We had a chance to prove this again just a few weeks ago when we were parked in a rice bed waiting for some birds to show up. Naturally one gets keyed up when a flock of mallards appear on the horizon. The order is to keep down and to not move a muscle. O, it's a glorious sound to hear the whistle of wings overhead while the callers hand out a seductive line of talk to those birds on the wing. As the flock swings behind the blind the temptation is to turn around to see if they are going to keep right on going or circle back. This is where the beans can be spilled mighty easily. Mr. Mallard has good eyes and if he sees suspicious movements in the bushes, it's good-by ducks. So the hunter has to keep quiet, and usually he is rewarded for his patience by seeing his flock swing 'round to come up against the wind and then down they will pitch to the decoys. You know the next step in this business of bringing home the greenheads—cut loose with the scatter guns and the circus is on.

By the way, autumn is the time to plant wild rice in your marsh or pond. It's surprising how a small bed of this will bring in the ducks, and once you get it going the stuff runs wild and will cover a large area. There is no use talking, ducks have to eat, and where there are eats, there they will go and stay. If you have some patches of cattails in the marsh be sure and plant some rice near them and then you will be sitting pretty. The cattails make good cover for a blind, while right in front of them will be the lure to bring in the ducks.

It's surprising how much shot those husky mallards can get away with. Some days it seems as if they just thrive on number fives and sixes. A few weeks ago we saw a chap paste some fat, black mallards with enough lead to sink a boat, so it seemed, and of the five hit four got away and may be going yet. And, when wounded, they are pretty crafty on the getaway, too. Into the shore Mr. Mallard goes to hide in the long grass or under a log. That means a tiresome hunt and often an unsuccessful one. We have found that the only successful way to bag the maximum amount of cripples is to stand up in the blind and shoot as fast as we can at the swimming birds until they are killed. Sometimes that means shooting as soon as they hit the water. It takes lots of shells, but the true sportsman doesn't think of that item when it comes to landing wounded birds. For getting the cripples we are always wishing for a far reaching, say a 32 inch barreled, shotgun [full choke] that would make an absolutely solid pattern. This would mean no crippled bird could "sift" through one shot.

KIRKWOOD, HAGEN TIE FOR FIRST IN WICHITA TOURNEY

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 6.—Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood, the former Australian, who have been exhibition partners for two seasons, partnered first prize in the second annual midcontinent of the Wichita Country club. They had totals of 279 and split the purse.

William Mehlhorn, the Chicago boy, now with the North Hills club of St. Louis, who won the event last year, finished third with 280. Eddie Loos of the Lake Shore club of Chicago, with runs of 75 and 72 today, was fourth with 282, and Bill Creavey of the Hillcrest club of Kansas City fifth with 282.

Mehlhorn Falters.

Mehlhorn with a fine card of 68 this morning led the field with a total of 206 but took 35 on the out round in the afternoon and was passed by Kirkwood, who had 38. Hagen, who had a 70 in the morning, tied with Bill Creavey, who had 63, each having 211 at the luncheon interval, but the former British open champion came back with a superlative 65 in the afternoon, while Creavey took 71.

Kirkwood shot 72 in the morning, which put him in second place with 207 and duplicated this card in the afternoon.

Other High Scores.

Others who finished well up were: Ed Murphy, St. Joseph, Mo., 290; John Black, Wichita, 294; Mike Brady, Detroit, 295; J. Kennedy, Tulsa [amateur], 297; W. Bucher, Kansas City [amateur], 298.

EXCEPTIONAL RIDING COMFORT

The new Dodge Brothers Touring Car is exceptionally comfortable to ride in; it is good looking; and it incorporates many important refinements of detail.

The body is longer and lower, eliminating side sway, affording more leg room, and enhancing the beauty of the lines.

Deeper seats, long underslung rear springs and longer front springs, give ample assurance that cross country touring can be enjoyed without weariness or fatigue.

Yet with these improvements, and many others, it is still fundamentally the same car—built on the same chassis and powered by the same sturdy engine.

The price is $885 f. o. b. Detroit, $985 delivered.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Batting rallies brought the White Sox a double victory over the Cleveland Indians here today, the Pale Hose copping the opening game, 6 to 3, with a four run attack in the ninth inning, while in the second contest they put over six runs in the fourth session and won, 7 to 6, in a battle halted after the eighth inning by darkness. The twin defeat shoved the Indians down into third place in the league standing.

Willie Kamm and Maurice Archdeacon, two boys who cost the Comiskey outfit a pretty penny for their contracts, lifted the Hose up to the heights of their double triumph. It was the timely and wide swatting of this pair of youngsters that was in a large measure responsible for the two immense rallies that won out.

Uhle Beaten in Opener.

George Uhle, leading flinger of the American league and second only for the season to Adolfo Luquie, Cuban star of the Cincinnati club, who topped all pitchers in both major circuits for the year, was the victim of the first Sox rally. Uhle had a 3 to 2 lead going into the ninth but, coming out, George was a badly battered pitcher, the Sox having smashed him for their four runs.

Urban (Red) Faber, premier spitball artist, started the pitching assignment for the Sox. It was Faber's first time out in some weeks, as the sorrel topped veteran has been bothered with a sore arm. Faber worked three innings and then departed, being in more or less trouble for the three sessions. Dixie Leverette, Ted Lyons, and Mike Cvengros followed Faber on the peak, after pinch hitters had performed.

Many Pitchers in Second Tilt.

The second game was one of those wild orgies of base hits and many pitchers. Charley Robertson, Lyons, and Cvengros worked for the Hose, while Speaker used five flingers, Edwards, Smith, Boone, Levsen, and Drake toiling in order. Edwards, Smith, and Boone were the victims of the barrage of Sox hits in the heavy six run fourth inning.

New York Yankees are the stronger team for purposes of a world's series in their present condition than are the Giants. In a total team strength of approximately 12,000 points, they have a lead of more than 300 over McGraw's team. The fact that the figure advantage of the Yankees lies chiefly in the pitching department makes the team stronger, in view, of the fact that the strength is mobile and applicable to needs, whereas the strength of the Giants is not.

The fact that one team is stronger than another does not necessarily make it a winner in a series. If it can bring its strength to bear in each game it is practically certain to win, since the percentage of attacking and defensive strength favors it.

Can Switch Dope.

But it is possible for a team, figuring to be weaker, to use one pitcher of great strength and overcome the figure advantage of the other. The chances are against this, of course, and the Yankees have about 3 per cent the better of the strength, which means a 6 per cent advantage in such a series.

There is this element to be considered before we finally test out the figures, and that is that of management. Of course, the average fan and some of the experts declare McGraw is the deciding factor. This is, in a way, only just, since a manager who accepts all the responsibility if his team fails should receive the same credit if the team wins.

Bancroft Directs Giants.

McGraw, of course, is the leader, but Davy Bancroft is the directing genius of the Giants, the boy who signals, who grabs signals and who calls the turn on what is being pitched.

There is no doubt that the Giant board of strategy last year outguessed and outgeneraled the Yanks and broke their attack by so doing. But the Yankees this year are a different team from the one that the Giants disgraced last fall. They are playing the game. They think it is "our year"—they are confident, and in better condition.

The advantage lies strongly in favor of the Yankees.

Chicago's Cubs are the strongest team for the purposes of a series between the two clubs engaged for the city championship series.

In both offensive and defensive strength they have an edge over the White Sox, and if the management fits the team to the opposing pitchers the Cubs should win the series.

I have had to change the figures slightly because of the change in the outfield strength of the White Sox due to the acquisition of new material, but instead of showing a gain through the signing of Archdeacon, the White Sox figure only a few points better than they did, and lose in straight frontal attack strength.

Sox Not a Weak Team.

The fact that the Cubs hold an overweening strength in pitching offsets the fact that in both the infield and outfield the Sox have a better constituted team. I have been forced to cancel Red Faber entirely from the pitching force of the Sox and he may surprise us and come back with a remedied arm and upset the dope.

The study of the team strengths is odd—for in spite of their poor showing in the American league season, the Sox shape up as a really strong team. They are a sounder and harder attacking team than the Cubs are, but spotty in their strength.

The Sox figure slightly better both in offense and defense in the regular positions, due largely to the hitting power of Collins and the lack of throwing force of the Cub outfield.

In catching, the slipping of Schalk, who has gone back to a tremendous extent, and the slashing hitting of O'Farrell give the Cubs the lead, and their fast curve ball pitching increases their lead in the figures.

Cubs Slabmen Sox Trouble.

The Cubs have a dope lead of nearly 400 points in the figures, meaning that they are at least 7 per cent stronger than the Sox at the start. The Sox, to have an equal chance of winning the series, must fit pitcher against pitcher so as to overcome this mechanical superiority of the north siders. We find, however, that with Faber crippled and counted out of the dope, the Sox are not only short handed but poorly equipped to overcome the handicap.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—[Special.]—Hopes for a slice of the world's series money vanished this afternoon when the Cubs dropped the opener of their three piece closing series with the Cardinals here, 5 to 2, while the Pirates were flattening the Reds. Immediately upon glimpsing the bad news from Cincinnati in the seventh inning, Manager Killefer shunted his rookies into the lineup in order to observe them in action against fast playmates. A triple victory here and a double defeat of the Pirates by the Reds would have placed the Cubs in a tie with the Corsairs for third honors for the season.

Only about 1,000 customers turned out for the game, which was an even thing for just two innings, with Vic Aldridge showing all his accustomed effectiveness, while opposing Eddie Dyer, a slim southpaw, who tamed the Bears when they last visited these parts.

Attack Aldridge Hard.

The Cardinals, though minus Rogers Hornsby, uncorked a bristling assault in their half of the third inning, piling up three runs on an error by Friberg and three solid swats, and then added one run in the fourth and tossed in another marker on two extra wallops in the fifth, which brought home the victory. Vic Keen then was injected into the fray and halted the hostiles' attack.

Here's How Cubs Scored.

Singles by Grimes, Friberg, and Miller accounted for the first Cub tally in the fourth, with none out, but Heathcote slashed into a double play and the rally faded. In the ninth Keen raked a double to right, took third without a play, and scored the second Chicago run on Hartnett's single.

BRAVES BEAT PHILS TWICE.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 6.—Boston closed its season today by defeating Philadelphia twice, winning the first game, 5 to 4, in fourteen innings, and the second, 6 to 1, in four and one-half innings. Ernest Padgett, recruit Boston shortstop, made a triple play unassisted in the fourth inning of the second game.

"How Are Your Brakes?" Question at Safety Meet

National Congress Given Details of Police Inspection.

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the opening of the twelfth annual National Safety congress in Buffalo next week the police of that city will conduct a special brake inspection campaign in the hope of reducing the number of automobile accidents. This drive enables the 4,000 delegates to see brake control apparatus on motor vehicles examined, and it is likely that many of the visitors will return to their respective cities with a determination to initiate similar campaigns. The inspection is to be handled in Buffalo by the local police in coöperation with Sydney H. Coleman, manager of the safety bureau of the Buffalo chamber of commerce.

Marcus A. Dow, president of the National Safety council, is in personal charge of the New York City department of public safety which maintains a permanent brake test squad.

One of the most important subjects on the program of the National Safety congress was the question of how to reduce the number of traffic accidents. This problem was discussed by well known speakers who have been studying the situation for years.

Chairman John N. Mackall, of the state roads commission, and Paul F. Wucker, director of the Baltimore Safety council, have just completed arrangements for the establishment of portable brake testing stations on each of the main roads leading into Baltimore. It is planned to erect large signs on the roads 500 feet ahead of the stations announcing the innovation and instructing motorists to have their control apparatus examined. Men employed by the state roads commission will be on duty to report motorists operating cars with defective brakes.

W. Graham Cole, secretary of the Washington Safety council, also is planning for the inauguration of a brake inspection campaign in the District of Columbia, in conjuction with the local officials there. The American Automobile association, which has its headquarters in the nation's capital, is interested in the movement.

Fred. W. Johnson, managing director of the Citizens Safety committee of the Philadelphia chamber of commerce, is another advocate of brake inspection and the inauguration of a campaign in that city is being given consideration.

CLEAR THE AIR

Health Commissioner Bundesen has pioneered the way to healthier boulevards in Chicago by extending the exhaust pipes on his car upward so that the poisonous fumes from the motor will have an outlet above the heads of pedestrians and drivers. This simple device, he declares, will materially increase the health of Chicago people.

Solons Will Be Asked to Probe Gasoline Prices

FURTHER development of plans to urge upon congress a sweeping investigation of the inequalities in price of gasoline and the apparently unfair prices which are being charged in some localities will be one of the major subjects at the meeting of the executive board of the American Automobile association which has been called by President Thomas P. Henry for Washington, Wednesday, Oct. 24.

A comprehensive program of close coöperation with the 200 affiliated clubs in assisting the local traffic authorities in the solution of their traffic problems will be worked out at this meeting.

When the gasoline price situation was emphasized by the action of Governor McMasters of South Dakota, the request made a year ago by the A. A. A., that congress go into the matter thoroughly and ascertain the facts, was renewed by President Henry. Information since gathered by the association confirms the belief of the directing heads of the A. A. A. that congress is the only power to obtain the information on which a real solution to the problem can be based.

In calling the meeting of the board, President Henry expressed himself as being greatly impressed with definite results which many of the clubs are obtaining in reducing the percentage of automobile accidents to the number of motor vehicles operated by coöperation with the local traffic authorities. He believes that even better results can be obtained through more intensive help of the national body along definite lines. He is expected to present some specific recommendations along this line for the consideration of the board.

Huge Body Demand.

The Fisher Body corporation production for the year will approach 1,250,000 bodies, about half of which will be required to meet the demands of General Motors. Earnings are approximately $2,750,000 monthly according to a statement by Alfred Fisher, director.

Here's Why Your Tires Will Heat in the Long Run

AN ordinary piece of steel wire will become hot after being flexed a few times and, in the course of a minute or two, will break. The ordinary automobile casing is called upon to withstand the action of this heating and flexing into the millions of times.

A 33x5 cord casing, for example, will flex 358,800 times in a hundred mile drive. Each time any given spot in the casing flexes when it strikes the ground a little bit of heat is generated inside the tire. This brings about an additional problem for the technical man who is charged with the responsibility of giving the car owner a maximum amount of mileage in each casing. He must devise a means of escape for this internal heat. It is destructive to the tire because it serves to separate the plies of fabric.

The sidewall of any automobile tire is made very thin so as to afford a means of escape for the heat. Rubber is pretty much of a nonconductor of heat, so the sidewall must be thin. Some of the heat generated inside of the casing is absorbed by the metal rim, which is a good heat conductor.

This principle of heat generation can be easily found out by any motorist simply by feeling the tire after driving some time without a stop. The tire will be warmer than the atmosphere.

A 33x5 casing in the course of a normal season of driving will flex from 15,000,000 to 35,000,000 times, which means from five to ten thousand miles, according to Miller tire men. In all of these millions of flexings the tire must be prepared to absorb and throw off the strain without breaking.

Costly Violations.

Motorists contribute $500,000 annually in fines toward the expenses of the city of New York in one of the magistrate courts. Ninety-eight per cent of all punishments are fines, the jail sentences ordinarily being reserved for intoxicated and unlicensed operators, third offense speeders, and those who have failed to answer the court summons issued by the arresting officers.

THREE REMOVE.
Dragging brakes, leaking compression, and ill badly adjusted carburetor are great gasoline wasters.

SHUT IT OFF.
A man who lets his motor run idle is the brother of the man who puts dollar bills in a fond chapeau.

Steering wheel shooting lever which produces gears

Not Electrical

No Levers, Plenty of Leg Room

ON the APPERSON Six and Eight there are no levers cluttering up the front compartment. You can get in or out on the curb side. There is plenty of leg-room to permit comfortable driving. APPERSON Engineering has removed the strain, the tenseness and discomfort of driving and made it a real pleasure to sit behind the wheel.

A mechanical gear-shift shifts the gears easily, quickly, and surely with possibility of "clashing" gears and blocking traffic eliminated. It operates by merely moving selector on steering wheel post to gear desired and throwing out the clutch in usual manner. It is simple in construction with nothing to get out of order.

Emergency brake operated by pull-handle on instrument board.

Thirty years of engineering has produced this APPERSON—a smaller car with a performance and comfort that will amaze you. See this APPERSON—five minutes behind the wheel will prove to you the truth of the statement that it is years ahead of any car on the market to-day.

FOR 20 YEARS THE HEART OF THE ENGINE

This Carburetor Does Something New

If your car is running evenly at 30 an hour, the Schebler gives you a very lean "speed" mixture, using mighty little gas.

If you meet a hill, it changes to a "power" mixture and your car shoots up the hill without "choking" or "bucking." Back on the level road, the mixture again becomes lean.

If you want to speed up suddenly in traffic or on the road, the mixture riches until you reach the speed you want, then it thins down again.

Such pep, flexibility, power and gasoline economy you never saw before! We'll prove it. If your dealer won't install a Schebler and guarantee what it does for your engine, write or call us.

Closed Cars in Brilliant Salon Display Oct. 13

Women Drivers to Prove Safety Features of New Models.

FORTY-THREE exhibitors, representing sixty makes of cars, have been assigned space for the first annual closed car show of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, which will be held at the Coliseum from Oct. 13 to 20. According to Harry P. Branstetter, chairman of the show committee, it will be the most comprehensive display of inclosed automobiles ever assembled under one roof.

In allotting spaces numbers were drawn from a hat with the result that choice positions in some cases went to cars of minor production. At the national shows spaces are allotted on the basis of annual earnings.

Manager L. L. Fest announces that the decorations, which will equal in artistic effect the settings at the national expositions, are now nearing completion in the Tietzel studio at Evergreen Park, Ill.

The north and south ends of the building will be covered by huge paintings of outdoor scenes. The balcony fronts will feature a series of airy fairy figures, blossoms, and various landscapes, 800 feet long and 10 feet high.

The ceiling will be covered completely with painted canvas. The complete color scheme will be green, white, and gold with various tones of pink and crimson.

Hanging directly under the ceiling will be thirty-three huge flower receptacles, each 15 feet in diameter and suspended by tasseled ropes. Five hundred lamp shades, each 3 feet in diameter and of art glass effect, with blossom design, will enhance the beauty of the decorations.

In conjunction with the show the trade association will conduct its annual "master lady drivers'" contest. This event was inaugurated last year. It will be staged on Oct. 11, two days before the opening of the exhibition. More than 300 contestants are expected to compete.

After a driving test of thirty miles over the park boulevards, the women will be tried as to road judgment. This will be in the nature of a brake test. A backing up test also will be conducted in which the women will show their efficiency in backing into a garage, barrels being arranged for this trial. The association is offering $400 in prizes and silver trophies in this event.

In addition to Mr. Branstetter, the show committee consists of Joseph F. Davis and J. R. Histed. President Henry Paulman will announce further committees this week.

Tribune Tours

XXIII. CIRCLE TO FLORIDA SUNSHINE

DIFFICULT roads are still the rule along popular Florida routes, despite construction programs and feverish repair work on the part of Dixie road boosters this year. Cars are going through, however, and will continue to go through all fall and winter, taking good roads and bad as they come.

The routes shown on this week's tour suggestion are the best available at this time, with the predominance of pavement on the eastern end. Pavement is now complete from Chicago to Washington by way of Marshall, Terre Haute, Indianapolis, and the National road. The road from Chrisman to Indianapolis is gravel, rough for ten miles east of Chrisman.

Florida roads are reported excellent this year. Three new highways are under way through the Everglades, while both coasts offer fair to good pavements.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

EXPANSION of all lines in the automobile game has added another specialty organization to auto row in the Chicago Coach Painting company. The new firm, located at 2435 Cottage Grove avenue, is headed by C. H. Higbee, former newspaper and accessory man, and Art Blank, for many years chief of the painting staff of the Chicago Coach and Carriage company.

R. C. Cook & Co., Chicago Velie distributors, announce the appointment of Lecht Brothers Auto Sales company, 11400 South Michigan avenue, as Velie dealers in Roseland.

C. H. Nash, in commenting on the company's recent financial statement, declared that his company is enjoying the strongest position in its history. He does not expect to keep the Kenosha plants working at their fullest capacity during the fall months, but expects unusually good business throughout fall, winter, and spring months.

The new Haynes 60 sedan at $1,395, the lowest priced closed car of the Haynes line, has been officially announced.

The Templar Motor Car company has been newly incorporated under the laws of Ohio, with offices and factory located in Cleveland.

The W. V. Faunce Motor company, Oldsmobile distributors, moved its headquarters last week from 31st and Michigan to 2518 Michigan avenue. On Oct. 10 the sales and parts department will be moved from its old Wabash avenue location to the new quarters.

The Bus Age.

Future possibilities of bus transportation will be presented by Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in his address, "Coördination of Electric Railway and Bus Transportation," before the American Electric Railway association, at Atlantic City Oct. 9.

More than 100 electric railway companies are now using about 950 busses in auxiliary bus service.

When the improved Chalmers Six was reduced in price to $1185, money ceased to be an accurate measure of value.

Dollars and cents comparisons became meaningless, because, by virtue of Chalmers achievements, Chalmers stepped out and established a standard of its own.

Look at the results. When you examine the improved Chalmers Six you will note the happy selection of rich color effects. You will be captivated by the engaging lines. You will be impressed by the elegance of the appointments and the completeness of the equipment.

Then, when you ride, the car will demonstrate a superiority that mere words cannot convey. The greater power and speed, the alertness that suggests the thoroughbred, comprise a brilliancy of performance you will be unable to match.

All these statements, you can verify to your own satisfaction. Look the market over. Then ask yourself if, at the new prices, there is anything to match the improved Chalmers Six.

Good-bye Gear-shift!

Your doom is spelled by the biggest advance in automobile design since the self-starter—

The Traffic Transmission

Involving a totally new principle, the Traffic Transmission can be shifted with the pressure of the little finger under all conditions, at all normal driving speeds, in any direction (low to high or high to low) by the least experienced driver.

The gears cannot clash. There is nothing new to learn. The familiar old gear lever is there. Thousands (especially women) can now become happy motorists and drive with tranquillity in traffic or on tour.

In handling ease—in the amount of pleasure it gives to driving—no car can now surpass the 1924 Chandler, for it is powered by the

with all its spectacular high gear capacity retained and with its operation made noiseless and flawlessly smooth by recent refinements.

Now the thousands who have vainly battled with the evils and admitted dangers of the old-fashioned gear shift may sit at the wheel and revel in the master performance qualities of the Pikes Peak Motor on hills and in crowded thoroughfares.

The revolutionary nature of the Traffic Transmission, its simplicity, ease and surety, and the amazing driving convenience it gives, cannot be realized without a ride in the

1924 Chandler

You are urged to come in and learn for yourself. Ten minutes behind the wheel tells all!

The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents

MOTORDOM

National Policy Opposes Illinois Bond Issue Plan

Highway Authorities Want New Roads to Earn Their Cost.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

"No road should be improved in excess of its earning capacity. The return to the public in the form of economic traffic is the sole measure of such improvement."

Four national highway bodies have combined in indorsement of the above plank as part of Uncle Sam's future highway development platform. The entire scheme, engineers declared yesterday, is opposed to Gov. Len Small's plan of issuing $100,000,000 worth of state highway bonds in order to build a secondary system of paved roads in Illinois.

For months the United States bureau of public roads, the Investment Bankers' association, the American Association of State Highway Engineers, and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce have been working to develop a program of financial principles which will insure the proper expenditure of the billion dollars available annually for public road improvement. The policy program, announced recently by Roy D. Chapin of the national chamber, takes a definite stand on the question of secondary road costs and the method of paying for their improvement.

"States where original construction programs are well under way," says his report of the joint decision, "can in the main finance normal new construction from current funds, utilizing bond issue funds to defer the cost of special projects.

"States where original construction is largely completed are concerned chiefly with maintenance and reconstruction, and should depend on current funds in cases of emergency.

"Roads serving a purely local purpose will, generally, require only light upkeep and should properly be a charge against the adjacent property, which, in these cases, is the first and often the only beneficiary."

Chicago authorities opposing the proposed bond issue contended yesterday that the Illinois highway situation is directly affected by these national regulations. But few roads in the widespread secondary system designated by the Small bond issue scheme, they declare, will serve anything but local traffic. Some of the short cuts and connections, recent reports show, will cost more than the assessed valuation of the counties through which they run. The primary system of pavements already built serve through traffic.

Among other points brought out in the joint policy message was the assertion that highways properly located and built must create an economic value greater than their actual cost. The location and surfacing of highways, it says, must be governed by that principle.

Another major point holds that all money spent for roads should have a part set aside for maintenance and repair to protect the public investment. The report adds that in states where few highways have been built bond issues will be needed next year, but where the main highways have been well developed new construction can and should be paid for by current funds from automobile license fees.

It is proposed that special taxes on motor vehicles be based upon the benefits which they derive from the roads and should be spent exclusively for maintenance purposes.

Clear the Roads.

To prevent accidents by keeping the roads open for two way traffic, parking of vehicles of all descriptions is prohibited on all state highways in Pennsylvania. Motorists are not permitted to stop at the foot of a hill, crest of a hill, or any portion of a curve. A fine of $10 to $25 is provided for each violation of the rule.

Another Market.

The United States supplied more than 69 per cent of the automobiles sold in the Canary islands during 1922. A total of 416 passenger cars and trucks were sold, of which 272 were of American manufacure. German, French, and Italian cars follow in order of importance.

GAS AND "ALKY" PUT ON SAME PLANE BY CANARY ISLES PLAN

SMALL quantities of Cuban sugar cane alcohol have been imported recently into the Canary islands for experimental purposes. Vice Consul J. C. Greenup reports to the department of commerce. The object is to see if it will make good motor car fuel.

It is said that such alcohol can be retailed at 20 cents a gallon, compared with 40 and 45 cents for gasoline, provided the customs authorities collect the same duty on each.

The present tariff gives gasoline a favorable handicap of 15 cents a gallon.

With 48 Body and Chassis Improvements Yet Priced $100 Lower

You can spend more or less for a car, but you can buy no more anywhere for an equal amount than Columbia offers in the improved 1924 Phaeton. Judge for yourself.

Its graceful body is the longest ever mounted on a 115 inch wheelbase. It has a rear seat that is unusually wide—full 46 inches. It is the roomiest open car, size and weight considered that you can buy.

The finish is richly beautiful, durable and of really exceptional quality. Seats are deeply cushioned, with form-fitting coiled springs that make the longest trip thoroughly enjoyable. The heavy genuine leather upholstery has been chosen to stand all kinds of wear.

To guarantee performance, you have the famous Columbia all-feature chassis—admittedly the last word in assured dependability. Even swifter responsiveness, more marked economy, increased power and easier, more positive control have been attained in the 1924 Columbia Six.

Here is our invitation to you: Come in and take one of these cars out for a searching road test. Examine it throughout. Ask all the questions you can. Talk to Columbia owners. Get acquainted with the car and with us. Then make your decision. (87)

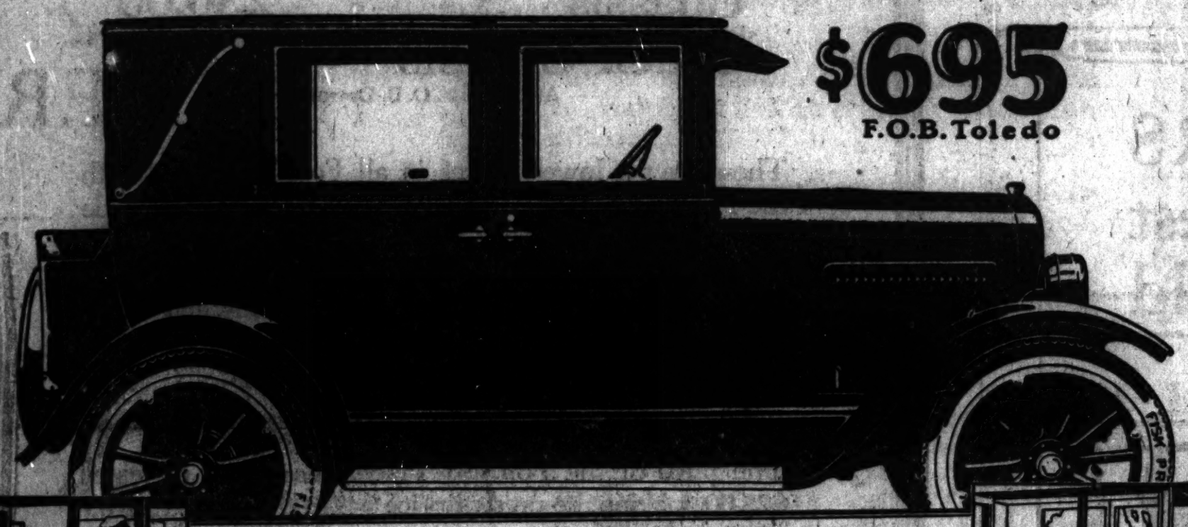
NEW Overland CHAMPION



$695 F.O.B. Toledo

America's Only Versatile Car

Another Innovation

We now present the greatest creation in Willys-Overland history—the first all-purpose car—the new Overland Champion! Exclusive features, utilities and economies! Probably the most convenient car of all time! Benefits never before offered to the salesman, the merchant, the farmer and the American family.

Advance showings indicate everywhere the most intense public interest ever shown in a new car.

Both front and rear seats adjustable forward and backward for short people and tall people. No stretching for pedals. No leg cramping.

Both front and rear seats entirely removable. Taking out rear seat and upholstery gives 50 cubic feet clear space for carrying samples, luggage, trunks, tools, camping duffle—anything!

Front and rear seats and upholstery make up into full sized bed in the car. A wonderful improvement for motor camping.

Doors front and rear—like the famous Willys-Knight Coupe-Sedan—no seat-climbing! Big trunk at rear at small extra price.

Smart body of steel, with washable blue Spanish long grain upholstery, cradled by Triplex springs (Patented). Overland quality and reliability! Astonishing economy! Come in and see the Champion.

Considerable seating for five, with wide doors both front and rear—no seat-climbing.

20 cu. ft. of space for samples, luggage, etc., by removing rear seat and upholstery.

Front seat adjusts to three positions to accommodate short driver or tall driver.

Rear seat adjusts backward—no crowding behind when front seat is moved back.

Both seats and upholstery make into a full-length, full width bed in car.

Strong, deep, commodious trunk at rear furnished at small extra price.

Farm-truck, tools, supplies, trunks, luggage, etc., loaded easily through rear door

All passengers enter and leave easily through doors both front and rear.

FLINT

The Flint Six Is Here

Touring Sedan Coupe
Sport Touring Sport Roadster

The latest triumph of W. C. Durant is now ready. Here is the car on which more than $2,000,000 was spent in experimental work by famous engineers and completed by Mr. Durant's own experts. It is built not on theory but on actual knowledge of what owners want; it embodies the results of the experience gained from all preceding cars; it stands as a superb achievement of engineering and as a masterpiece of beauty and design.

Note the Features Which Make the Flint Six the Sensation for 1924

The 6-Cylinder L-Head Engine, large for a car of its price, allows a more perfect balance than usual to the chassis and a better proportion of power to passenger capacity. Motor units are arranged for accessibility.

The 7-Bearing Crankshaft reduces vibration to a minimum over the whole speed range and reduces the usual wear and looseness.

The Tubular Backbone, supporting the subframes, gives sturdier construction and better protection from inequalities of the road than the usual method of mounting direct on the frame.

Open models have Permanent Top and Side Curtains that open with doors.

To produce a car having the splendid special features you will find in the Flint Six has called forth all the enthusiasm, ingenuity, experience and skill in an organization which has made history in the automobile field. Only such an organization as this, provided with the practical knowledge of what an ideal car should be, with a complete and marvelously systematized manufacturing equipment and with facilities for securing quick and widespread distribution, could build and sell such a car at a price which makes it the outstanding value in models for 1924.

On exhibition at the showrooms of the Chicago Flint Co. or at any of the dealers in this list.

Big Auto Plants Hum Toward Four Million Record

Predict New Method in the Manufacture of Closed Cars.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 6.—[Special]—With the ending of the third quarter of 1923—the greatest productive period in the history of the automotive industry, the automobile and truck manufacturers began the final quarter last Monday morning determined to set an undreamed of record. The 4,000,000th vehicle will probably not be built within the year, but it will be so close to it that 1923 will undoubtedly be referred to as the "Four million year".

As yet but few, if any, of the various plants have begun the storing of automobiles for next year's trade, present demand absorbing the entire output. Some of the plants have shown production somewhat less than of two and three months ago, while others announce a greater output which shows an average in the total production of what it was during earlier months.

The most noticeable feature of the fall trade seems to be the present and future of the closed car, and present indications are that there is sure to be a noticeable shortage of closed bodies. Some manufacturers are predicting the general run of enclosed cars will need complete overhauling, and that body builders will be compelled to manufacture their products on a progressive assembly system with the same economical principles involved as now practiced in the making of chassis. They also claim there is no real good reason why enclosed cars should cost more than open ones. The industry must produce enclosed cars as its everyday vehicle, and make the open cars as specialties. When that practice becomes general, the closed models will sell as low as the present time open cars.

According to Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker more new models and fundamental changes are now being featured by the automotive manufacturers than have been announced in the past decade.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question Mrs. E. C. Lancaster, 737 Brompton avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.
Should all roadside signboards be abolished?

Where Asked.
Grant park, at foot of Van Buren street.

The Answers.

E. D. Warner, 421 First National bank building—It's this way with me: If I go out for a ride on Sunday I want to see the scenery. I don't want to read advertising. They manage to place the advertisement boards where the scenery is the best. If they placed them where the scenery is not attractive they might be better appreciated.

Edgar Everett, 1129 East 55th street, private chauffeur—Signboards should be abolished along certain stretches of the road, but not necessarily everywhere. Sometimes you go for miles and miles, as in the east, where large signboards are not permitted, and when you finally run across one you know you are going right. Many of the larger signboards contain directions as well as the ad, which is a great help when touring.

James Barnet, 5089 North Lincoln street, student—So long as it is a plain open road, signboards are all right and one does not object to them, but if it is good scenery and something I want to look at besides signboards, it is all wrong. Some signboards are more attractive than some scenery. This will apply in the city as well as in the country.

Ralph H. Bean, 825 Harris Trust building, architect—I wouldn't say they should all be abolished, but I do believe it would be a good idea if there were some sort of committee to approve the signs and where they may be placed. Signboards and scenery do not go well together. Keep them in their own fields, then the motorist can use both of them.

William C. Allen, Harris Trust and Savings bank building, salesman—My principal objection to signboards is that they are so often placed at crossings and dangerous places, obstructing the view—for instance, just outside of Joliet, on the Lincoln highway—making a dangerous crossing. Common sense would dictate that large signboards should not be placed in certain places, whether the reason be danger, attractive scenery, or what.

Club Prepares to Handle Shipments of Tourist Cars

MOTORISTS throughout the United States are to be accorded a saving in the shipping of automobiles from point to point through an arrangement just completed by the Auto Club of Southern California.

Thousands of motor cars are shipped by individuals for touring purposes from the east to southern California, and from California to eastern points each year by owners who do not care to drive across the continent. In order to affect a saving for these individuals, the forwarding department of the motoring organization has just made arrangements with forty-four points throughout the United States for shipping courtesies to be extended.

This means that all auto owners who wish to transport their cars may do so through the auto club and thus obtain a saving of from fifty to one hundred and fifty dollars on each machine. This does not apply in any way to commercial transportation.

This saving is based on cars being placed in "poo" carloads whereby the car owner receives the entire benefit of the saving, no profits being absorbed by any of those various connections. The forwarding department of the club anticipates that it will handle aproximately 2,500 machines, east and west bound, during the season of 1923, which will mean a saving of approximately $125,000 to motorists.

Some of the club representatives recently established throughout the east are automobile clubs, and at the majority of the other points the warehouses work in harmony with these clubs.

Additional shipping points will be established in the near future, but at the present time the entire area of the continent is well covered by the stations.

...diana Leading ...n Pig Race by a ...Couple of Squeals

...ere is a regular hog race on be... Illinois and Indiana. Hog rais... both states have tried to finish ...st place. While there is no official ...on between the two states, hog ...ders have a little friendly rivalry ...sisting in their attempts to see ... one can turn out the heaviest ...of shotes in six months.

...the last two or three weeks Illi... hog men have been crowing over ...record in the state ton litter con... The hullabaloo began the day J. ... of Putnam county drove his ... pigs on the scales and the ... farmers thought they had a ...tow and kept it up continu... ously until the other day Hoosier hog callers broke loose with a new yell, announcing that there was still a luckier litter of thirteen pigs over on Chester A. Meal's farm in Rush county, which had broken the Illinois record by 109 points.

Outstrips Illinois Litter.

When the announcement was flashed out to midwest farmers by Purdue university it ran something like this: "A ton and a half litter with a 200 pound hog to spare is the new record for a litter in the Hoosier Ton Litter club."

When Meal's pigs were weighed at the halfway mark, running the hogometer up to the 1,012 notch, neighboring farmers began to make risky statements about what the pigs would reach when they were six months old. They thought their predictions were extravagant guesses until at the end of six months the lucky thirteen weighed 3,210, or 109 pounds more than the Illinois litter over in Illinois.

Mr. Meal will get one of the gold medals offered by the Indiana Live Stock Breeders' association, under whose auspices the contest is conducted.

Early Start Essential.

Raising big pigs does not apparently begin with the slopping when they are big enough to eat, but starts with the sire and dam, and all the good sires and dams before them. Lady Buster, a Poland China sow weighing 650 pounds, farrowed the record breaking Hoosier litter which was sired by Revelation II., weighing 950 pounds.

Hog owners will be interested in knowing how the sow was handled after mating last fall. Mr. Meal says that he turned Lady Buster into a corn and soy bean field that had been hogged off. Rye had been sown in the field and there was plenty of late fall and winter pasture. She ran in this field during most of the time she carried the litter.

She was put in an individual hog house that had been cleaned and disinfected and allowed to run in a small lot a few days before farrowing.

Outlines Feeding Procedure.

In passing on Mr. Meal's methods to other hog men, feeding experts at Purdue quote him as saying:

"I gave the sow nothing but water the first twenty-four hours after the pigs came. Then I gave her a half ear of corn as the first feed. The corn was gradually increased. Several days after farrowing I began feeding a small amount of slop, made of rolled oats, water, and semi-solid buttermilk. Slop as well as corn was gradually increased as the pigs got larger.

"The litter was fed rolled oats in a creep as soon as the pigs would eat. Later on I made a slop of rolled oats, semi-solid buttermilk, and water, using one part semi-solid buttermilk and fifteen parts water, with enough rolled oats to make a thick slop. When the pigs were four months old, soaked ground wheat was added to the slop. The wheat was gradually increased and the rolled oats decreased. I fed all the slop the pigs would clean up twice a day, during the entire feeding period.

Salt Always Handy.

"In addition to the slop, the litter was self-fed shelled corn from weaning time on. During the last three weeks the corn was soaked. Tankage was also self-fed during the last three weeks, but the pigs did not take much of it. Block salt was kept before the pigs all the time, also mineral mixture was fed once a week."

Dairymen's Jottings

Every dairyman should have "Blackleg: Its Nature, Cause, and Prevention, Bulletin No. 1255," recently issued by the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C. Cattle between the ages of six and eighteen months are affected especially by this rapidly fatal, infectious disease, but sucking calves and those past two years are rarely attached. Such facts as these are brought out in the bulletin.

Dairymen who are growing soy beans for seed in sections hit by yearly frosts need not worry in most cases. The seed will be safe if the growth has been stopped by frost before the pods were ripe or before the leaves have dropped off. Forage crop experts at the Ioka station say that if the beans have made their full growth, seed of average germination may be expected.

The New Peerless is giving the best of satisfaction. It is by far the most comfortable, the most powerful, the most dependable and the best all-round car I have had or know of. I like it, too, because of its speed, which appeals to me strongly. In riding at high speed, we seem to be going as easily and with as much safety as in a smaller car at half the speed.

A. W. COLWELL,
Bethune, Colwell & Company
Cotton Merchants Clinton, N. C.

It is a matter of great pride with us that no American motor car, regardless of price, excels the New Peerless Eight in performance, dependability, beauty and comfort.

But it is a matter of still greater pride to maintain the Peerless in this high position.

Every process employed in the production of the car is shaped to that end.

Every man who contributes his thoughts and skill and energy to its building has that for his individual and organization aim.

You see the results the moment you begin to study the New Peerless.

And you see them and sense them to the full when you ride in it and make your own estimate of its splendid capabilities.

When you do that you will cease to wonder at the enthusiasm of Peerless owners.

FARM AND GARDEN

Michigan Acres Are Partial to Concord Grapes

Old Vineyards Are Being Increased and New Ones Developed.

By Frank Ridgway.

BILLOWY blankets of grapes cover a thousand hillsides of southern Michigan today. The eighteenth amendment ushered in a new kind of viticulture, and on these sandy slopes graperies with their vines loaded with fruit streak hills and valleys that were covered with shocks of fodder and yellow pumpkins a few years ago.

The grape vineyard acreage along the east shore of Lake Michigan has been more than doubled in the last eight years. Harvesting of the Concords is now in full sway. Men and women from the whole countryside have been called in to help pick and pack this year's crop, rivaling the scenes of wine grape growing sections in sunny France or terraced vineyards on the Rhine. Hundreds of carloads of grapes have been started rolling toward the wineries and fresh grape consuming centers from the fruit belt across the lake during the last two or three weeks.

Berrien County Leads.

Berrien county alone produces approximately 10,000 acres of grapes. It is roughly estimated that about half the grape crop of Michigan is produced in this county. Growers get a check for grapes that amounts to $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 a year. This is divided up among many different farmers, each one growing around ten, fifteen, or twenty acres. There are, however, a few who have many more than this.

When crop officials took a count last year to see how many grapevines were being grown in Berrien county, they found 4,388,058 plants of bearing age, and many more have been added to the grand total this year. Young plants have come into bearing age and old vineyards are being increased in size and new ones established.

The Concord grape—the blue grape common on the markets during September and October—is grown almost exclusively by Michigan farmers. The average land used in Berrien county is worth $200 an acre, and with present prices of labor, material, etc., it costs a total of about $500 an acre to establish a vineyard and bring it through to bearing age. Vines do not bear the first two years, but growers get a fair return the third season.

Net Return of $200 per Acre.

A visit to several vineyards in Berrien county and talks with growers show that most of them consider grape growing on a five year basis, and are fairly well satisfied if they get three good crops during the five seasons after the vines reach bearing age. Most of them struggle to get a yield of eight tons to the acre, but the average is five. In exceptional cases ten tons to the acre are obtained.

Perhaps the reason many Michigan farmers are using land for grapes where they used to grow staple farm crops is because they find it a fairly easy matter to get a net return of $200 an acre.

In Bridgman the other day, O. A. D. Baldwin, a practical grape grower, banker, merchant and authority in the nursery world; and F. L. Simanton, Berrien county's agricultural agent, gave me these figures as being fairly good estimates of various items entering into the cost of establishing a vineyard and caring for it the first three years on land worth $200 an acre:

Grape plants [440 to the acre]	$ 44.00
Preparing land, including plowing, setting plants and first year's cultivation	25.00
Post, steel or cedar [200 to the acre]	80.00
Wire, galvanized, No. 10	80.00
Interest on land and investment for first, second, and third years	75.00
Taxes for first, second, and third years	6.00
Labor in setting post and tacking on wire	15.00
Cultivation and general care of ground during second and third years	12.00
Total	$337.00
Grand total, including land at $200 an acre	$537.00

Cost Items Vary.

These costs can be only roughly estimated because labor costs, methods and conditions generally vary so much. Both of these men agree that their figures are fairly high and that the average farmer can establish a vineyard and take care of it up to and including the third year for about $500, including the land valued at $200 an acre.

After the third year the cost will vary, according to the size of the crop and the trend of labor prices. The expense of post and wire, the two big items, does not have to be paid until after the plants have been set for a year. Permanent trellises are not usually built until the spring after the plants have been set.

Grapes do not bear the first or second year, but they usually produce a half crop the third season in the lake region. With prices as they are today, the average yield being five tons, the half crop harvested the third year should return about $125.

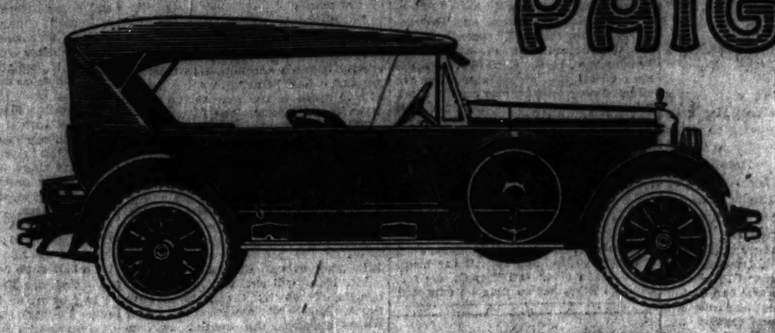
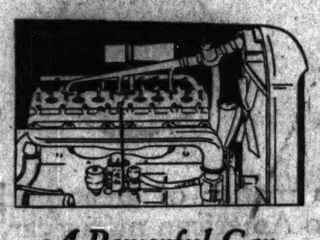
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

PAIGE



Compare the Paige with Other Fine Cars in these Important Points

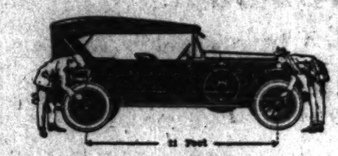


A Powerful Car

You know that Paige out-performs most any other car—that Paige will pass your car on hills—pull away from your car in traffic. Do you know why? More power for its weight! Paige weighs 3850 pounds—yet that is only 11.4 pounds per cubic inch of piston displacement—far more power than others. Check this! Lift the hoods of more costly cars—look at the motors. Then look at the big Paige motor—you'll realize its ample power. You'll appreciate more what it means to you when you feel the Paige answer under your own guidance—feel the thrill of great ability under easy control. Go from 2 miles an hour in high to as fast as you'll ever want—silently and smoothly. Then try others and you will buy Paige.

A Comfortable Car

Paige rear springs are more than 5 feet long. Think of it! Consider the remarkable riding ease this gives. No need to dodge bumps—you drive in equal comfort cross country or cross town. Road jars never reach you. And softly cushioned, deep seats bring rest however far the trip. Match such riding ease, if you can, in other cars at any price.



A Big Car

You expect a long wheelbase in fine cars. Paige is 131 inches from center to center—longer than many more expensive cars. Long wheelbase means smooth riding when short cars find choppy going. Paige holds smoothly to the road when others swerve and bounce. The long wheelbase adds to graceful appearance.

A Completely Equipped Car

Your Paige comes to you equipped with $300 in extras—accessories which you would eventually buy for any car. Look at the list of equipment. Others charge extra—no additional cost with Paige. How can we give all this extra value? Paige overhead, eliminated by quantity production on the Paige-built Jewett, comes to you in the form of substantial savings. You are buying a $3000 car for $2450.

See the Paige—drive it yourself—compare it in important points with any other car you may be considering. An appointment for a demonstration can be arranged whenever you wish. Convenient purchase terms if desired. (2603)

Equipment: Paige prices include following equipment for which others charge extra on top of advertised prices—Two extra cord tires, tubes, rims and covers, mounted forward and locked on; spring bumpers front and rear; snubbers; stop-light; folding luggage carrier; motometer; Waltham clock, gasoline gauge and cigar lighter on the dash; automatic windshield wiper; sun visor; rear-view mirror; transmission lock

START ON DRIVE TO LINK WHEATON AND GLEN ELLYN

Two Mile Boulevard Under Construction.

BY AL CHASE.

Wheaton, county seat of Du Page county, and Glen Ellyn, one of the fast est growing towns in that county and Wheaton's next door neighbor on the east, are to be linked with a two mile long boulevard, eighty-six feet wide, with a parkway down the center.

Reports that such a driveway was contemplated were current several months ago. The project hung fire, however, waiting annexation of the territory to be covered by either Wheaton or Glen Ellyn. A few days ago Wheaton formally annexed a strip extending up to Glen Ellyn's western boundary and work is now well under way on Hawthorne boulevard.

Plant Three Rows of Elms.

A row of elm trees already has been set out in the twenty foot parkway down the center of the boulevard by Frank A. Vanerstrom, manager of the department bearing his name in the Arthur T. McIntosh & Co. organization, marketing the three subdivisions in the neighborhood. Two other rows of elms have been planted, one on each side of the street.

Whether Glen Ellyn will follow the original suggestion, which was for the boulevard to extend across that town to Lake Ellyn, remains to be seen. The new parkway takes its name from Glen Ellyn's Hawthorne street, with which it connects.

Two Eighteen Foot Drives.

Mr. Vanerstrom believes the boulevard can be made one of Wheaton's show streets. There'll be two eighteen foot drives on each side of the center parkway. The building line will be back forty feet from the sidewalk. Lots will be 60x319, and will sell from $595 to $650.

At the intersection of Main street the subdivision firm, in order to prevent a business block from presenting an unsightly rear wall to the boulevard residents, has dedicated forty feet frontage on Main and 189 feet on the boulevard for park purposes. This means a store building at Main and Hawthorne must be forty feet to the north or south of the drive, or back to the building line of the boulevard.

Plan Perpetual Care Fund.

In order to keep the appearance of the boulevard up to a high level an assessment of twenty cents per front foot will be levied on property owners. This fund will be used to keep vacant lots in condition and keep the grass cut in the parkway, etc.

Mr. Vanerstrom states the boulevard will be paved next spring. He expects to open two of the three McIntosh Wheaton subdivisions next week.

Madlin Theater Property Changes Hands at $117,500

Morris Goldman and Sigmond Greenbaum have bought the Madlin theater property, containing a 1,000 seat playhouse, a hotel, and four stores, at the northwest corner of Madison and Lincoln streets, from Louis Marks for a reported $117,500. Marks & Co. represented all parties.

Flat to Be Used as Rectory for St. Simon's Church

The Right Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, has taken title to the three flat building at 4525 Dover from John H. Ferris for $38,500. The first floor will be used as a rectory for St. Simon's church. The upper floors will be rented.

STANDARD OIL BUYS CORNER.

The Standard Oil company bought the northwest corner of Ogden and Avers, 72x63, from the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, for $15,000.

New Home of Westward Ho Golf Club

Architects Krieg, Hetherington & Hetherington have designed the new home of the Westward Ho Golf club, to be erected on Wolf road, just south of North avenue, Melrose Park. Work will start this week. It will cost $240,000, will be fireproof, and is in the Spanish type of architecture. The exterior will be of white stucco, with red tile roof. Completion date is set for next spring. The club has a 340 acre tract. Clarence Bassler is chairman of the club's building committee.

ARMOUR TRACT SELLS FAST AS SUBDIVISION

Flat Building Starts on Big Scale.

"South Shore Park," the eighty acre tract which once housed the Windsor Park Golf club and later was announced to be the future campus of a greater Armour Institute, has made subdivision history for Chicago.

After being taken over by one real estate firm for a subdivision which failed to materialize, it was purchased by the Phipps of Pittsburgh and put on the market by the South Shore Investment company in such a spectacular way that even the most skeptical became interested in watching it move. Page ads brought thousands to Windsor Park and millions of dollars in sales.

Three-Fourths Sold.

"We haven't the actual figures on total sales to date, but we understand three-fourths of the tract, bounded by 75th, 79th, Colfax, and Yates, have been disposed of.

"All the improvements, sewer, water, gas, sidewalks, and part of the street paving will be completed, this fall," said Charles E. Fox, president of the South Shore Investment company.

But if the selling company is speedy the new owners are even speedier, for already buildings containing ninety-six apartments are under construction, and contracts have been let for 100 more to be built this fall.

All Inside Flat Lots Sold.

"All of the inside apartment lots are sold," said Mr. Fox. "Out of a total of forty-eight apartment corners, only fifteen remain unsold. The movement of business property on 75th and 79th streets has been very active within the last ten days, and more than half of the original forty-eight business lots have been sold."

A contract for special street lighting for the two business streets, 75th and 79th, has been let, calling for the Chicago brand of "tombstone" concrete posts, which it is claimed will make them as well lighted as any in Chicago.

Flats Going Up.

The largest apartment buildings under construction in the new subdivision are: thirty at the northeast corner of 75th and Kingston, to cost $180,000; twenty-seven at the northeast corner of 76th and Yates, to cost $175,000, and twenty-four at the southwest corner of 76th and Colfax, to cost $150,000. A store and office building will be erected at 75th and Colfax.

A store, office, and flat building is planned for 75th and Kingston. Work is under way on five three apartment buildings.

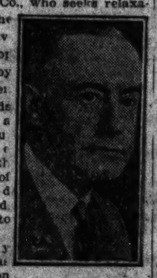
John A. Carroll, Walter R. Drennan, George M. Osborn, and Mr. Fox are directors of the South Shore Investment company.

New Synagogue Near Garfield Park

Plans have been drawn by Dubin & Eisenberg for a new $150,000 orthodox synagogue for the Congregation Aagrod Wino, to be built at the southwest corner of Springfield and Congress, where the present synagogue is. The site is 125x75. There'll be 1,500 seats in the main auditorium, with four classrooms, prayer room and dining room in the basement. It will be of tapestry brick, with stone trim, and copper domes. Work will start after the first of the year, with completion set for early fall. H. J. Berkson of Berkson Bros., real estate dealers, is president of the congregation, and Maurice Dick is treasurer.

REALTOR-COMPOSER TO GIVE DANCE FANS ANOTHER JAZZ TROT

Homer G. Howard, president of Howard, Orr & Co., who seeks relaxation from the hum drum activities of a big loop realty office by now and then writing the words and music of a fox trot, is about to invade the world of jazz with another bit of syncopated melody entitled "I'm Going to Wander."



[TRIBUNE Photo.]
HOMER G. HOWARD

His "Every Day" achieved as much fame when published some time ago as the average professional fox trot and is still popular on dance floors. Mr. Howard, by the way, is not a piano player. He can't even jazz his own music. He composes his song, writes the words and then has it arranged by a professional, which, it happens, is done by many professional composers. The realtor's "Every Day" is now being put on phonograph records. "I'm Going to Wander" will be published shortly.

$145,250 FOR LAWRENCE CORNER.

The stores, flats and offices at the northwest corner of Lawrence and Drake were sold by Solomon Blair and Hyman Arbitman to August Kand and Julius Hess for $145,250, subject to $85,750.

Beg Your Pardon

Leon H. Prentice of Waukegan, whose sister was the wife of R. T. Crane, writes that Mr. Crane never owned or lived at 3319 West Washington boulevard, as stated in a story in this department last Sunday. The information we printed came presumably from a reliable source.

Western Bank Note Buys Site for Plant Addition

The Western Bank Note & Engraving company has bought from the A. Stamford White estate forty feet on the west side of Indiana, adjoining its plant at the northwest corner of 20th, through Oliver & Co. T. E. Wells & Co. represented the seller. An addition is planned.

CEMETERY TAKES TITLE TO LAND.

The 69 2-3 acres on the west side of Halsted, between 124th and 127th, extending to Morgan, have been acquired by the Cedar Park Cemetery association, incorporated, from the Halman Lowry estate for $60,000.

10 STORY HOTEL FOR SHERWIN AND SHERIDAN ROAD

"Devonshire" to Have 360 Rooms.

Sheridan road is to have another palatial apartment hotel. It will be at the southeast corner of Sherwin, on a 100x161 site, and will be ten stories. Plans are now being drawn by Walter W. Alschlager, Inc., and work is expected to start next February or March.

Hyman Holsman, head of the Holsman company, wholesale jewelers, at 210 West Madison, owner of the new hostelry, to be called the Devonshire, states that the scale of prices will be moderate.

The most striking architectural feature of the hotel will be the circular diningroom. It will have a dome and a fountain in the center, with dancing space around it. The seating capacity will be 400.

The general color scheme of the public rooms will be orange, brown, and gold. There'll be a "Peacock Alley" on the main floor in addition to a large lobby.

In the rear of the hotel is a fifty-six foot permanent parkway running east one block to the lake shore, giving the hotel light and air on the south and also affording bathers a semi-private walk to the beach.

There will be a total of 360 rooms with five shops on the ground floor. The hotel will have entrances on both Sheridan and Sherwin.

Brokers' Notes

Andrew G. Schneider announces that as a result of the dissolution of the realty firm of Croxton, Schneider & Co., told about in this department last Sunday, he has organized the firm of A. G. Schneider & Co., with offices at 77 West Washington street, phone State 1795.

George S. Ballard & Co. announce that John W. Arthur has been admitted as a member of the firm.

Mark Levy & Bro. announce that Carl H. Kahn of C. H. Kahn & Co. is now associated with them and will make a specialty of business property. They also state that Fred H. Andres, formerly with John T. Boddie & Co., is now with them as office and building manager.

Rosenfeld & Terman, northwest side realty dealers, have moved from 1803 North Western avenue to the loop, occupying suite 608 in the Woods building. They will maintain a branch office at 2235 Potomac avenue.

Nathan Hymen, Emmert S. Pfau, and Thomas Stenhouse have opened a real estate office at 1151 East 55th, near University, under the name of Hymen, Pfau & Stenhouse, Inc.

Emanuel H. Davis, head of the realty firm of E. H. Davis & Co., has been elected to the presidency of the class of 1924 at the John Marshall Law school.

Rogers Park's Newest Hotel, the Devonshire

Above is the proposed Devonshire, at the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Sherwin avenue, designed by Walter W. Ahlschlager, Inc., and told about more fully in a nearby column.

Clyde and 71st Corner Changes Hands; $150,000

William Kaplan as bought the southeast corner of 71st and Clyde, 125x76, improved with a two story store, office and flat building, for a reported $150,000, subject to $60,000. Ernest and Max Messner were sellers. Tutules & Dignan represented all parties and I. B. Perlman was attorney.

Realtors Ask Mayor to Put Nichols on Zoning Board

The Chicago Real Estate board has adopted resolutions recommending that Mayor Dever appoint Charles M. Nichols, a pioneer in the Chicago zoning movement and a realtor, to the zoning board of appeals. There is no real estate man on the board of appeals, and the fifth member has not yet been named.

News of the Architects

An unusual and interesting swap in partners was made some time ago by two well known architectural firms, although the announcements have just been mailed out by the parties in question. The firms formerly were known as Whitney & Williams, composed of William P. Whitney and Theodore S. Williams, and Oldefest & Beck, made up of Edward G. Oldefest and Donald W. Beck. Their offices were in the Peoples Gas building.

The two new firms are known as Whitney & Beck, with offices still at 122 South Michigan, and Oldefest & Williams, with new offices in the Lake Shore Trust and Savings Bank building at 605 upper Michigan avenue. An interesting sidelight to the change is that Mr. Beck is renewing a business association he had with Mr. Whitney several years ago.

BUY KENILWORTH AVE. RESIDENCE.

Leon W. and Pelagia G. Dyniewics have bought the residence at 1352 Kenilworth avenue from Sam P. and Jean McGough, through Baird & Warner, for a reported $32,000. The lot is 50x164.

MISS MARY DUFFY OF H. O. STONE TO OPEN OWN OFFICE

Miss Mary Duffy has resigned as manager of the Upper Michigan avenue office of H. O. Stone & Co. to go into business for herself. For the present she will conduct her business at her residence, 57 Cedar street, telephone Superior 0608. She will continue to specialize in Gold Coast residences and, of course, will serve afternoon tea at her office-residence. Miss Duffy was with H. O. Stone & Co. since January, 1921. Prior to that she was associated with Harold Bradley & Co.

See-Moon Grocery Co. Sells 4 Story Building

The Mark of Houses Worth While

What Flaxlinum Is

FLAXLINUM is a felted material made of durable, chemically purified flax fibre. When built into the walls and roof of a house it seals the interior against outside temperature changes.

The tests of fourteen years in thousands of homes, as well as laboratory tests upon heat transmissions, prove FLAXLINUM the most durable, most efficient and most practical of all insulating materials. FLAXLINUM is made solely from pure linen fibres, yet costs little if any more than much cheaper made materials. Nothing else can pay such dividends in comfort and economy.

For walls it is made ½-inch thick with flanged edges to permit it to fit snugly between the studding. For roofs, sheets 1 inch in thickness are recommended. In applying FLAXLINUM no special construction is necessary. It will last as long as any house built. It will not crack, break or "sift down."

One-half inch of FLAXLINUM is equivalent in heat and cold resistance to 2½ inches of wood, eight inches of brick and mortar, or 13 inches of concrete.

ARE you one of the families that want a new home yet are deterred from buying or building thru fear of the cheap and poorly built houses sometimes offered for sale?

There are poorly built houses for sale, just as there are poorly made stockings and automobiles. But there are other homes that will stand up with the buildings of the past and surpass them in comfort, in lasting qualities and in economical operation.

Today in this city are being built homes such as that shown above—houses well built, and guaranteed to be comfortable in winter and summer, year in and year out, as long as they stand.

FLAXLINUM insulated houses. Their walls and roofs protected with the same material that lines railroad refrigerator cars and commercial "ice boxes."

It is reasonably certain that the realtor, the contractor or the architect who uses FLAXLINUM is thinking beyond the contract of sale and in terms of the comfort and satisfaction of his clientele. Such a firm can be depended upon to build good houses.

And, therefore, it is worth while to look for realtors who show you the certificate from the makers of FLAXLINUM that their houses are properly protected with this good material. If you don't know these men we will be glad to put you in touch with them.

BELIEF U. S. WILL HELP FARMERS SENDS WHEAT UP

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A material increase in speculative buying of grains based largely on a growing belief the government was ultimately to adopt its efforts to help wheat farmers of the northwest was largely responsible for an upturn in values to a new high level for the present movement for the December and May and to a new high record for the July. Closing quotations were about the top with December at 1¼@2¼c, with December at $1.30½ and May at $1.13¾. Corn gained 1¼@1½c, oats ½@¾c, and rye 2@2½c.

A bull market has been under way in wheat for about three weeks, and all deliveries of corn and oats sold at a new high for the season the last week with the latter within ½c of the best figure of the season. Heavy profit taking sales were readily absorbed, and after the selling of the markets resumed their upward trend. At the last wheat showed gains of 2¼@4c, corn 1¼@1¾c, and oats ¾@1c above the finish of the previous week.

Official News Main Factor.

Buoyancy among belief that the government was to do something in the way of additional relief. In what form this was to be still unknown, but those in a position to know look for important developments shortly. There was also a strong belief that Germany had bought a vast amount of wheat, and that the grain would be held on long term credits, rendering talk of the Gould plan of taking care of the surplus being put into effect.

Buying by Bartlett Frazier was largely responsible for the upturn, as that house took several million bushels out of the pit early and forced local traders to cover. Later, messages from the northwest took an outright bullish view of the situation and the market developed strength as it advanced with some stop loss orders caught on the way up. Aside from the political developments there was little bullish in the news. American sells bought October and November at Winnipeg in the face of talk of an increase in the import duty. Export demand was slow. Milling demand showed improvement with sales of 100,000 bu here.

Wheat Strength Helps Corn.

Strength in wheat and rather free buying by Bartlett Frazier which was supported by a heavy seller to take profits made an active and higher corn market. Local sentiment was bearish early, but when buying orders appeared the market responded quickly. Cash corn was in keen demand and sold up to $1.04½, a new high for the season in the face of purchases of around 300,000 bu old grain to arrive in two days.

Action of the oats market was largely a reflection of that of other grains. Some increase in farmers' deliveries at country stations was reported in parts of Iowa, but there was no pressure of consequence on futures.

Trade in rye was largely of a local character with some buying on the strength in wheat. No export business of consequence was disclosed.

Provisions were unsettled with some buying of lard credited to packers. Offerings ruled scattered and closed 12c higher with January 28.35c, while lard was 2½c lower on October and 10c higher on January. Liverpool lard closed to 1s 3d higher. Prices follow:

Leaders Kempton A. Wilson, Burke W. Best, John Hamilton, and David M. Keefe are the committee in charge.

GRAINS IN ALL MARKETS

Higher prices for grains are following the lines who understand the movement of the government in behalf of the wheat farmers of the northwest. It is understood that the government is to put prices higher. The big advance was due to the buying by the leading millers of the previous days.

One of the rumors of the day was that Germany will buy a lot of wheat on credit. This was one of the factors in the late buying. The plan of wheat favoring selling wheat to Germany is to sell 50,000,000 bu on credit through either the government's War Finance corporation or some other agency and there was also buying credited to the leading American millers' concern which operates in most of the leading markets. Minneapolis said there was a good demand for wheat from millers.

Forecast for the central west and Missouri and Ohio valleys is for showers and seasonal temperatures.

Leading houses who have been the largest sellers of corn futures most of the week were the best buyers yesterday, while among "fringe" there were increased offerings by commission houses which exceeded the demand. Sentiment is mixed.

Congressman Sydney Anderson of Minnesota, chairman of the National Wheat council, in an interview at Minneapolis says that better prices for the northwestern farmer are just around the corner. "I may not be a very good prophet, but there are certain definite things which compel my firm belief that farm prices, many especially wheat prices, are due to rise," he said. The only real danger confronting prospects for better wheat prices at present, as he sees it, is in permitting Canadian wheat to flow across the border.

"You can rest assured that the government's moral support is back of this movement to hold up grain prices, and the men who have been at Washington are thoroughly convinced that the government will lend its financial and administrative support in addition to its moral support," wired T. W. Lewis of C. E. Lewis & Co. of Minneapolis. "I think any man who sells wheat short in the face of the contemplated support by the government is crazy."

Broad the present temper of the wheat trade close observers believe that it will not take much in the way of encouraging news from Washington to start increased buying. The bulge Saturday was started by the report that the President favored raising the import duty.

It is claimed that Germany has bought considerable wheat and will want a great deal more. A Rotterdam grain man who was in Chicago talked pessimistically, not only on grains, but on general business, and intimated that Germany would buy in a moderate way.

Wheat marketing by Canadian farmers Friday was 5,012,000 bu, against 3,584,000 bu last year. Loadings were 2,439 cars, against 3,073 cars last year. For the week there was around 30,000,000 bu delivered by farmers. This makes more than 100,000,000 bu delivered of late.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for wheat at the seaboard shows little change and sales for the day were reported as light.

Chicago handlers sold 105,000 bu wheat, 60,000 bu corn and 45,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with charters for 110,000 bu corn at 3c to Buffalo.

Premiums on cash wheat here were somewhat easier at 1@7c over December for No. 2 hard and 2@11c over for No. 2 red. Receipts 46 cars. Kansas City advanced 1c and Omaha and St. Louis 2c.

Demand for cash corn shows no signs of letting up and prices moved sharply to a new high for the season and closed about the top. Receipts 79 cars. Increased arrivals are expected this week, but a good part of the movement will be applied on contracts. St. Louis prices were 2@4c higher, with white leading this compared with Thursday. Other markets were unchanged to 2c higher, with Kansas City showing the most strength.

Cash oats were in fair demand at ¼@1¼c over December for No. 3 white and 1c under to ¼c over December for No. 3 white. Range of cash grain prices in leading markets follow:

There was a general narrowing of the price range in hogs at the close of the week. Packing grades ruled steady Saturday, while better grades were mostly 10c lower, with the top down 15c at $8.40 against $8.20 previous Saturday. Day's general average $7.75, against $7.85 Friday, $7.65 a week ago and $9.05 a year ago.

Last week's receipts of hogs stood smallest since last October at 148,500, but the total shows 23,700 gain compared with the ten year average. Estimated average weight last week, 244 lbs, against 248 lbs previous week, 244 lbs a year ago, and 228 lbs for the ten year average. The corresponding week of 1915 the average was down to 204 lbs.

Practically half the 2,000 cattle received Saturday were western rangers, delayed in transit. Closing trade for both natives and westerns was dull, with the tendency of values lower. The general average price of good beef cattle for the week, however, at $10.30, showed 45c gain over previous week, against $10.68 a year ago and $8.26 two years ago. Some of the in between grades of beef cattle closed 75c@$1.00 above a week ago and butcher stock showed 25@50c gain over close of previous week.

Lambs Reach $13.75.

Closing lamb trade was best of the week, choice westerns selling up to $13.75, against $13.50 Friday and $12.85 for top kind close of the previous week. Competition was lively throughout the week, country feeders and shippers taking 74,800 of the 131,600 received during the week.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 28,000 cattle, 42,000 hogs and 40,000 sheep, against 25,793 cattle; 39,608 hogs and 39,972 a week ago and 23,393 cattle, 32,221 hogs and 35,757 sheep, the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 85,000 cattle, 145,000 hogs and 118,000 sheep, against 83,294 cattle, 136,599 hogs and 120,634 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 35,000 to 50,000. F. Gehrmann marked 35,000, W. S. Nicholson 38,000, C. M. Nicoll 40,000, W. H. Overman 41,000, E. R. Gentry 43,000, F. R. Burrows, and F. W. Waddell 45,000, H. S. Waterbury 46,000, and C. Gross 50,000.

CHICAGO CENTER OF RECLAMATION OF FARM LANDS

BY SCRUTATOR.

Notwithstanding the bear market on farming for three years hand running, there is no pause in the work of opening up more farm land.

For the last thirty years Chicago has been the center of operations for reclaiming wet and swamp lands. The Mississippi valley has been gridironed with big and little drainage ditches from the Lakes to the Gulf, and the work still goes on. Next to the building of highways, there has been no more important alteration of the earth's surface in the life time of the present generation. Men yet young can recall vast alterations in landscape, and the drainage ditch, is in the lower valley the herald of civilization. The writer remembers, vividly, that he was quite a large boy before he ever saw the sun rise or set on other than a wooded horizon. The drainage movement was largely initiated in this very town and it has spread out from Chicago in ever widening curves.

The biggest works are now projected in the lower valley, but even in Illinois reclamation continues. Inquiry of the local dredging and engineering companies shows that most of their units have kept busy, although their operating costs have risen tremendously and prices for the work have not gone up correspondingly. Economies of operation have been relied upon to keep away the wolf, and here as elsewhere the substitution of oil for coal is noticeable. Dredges are being equipped to use oil everywhere.

Although only 4.5 per cent of Illinois needs further drainage, 102 drainage districts are in process of formation. These projects will add 612,050 acres to the state's arable lands. The state has about 1,200,000 acres which can still be reclaimed.

The states nearest Chicago have most nearly completed the drainage and recovery of their wet lands. Illinois has reclaimed over 87 per cent of her lands originally in need of improvement; Indiana, 88; Iowa, 79; Michigan, 73; Missouri, 77; and Wisconsin, 81.

This state has invested $81,393,244 in drainage works at an average cost of $12.15 per acre completed. Of the land reclaimed, a million and a half acres were dried by open ditches only, while 291,000 acres must be served by pumps.

Whatever one may think of the present desirability of increasing farm lands, and no matter how much one may regret the effect of drainage upon fish and water fowl, there is no doubt that in the long run big money will be made in reclaimed lands. Well within the amortization period of most of the securities issued for drainage projects, the demand for more food producing acres is bound to become intense, and land prices will rise.

Dr. L. C. Gray, economist of the department of agriculture, recently called attention to the fact that the high point in the supply of pasture and crop land in proportion to the population to be fed was reached several decades ago. The area of crop and pasture lands per capita was decreasing for twenty years before the war, and the area devoted to the production of export food stuffs was shrinking absolutely. Despite the increased exportable surplus of cereals since 1914, the per capita area of crop and pasture land now stands lower than in 1909. The increased surplus has been possible mainly because of the reduced area devoted to the pasturage and provisioning of horses and beef cattle. In the nine principal crops there has been no increase in the average yield per acre for the last twenty years. Both of these conditions are explained by the fact that the war time increase of wheat and other grains was largely caused by the expansion into new farming areas, where there is no substitute money crop. After the last stock ranches are broken up into farms, plowed up, and debts incurred for buildings and machinery, contraction is a hard proposition. Nevertheless these former cattle areas appear to have reduced their wheat acreage to near pre-war levels; while the older states, with better yields per acre, have not yet revised their war time cereal schedules of production. In sixteen years, Dr. Gray calculates, an area of crop land equal to that now employed in producing for export will be required to feed our additional population, acquired by natural increase alone.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

(Copyright: 1923: Fairchild News Service.)

NEW YORK.—The week of Nov. 11 has been decided upon for the formal opening of wholesale millinery lines for winter resort wear. The date is fixed by the joint committee of wholesale and retail branches of the millinery trade.

MANCHESTER.—Opinion of the British cotton trade is divided on the question of state control as a panacea for the present depression. A meeting of representatives of all sections came to no decision. Opinion is growing that trade conditions now are better than at any time during the last two years.

NEW YORK.—Local fur trade's representation at St. Louis fur auctions of the Fouke Fur company and the Fur Merchants' sale company, starting Monday, will not be large, judging from present information. Fewer dealers than usual have been making reservation of space. Prompt needs of the market seem to have been supplied at the recent New York auctions.

NEW YORK.—Concentration on high grade shirts is the only means by which the New York market can meet its complicated labor and business situation, according to the head of some shirt mfrs here. New York manufacturers cannot compete with the rest of the country on cheaper lines, they contend.

BELFAST.—Slight increase in buying is noted in the local linen market during the last few weeks. Tone of the market is firmer, especially in the coarse end of the trade. Some concessions are said to be obtainable on linen goods because of restricted demand.

NEW YORK.—Complete quiet prevails in the local knitted underwear market as week's close. The newest cold snap created a moderate demand for heavyweight goods starting in west, but a lull followed. Prices are steady and unchanged.

PARIS.—French fur trade reports business on the increase. Demand from Italy, South America, and Spain is responsible for the improvement. The call chiefly is for higher qualities of mink and lamb. French dealers consequently expect to participate actively in the coming London auctions. Better quantities and qualities of Russian furs are reported steadily coming in.

NEW YORK.—In common with domestic mills, British mfrs woo fabric producers to support resolution for moving of 1925 are less keen for moving of this year's finery, straight goods demand was active and importers look for improved buying on fall, 1923, lines.

High Yield Still Possible in Seasoned Bonds.

Interest rates are not what they were two or three years ago. Then it was possible to get high grade bonds bearing interest at rates of 7½ and 8 per cent, whereas today the prevailing rates on high grade issues range from 5 to 6½ per cent—seldom more. Many investors who became accustomed to the higher rates are still looking for them and cannot seem to understand that such rates are no longer generally available with an equal degree of safety. Such investors are too apt to be attracted by the interest rate and to invest on the strength of this lure without looking sufficiently into the strength of the security in back of the bond.

It is very shortsighted to risk the safety of 100 per cent of invested principal in order to secure 1 or 2 per cent more interest per annum, but this is frequently done. Those who are looking for safe bonds bearing 8 per cent interest in these days will find them difficult to find among the new issues. It still is possible, however, to secure returns as high as 7 per cent, if held until maturity. There are old seasoned bonds, many of them high grade, bearing interest at rates all the way from 5½ to 6 per cent on their par value, which are selling in the market today at prices which make the yield to the investor compare favorably, with equal safety, with rates that could be obtained on new issues a few years ago when interest was so high. Interest rates have declined, but so has the bond market in general and prices in many instances appear to be out of line with the real value of the security.

The investor may do well to look over the bond market pretty carefully before investing. He may find some real bargains there. In doing this, however, before purchasing he should make sure that the requisite amount of safety is there. In this we will gladly help him after he has made a tentative selection of the securities he considers purchasing.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Local unlisted securities were fairly active and moderate price advances were general throughout the list.

Butler Brothers rose from 31½ to high sales at 36. This gain was later partially relinquished, stock being offered at 35½ with buyers at 35¼. Ford of Canada on small volume of sales advanced approximately 20 points to a close of 423 bid, 433 asked. Tilden Axle was fractionally higher at 6¾ bid, 7 asked. Some few trades in Willys-Overland Motors were reported at 9. Buckeye common continued in demand between 40 and 41. Fairbanks-Morse was wanted at 40½, with sellers at 50. Bids of 120 for Burroughs Adding Machine again failed to bring out offerings near current quotations.

Public Utilities were continued in demand at 43 and 44—an advance of 1 point. Beatrice Creamery common was quoted 61 bid, 63 asked throughout, with few reported sales. Creamery Package, ex dividend 50 cents, closed at 31½ bid, 33½ asked. Sales of National Grocer common took place between 7¼ and 8. Albert Pick preferred was generally wanted at 95 with odd lot offerings at 96½. Wahl company preferred improved some two points to 80 bid, with little stock actually offered. National Tea preferred sold at 95¼. By-Products Coke common was offered at 40 with little interest on the buying side. Bids of 72 for Acme Steel Goods failed to attract possible sellers.

The sugar shares were quiet, with small change in quotations. Bid and asked prices follow: Columbia 6%@7. Holland-St. Louis 5½@5¾. Godchaux preferred 90@95. Michigan 54@60. Utah-Idaho 3½@3¾.

Public Utilities were in demand and final quotations showed numerous gains. American Light and Traction was up some three points, closing at 118 bid, 119 asked. Commonwealth Power Railway and Light at 35½ bid, 33½ asked, was up approximately 2½ points; while the Commonwealth Power corporation preferred was equally improved at 72¾ bid, 73½ asked. Sales of Illinois Traction common, ex dividend, ranged between 50 and 51.

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY

At 6% compound interest your money will double in less than 12 years and triple itself in less than 19 years.

If it were possible to assure you 7% compound interest for many years to come, the time it takes to double and triple your money with safety could be very greatly cut down.

But this is not possible. 6% is the customary yield of First Mortgage Bonds. When it is possible to obtain 7%, the additional yield represents simply that much unexpected and unusual gain.

It will pay you, therefore, to investigate this plan of doubling your money while we are able to offer you safety and 7%. Simply mail coupon.

A HOME that doubled in value in 12 years! If you had bought it in 1911 and, owing to the war, had sold it this year for twice what you paid for it, you would consider you had made a very fortunate investment, wouldn't you?

Yet doubling your money in the same period is actually less than you could have done with our bonds—actually less than you can do with our bonds in the next 12 years.

Men take fearful chances to increase their money rapidly. They gamble on the markets. They buy dangerous or worthless stocks. As often as not they lose more than they gain. For one such risky investment that shows a profit, many result in absolute loss.

That is why this point is so vital to you. By investing in our First Mortgage Bonds, which never lost a dollar and are secured by the highest grade of Chicago buildings and ground, you can in 12 years double every dollar.

Here, then, is something most vital to think about and act upon. Send for the Book of Compound Interest Tables, a page of which is shown above, and a beautifully illustrated circular of The Evanston Block 7% First Mortgage Gold Bonds—a most attractive, thoroughly safe new issue. The easiest way is to mail this Coupon.

RAILWAY ISSUES BID UP SHARPLY; INDUSTRIALS OFF

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

	High.	Low.	Close.	Net Chge.
20 railroads	88.86	87.76	88.45	+.71
40 industrials	100.05	99.09	99.84	-.15
20 stocks	89.60	88.72	89.63	+.23

The New York Times.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—In two hours of light transactions, the outstanding movement of today's stock market was the advance in railway shares. No reason was assigned for this somewhat emphatic rise that has not been equally applicable during the last several weeks.

It was evident that today's bidding up process was an experimental move of professional Wall street, similar to numerous other recent demonstrations in a perplexing market. There is, however, this much of genuine interest in such a test—its effect on the outside investor's sentiment. Sometimes the mere fact of recovery in prices for a given group of stocks will help to dispel misgivings about the situation of the industry concerned.

Will Rally Continue?

To serve that purpose, however, a sustained recovery is apt to be necessary and the possibility of that is often contingent on the views of the people best acquainted with the industry. Nearly all of the railway shares had a part in today's advance, and they contrasted with the action of the industrials, most of which lost ground moderately for the day.

On the bond market, also, railway securities advanced; in some cases rather emphatically. The bond market's problem differs from that of stocks, however, in that business reaction, which would naturally put down the price of stocks, will often serve to advance the price of bonds, while increased business activity will have the opposite results.

Cotton Lower; Exchange Steady.

Cotton continued to reflect the influence of the news from the New England cotton mills, the spot price going today to a figure 1¼ cents below the recent high level, which was reached after the September crop estimate.

Foreign exchange rates were weak today. The German mark sank to a price at which the dollar is worth 1,000,000,000 marks and 1 cent will purchase 10,000,000. These figures have little or no meaning, even when compared with the rate of 200,000,000 marks to the dollar a week ago and 3,000,000 in the "mark collapse" of August. Some sidelight on the market's calculations in what might be called comparative worthlessness was provided, however, by today's Reichsbank statement. That, too, was made up of figures which belong to the finance of Brobdignag.

New York Reserves Lower.

This week's statement of the New York clearing house banks shows a decrease both in loans and deposits. In the former it amounts to $21,932,000 and in the latter to $36,435,000. Reserve in federal reserve bank of member banks also declined $11,600,000, and these changes resulted in a loss of surplus reserve of $7,190,250, bringing that item down to $15,960,210. Details of the statement with comparisons follows:

	Oct. 6.	Sept. 29.
Excess reserve	$15,960,210	$23,150,560

RAILWAY ISSUES BID UP SHARPLY; INDUSTRIALS OFF

The New York Times.

New York, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—In two days of light transactions, the remaining movement of today's stock market was the advance in railway shares. No reason was assigned for this somewhat emphatic rise that has not been equally applicable during the last several weeks.

It was evident that today's bidding up of issues was an experimental move of professional Wall street, similar to numerous other recent demonstrations in a rather sluggish market. There is, however, a degree of genuine interest in such a thing as this week on the outside investor's account, sometimes the mere fact of weakness for a given group of securities is taken to dispel misgivings about the situation of the industry concerned.

Why Rally Continues?

To serve that purpose, however, a sustained recovery is apt to be necessary and the possibility of that is often conjectured on the views of the people best acquainted with the industry. Nearly all of the railway shares had a part in today's advance, and they contrasted with the action of the industrials, most of which lost ground moderately for the day.

On the bond market, also, railway issues advanced; in some cases rather emphatically. The bond market's problem differs from that of stocks, however, in that business reaction, which would naturally put down the price of stocks, will often serve to advance the price of bonds, while increased business activity will have the opposite result.

Cotton Lower; Exchange Steady.

Cotton continued to reflect the influence of the news from the New England cotton mills, the most price going today to a figure 1¼ cents below the recent high level, which was reached after the September crop estimate.

Foreign exchange rates were weak today. The German mark sank to a price at which the dollar is worth 1,000,000,000 marks and 1 cent will purchase 10,000,000. These figures have little or no meaning, even when compared with the rate of 20,000,000 marks to the dollar a week ago and 3,000,000 in the "mark-collapse" of August. Some solicitude on the market's calculations in what might be called comparative worthlessness was provided, however, by today's Reichsmark equivalent. That, too, was made up of figures which belong to the finance of Brobdingnag.

New York Reserves Lower.

This week's statement of the New York clearing house banks shows a decrease both in loans and deposits. In the former it amounts to $21,992,000 and in the latter to $36,495,000. Reserve in federal reserve bank of member banks also declined $11,000,000, and these changes resulted in a loss of surplus reserve of $7,180,350, bringing that item down to $15,960,210. Details of the statement, with comparisons follow:

STUDEBAKER COMMENTS
On Four-Wheel Brakes

There is little difference mechanically between two-wheel brake and four-wheel brake mechanisms.

Front-wheel brakes are merely added capacity, of conventional design. All four brakes are operated by the foot pedal.

The emergency brakes on rear wheels or transmission, operated by the hand lever, are retained in all four-wheel brake systems.

Controversy already exists between four-wheel brake advocates as to the relative merit of external or internal types of brake pressure on front wheels.

The duplication of parts, added weight, and increased friction of four-wheel brakes are common knowledge.

If four-wheel brakes were necessary, safe, and simple in operation, their existence would be justified, even with these impedimenta.

The factory makes proper adjustment of clearances between brake linings and drums.

After the factory ships the car, its responsibility ceases for brake adjustments, and the responsibility is shifted to the owner.

Electric starters, battery ignition, and vacuum tanks are acknowledged developments in the evolution of the automobile. They are built complete, encased in housings by the factory, are practically automatic and require few adjustments. Four-wheel brakes are in an entirely different category.

Numerous dealers and factory branch salesmen selling four-wheel brake cars, are already advising buyers that the front brakes may be disconnected, if they are not wanted. This would mean, of course, that the extra weight and impediments would be carried around uselessly.

Other front-wheel brakes are adjusted for such weak pressure that they cannot lock the front wheels, and the brakes are thus merely camouflage.

Four-wheel brakes will cause more trouble and accidents in a month than they will prevent in a year.

In fact, the Rolls-Royce Company states that "they show such decidedly dangerous disadvantages that they are considered unsafe to put in the hands of the general public, and are not nearly the equal of the powerful, efficient, lasting, and easily equalized brake design now employed in our design."

Four-wheel brakes have been a bone of contention in England since 1910, and yet today only 5 or 6 of the 150 odd English makes of cars use them at all. Several manufacturers use them as optional equipment, or furnish them on one of their models only.

Adherents of four-wheel brakes claim that they (1) permit quicker stopping and (2) prevent skidding. These are the only claims made for four-wheel brakes. With front-wheel brakes fully applied, quicker stopping is possible. This is not denied.

That quick stopping which locks the front wheels is an advantage, is vigorously denied. Such stopping is positively dangerous, because steering control is immediately lost.

The claim that four-wheel brakes prevent skidding and sliding is denied. No matter what kind of brakes are used, skidding will occur if wheels are locked before the momentum of the car is offset by the resistance of the road or pavement, whether dry or wet.

Skidding on wet pavements can be reduced to the minimum, with either two- or four-wheel brakes, only by slowing down speed and gentle brake pressure with clutch engaged.

Disadvantages of Four-Wheel Brakes

Against the only advantage (?) of four-wheel brakes, namely, quicker stopping, there are six serious disadvantages which make them mechanically impracticable, dangerous, uncomfortable, and expensive to owners, as follows:

1. Danger of Accidents. With permission, we quote from a recent circular of the Rolls-Royce Company to their dealers, upon which we cannot improve:

> "Basically, the fault with front-wheel brakes lies in the danger of front-wheel skids, which are uncontrollable and consequently vastly more dangerous than a rear-wheel skid.
> "It must be appreciated, first of all, that for their ability to steer the car the front wheels depend on their rolling motion. When front wheels cease to roll they lose all power to steer the car, which slides straight ahead on a flat road, or into the ditch if on a crowned or cambered road.
> "When the brakes are used in an emergency it is of primary importance that the direction of the car should be under control; that is, that the car can be steered from the time that the brakes are applied until it is brought to a complete stop.
> "When an obstacle suddenly presents itself (as in night driving) the driver's instinct is to immediately apply the brakes as hard as possible.
> "If, under these conditions, the front wheels are suddenly locked, disaster may overtake the driver, through inability to control the car's direction, even though it may stop before meeting the obstacle.
> "In traffic driving the ability to dodge—to control the direction of the car—is of almost equal importance with the ability to stop.
> "On a wet or sprinkled city street, granting that the front-wheel brakes were perfectly equalized, the car would slide straight ahead unable to take advantage of traffic conditions, either right or left.
> "If the brakes were not perfectly equalized, immediately the pressure was applied, the front wheels would take on a skid, which would be uncontrollable, in whichever direction the equalization of the brakes was faulty.
> "In traffic driving, under most favorable conditions (perfectly equalized brakes and dry pavement) a sudden application of the brakes checks the car so precipitately that cars following have been known to crash into the car ahead, causing a rear end wreck through not having stopping room and time.
> "It is, of course, obvious that front-wheel brakes present double the difficulty of keeping the brakes properly equalized.
> "Aside from the above apparent defects in front or four-wheel braking, there is the stiffening effect on the steering to take into consideration when the brakes are applied, and the drag on the steering unless the braking effects on both wheels is absolutely equalized. This, of itself, constitutes a serious disadvantage reflected in the handling of the car."

2. Adjustments by Owner. Brakes must be properly adjusted, lubricated, and kept free from dirt, gravel, and foreign substances, to prevent unequal pressure of brakes and possible locking of front wheels. The burden of this responsibility rests on the owner, not on the factory.

3. Added Impediments and Lubrication. Four-wheel brakes double the number of parts in the braking mechanism, add about one hundred pounds of unsprung weight to the front end of the car, and create from twenty to thirty additional places (mostly inaccessible) requiring lubrication which must be applied by hand.

4. Decreased Car Efficiency. The added weight, extra parts, and increased friction resulting from four-wheel brakes decrease to some degree the efficiency of the car. Poorer acceleration, reduced hill-climbing ability, and increased gasoline consumption result.

5. Harder Steering and Control. The increase in unsprung weight, added parts, and friction necessarily increase the strength required to steer the car and to operate the brakes.

6. Expense of Maintenance. Extra service work in repairing, adjusting, and relining brakes puts the car in the shop oftener and increases the expense of maintenance.

Patent Situation

Four-wheel brakes have been in existence for about twenty years, during which time thousands of patents have been taken out in Europe and the United States, many of which have expired, and it is very doubtful if there are any basic patents preventing the use of four-wheel brakes.

European Experience

European manufacturers have experimented with four-wheel brakes for two decades. English manufacturers generally refuse to use them, although there are a few exceptions.

French manufacturers use them more generally, but many cars are equipped with "servo mechanisms," which are an added attachment intended to prevent locking of front wheels, insure equalization, ease the pedal pressure, etc., but this device introduces further complications of weight, lubrication and expense.

Trade Authorities

AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRIES—July 12, 1923

> "In some cases the layout is such that the act of steering tends to release the front-wheel brake, rendering it less effective when the wheels are cramped. If, with this arrangement, steering is made harder, or the brakes less effective on a curve, or when the vehicle must make a sudden turn—as it must often do in an emergency—there is grave reason to doubt whether the braking is any safer with four- than with two-wheel brakes."

MOTOR WORLD—June 6, 1923

> "If necessary precautions are not taken, skidding is liable to be more frequent and more serious than with rear brakes only."

Studebaker's Position

Studebaker research and engineering departments have been studying, experimenting with, and testing four-wheel brake mechanisms for two years.

These tests merely convince us that four-wheel brakes are unnecessary, mechanically impracticable, and dangerous in the hands of unskilled drivers.

The 1924 model Studebaker cars are equipped with brakes on the rear wheels only. The foot pedal operates the external contracting brakes and easily locks both wheels.

The hand lever operates the internal expanding brakes, and likewise locks the wheels easily.

The foot brakes are used in driving, and the hand brakes to hold the car still when parked on grades, also in emergencies, if necessary.

Studebaker brakes are safe, simple, and practicable. There are no more reliable brakes in use on any automobiles.

The 1924 model Studebaker cars are not, and will not be, equipped with four-wheel brakes

FALL STYLES GIVE FREEDOM OF STREET TO COAT FROCKS

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Faith in the coat frock, hope in the high hat, charity for the short street skirt, and love for the slender silhouette!

These sum up the cardinal virtues of the fall season, so it now seems, when we have time to look back and sum up impressions.

Street skirts for the younger division of adults in general permit at least ten inches of daylight between their edges and the ground. More conservatism seem to dominate the length given to stockings for street wear, the average attracting no special note on account of brevity.

There is on the whole a decided attempt to express privacy in the dress of the jeune fille, whether for day or dinner wear.

The most noteworthy exhibition of this is given in a 5th avenue shop often spoken of by women adept in purchasing as the one place above others where one can get styles that will endure. The conspicuous fact of their suits and frocks for younger women is that they are tight at the hips as well as short; so snugly held, indeed, in many models, that an Egyptian freedom of display of the natural figure in the back is the result.

Speaking generally of tendencies observed where smartly dressed women congregate, one notes, too, a willingness on the part of younger women to permit the bust to be modeled somewhat, getting away from the boylike flatness that has prevailed.

Even where youthfulness is not showing off, the firmly restrained figure is most needful at this time, on account of the slim line insisted upon by all garments, however fullness may afterwards develop. That is usually attended to by godets, flares, floating breadths, and the like, manifestly added after the item of strict slenderness has been gained—except, of course, in dresses going in for the fitted basque and the full skirt. Even here the slight figure under the bodice is demanded, or its absence shows up lamentably.

Everywhere we turn in autumnal styles the value of a slender and skim milk diet still appears.

It seems now to be well settled in the mode that all wear for street shall have a coat or coated look. Stress is put upon the cloth dress, to be sure, but largely in its coat frock development. The costume suit meant for maturity seems to be largely a matter for formal afternoon wear. Hip line jackets accompany many of the little, youthful costume suits, whereas the three-quarter length coat is given almost to the costume suit meant for the mature woman.

The coat dress and costume suit appear in every practical display, and there are almost no other kinds that I know of. The test of immediate wearability seems to be more and more applied by buyers. Colorings for the street are uniformly dark, and run largely to black, navy blue, and several shades of brown. A conspicuous exception is the occasional red frock or suit.

Color, however, enters almost always into trimmings. Gay embroideries are repeated in the tones of the small hat, so much so that at a recent polo match the hat colors seemed to rival those the jockies wore, with red in the ascendant.

Capes and floating scarf ends have a great deal to do in fall street wear, both dresses and frocks, to say nothing of the scarf finishes of many evening wraps and frocks.

Again and again the stolelike scarf appears in the daily displays of new French collections distinguishing the 5th avenue fall.

Sometimes the center of the flat scarf appears in front, as a draped finish sewn to the neck, whereas in back the two widening ends give the impression of a brief cape. Again, the stolelike band cups the neck in front and is tossed in rich embroidered ends over the shoulder. Or the scarf or band will come over the shoulders and tie in front, to finish off the frock.

Another View of Today's Figures.

With this manifestation must be coupled the fever for ribbons hanging straight down the back of evening frocks, sometimes from the edge of the decolletege; sometimes, as with a brown tulle dinner gown, making first a high banding of brown moire silk about the neck, then falling in two streamers from a bow at the nape of the neck to the edge of the skirt.

The stolelike scarf of self-material is illustrated here in a brown silk rep afternoon dress from Patou—No. 5—where it finishes the mandarin collar and suggests a scarf tie. The back of the bodice is slightly bloused, and there is an indefinite coat expression about it all. The back panel has no fur on its edge. The circular movement is used in front only. Self-buttons and buttonholes are the sole trimming of the flared sleeve.

Velvet, black satin, and flat crepe seem to be the ruling materials for afternoon. Moire satin and wool alpaca appear. Wool cloth with soft surface, frequently having a brocaded, though one tone effect, creates many street costumes. Almost all have color touches, only they are lightly applied, or at any rate leave much for the fabric to do in contrast.

Something of this is illustrated in the second figure from the left—No. 2—a costume suit by Molyneux. Though the coat is heavily embroidered, there is plenty of cloth to be seen. Tortoise colored wool cloth is used, with embroidery in brown braid, narrow and silver thread. On the coat a flower design is added to the braid. The simple dress uses only slanting lines of the braid and thread for finish. Brown braid finishes the tie sash of the frock.

Often the richly embroidered look will be confined to the frock alone and the inside of the coat, the outside being practically plain. Or the embroidery will be given value only when the wearer is in movement. This was illustrated by a lovely black velvet frock that revealed bands of embroidery on the under part of the sleeve when the wearer lifted her arms. The frock was worn with a black velvet coat showing a skirt border of floss stitchery and silver thread. As the mannequin walked off the stage with this coat she reversed it, and, behold—an all white embroidered wrap with black velvet lining.

No end of reminders of the far east face us in the new collection. Chinese blue on black and the use of gold thread in the Chinese manner are conspicuous manifestations. By the way, the gold of entire wraps and costumes is much paler and more silvery than the word ordinarily brings to the mind's eye.

Oriental influences are seen in No. 1, a coat frock of reseda green silk rep from Agnes. Soutache braid used in rows—a fashion widely employed, even whole tunics being made of it—is relieved with Japanese flower embroidery in color. Here we have another manifestation, too, of the taste for the scarf or tie of self as a decoration. With this model it appears as fringed tabs hanging from the collar points.

Skirts are conspicuously narrow in many models, by the way. They have the look of freedom at times, from a floating handkerchief drape or breadth of goods, or applied godets, or flares; but one wonders how the heroines who display them manage sitting.

The black satin of the mode is illustrated with No. 4, a Patou model showing his management of tiered flounces. They appear in front only, the freedom of the dress being negatived somewhat by a flat and close back.

Furred treatment is much in order with most models, so, to be exceptional, one must forego fur banding, as No. 3 does, and go in for something else—the held plait, for example. It appears frequently, often made of a contrasting fabric, though not color. This navy blue voile gabardine is a jeune fille frock of Miller Soeurs, with soft plaitings set on the edges of its tiered skirt and flare sleeves. It is finished with a red leather belt and bone buttons.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

MADAM AT WORK.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Permit me, please, to present you to Mme. Renee. She is wearing the costume in which she appears about three times a week in the establishment on the Champs Elysees that bears her own name. Ostensibly she is at work, but you would never know it from anything except results. Certainly you would not from the atmosphere of the salons in which the customers, wealthy and great as well as mere moderately priced and rich only in chic, appear.

It was like a reception when the haughty Mrs. Havemeyer and friend appeared with somebody's niece in search of a coat for the last. Of course, it was on the same principle as the small town circus, in which every bank president scouts round for some young relative to furnish him with the excuse of necessary chaperonage to go. The two dowagers were having the time of their lives, and Mme. Renee, robed in white silk embroidered in black, was acting as reception committee for it.

"How pretty it is," exclaimed the ladies, referring to the dress which Mme. Renee wears to work. Here it is presented, the grand surface being white and the trimming being embroidery done in the encircling movement of the day—that is to say, the bands of it circumnavigate the body, except for a slight break of canal effect down the front, and the boundary lines of this movement were hung with black fringes, like bordering willows.

The thing on the shoulder is a handkerchief, white in color and edged with black.

"I put it there because there is no other place," said Mme. Renee.

Nevertheless, some fashion experts are looking to start a movement from the simple expedient of the youngest of all the grand couturiere. Already it is extremely chic to wear your handkerchief stuck up on one shoulder.

It's chic to wear your handkerchief on one shoulder. | These flying panels fold over and are lined with rose-brown. | After one of Renee's favorite conceptions. | Tiers of scallops in a penwiper effect.

The visitors were doing another thing that is quite a fad of the moment. Some friends were having dresses made and had sent them round to see the things while they were, so to speak, "in the work." It used to be that neither dressmaker nor client would permit anything to come from under cover until it was absolutely completed, but now the smart thing is to have your motor go round to the great shop, to mount by the little automatic lift, and on being gorgeously received to announce that you have dropped in to look at Mrs. Very Chic's dresses. Of course, this is a little fad of the moment, which I take to be purely American. I cannot think any French woman would ever permit her clothes to be seen until worn by her and after due behind scenes preparation.

The second offering shows a Renee conception in a mood in which I have not known her, and yet with marks about the garment that stamp it as hers. We are aware that she is always for long lines, with waist bands round the latitude of the knees, but this year she is exaggerating her old line by showing tailored coats that go almost to the hem without any belt at all. In this ogering she presents a coat with a heavenly bit of color set in interesting fur work, and withal a surprise, as if it were a puzzle dress. The way of it is that those long, flying panels fold over, so that the coat is even longer, slimmer, straighter than it now appears. The manteau itself is of brown cloth banded with dark, long haired fur, and when those panels are flying they show rose brown crepe de chine, with the Renee stamp on them of a crosswork of tucks. The panels are lined with this, too.

Needless to say, the collar is of the fur. The wrap is interesting among other things for being one of those combination coat dresses that are fashionable today. The hat has a little band of castor colored velvet on a cloche shaped velvet form.

The third sketch shows Renee's idea of how to use gold which has been swept in on the wave of popularity for brown. The garment is a manteau in "stuff" that is particularly interesting, being a play of wide gold stripes on white georgette. The waist is made particularly full and blousing, after one of Renee's favorite conceptions, with an enormous loose, folded collar of the material itself, and with turned back cuffs in the same manner. As the garment descends into the skirt, its voluptuous fullness sharply ceases and it becomes almost preternaturally tight, and in front it overlaps. This skirt, of white, is quilted in a leaf design of red and dark blue beads.

The fourth drawing shows a typical line which Renee is displaying with a motif of two big scallops, which in this version seem to start at the throat and descend to the knees unbrokenly, where they round off toward the rear of the dress. Under it are tiers of little scallops constituting the lower part of the skirt in a penwiper effect.

There is a huge collar of beaver and a little cloche hat trimmed in a shaving brush of aigrettes. The dress is cafe au lait color.

What's Wrong Here?

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Keeping Boys Well.

NOW is the time to nip untold winter suffering and sorrow in the bud—and we can do it easily, by the simplest of means! When I've explained I know you'll be glad to help.

By far the largest item among last week's requests was for clothing suitable for boys of school age. Behind these requests is a condition which will be grim indeed—or which would be grim if we weren't going to remedy it. The clothing is needed for the little chaps who now are trudging off to school every morning—little fellows who will yield large numbers of victims to influenza and pneumonia in the coming months unless we help.

Their mothers want to send these boys warmly clad, if possible—but, warmly clad or not, to school the boys will go. Poor parents are grimly determined to give their children all the education possible—much more so than the average parent in comfortable circumstances. If warm clothing is lacking the little fellows march off in the morning with holes in their shoes, bodies heavily wrapped beneath shirts to make up for lack of overcoats and the like. Sitting with wet feet and overheated bodies in the schoolrooms and returning in the cold and wet to chilly, drafty homes complete the rest. A momentary weakness—a little undereating—and the little fellow is ready for the arms of influenza or pneumonia.

If, therefore, you have boys' clothing, now is the time of times to give it. Whole sets and warm overcoats, given now, will avert disease with tenfold effectiveness by keeping the little fellows well and strong against the coming winter. You can be sure that practically every warm outfit given now will mean one case of winter illness averted. Won't you lend a hand?

Needed No Longer.

I have an abdominal supporter and a corset for a woman who has a rupture. I want some poor woman to have it, as they are expensive to have made. I have had an operation so will not need it any longer. I have also a suit of clothes for a boy of 15 or 16 who is stout. C. A. M."

Thank you for thinking of our needy friends. Some poor woman will receive comfort from your kind donation. If there aren't any poor fat boys, some mother handy with the needle will be thankful to get the suit to make over for her son.

Elastic Stocking Request.

I am a patient in a charity hospital, just out of Chicago, and suffer from varicose veins. I need an elastic stocking, size 9, and have no money to buy one. I have four children at home. If any one has this article to send to me, I will be thankful.

"Mrs. A. L."

Have you such an article not in use that you will send for the aid of this needy friend? How pitiful it is that one has to be separated from her loved ones!

Large Family in Want.

Would like to know if you could help us? My husband is not well, so we have a hard time getting along. We have seven children, ages 14, 9, 5, 4, 2, and twins 5 months old. If any one could give us clothing and twin baby carriage we would appreciate it very much. Mrs. E. H.

Some one who has a family can appreciate your predicament, Mrs. E. H., and I venture to say it will be from such a one that you receive an answer. May the twins have a carriage soon.

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

No Shoes to Wear.

"I am the mother of five small children. The cold weather is coming on, and the two eldest have no shoes to wear. I wonder if some one has any to give—sizes 12 and 13, any kind at all; also mittens and warm stockings. I have bills from last winter still to pay. Anything you do for me will be appreciated. Mrs. K. D."

We trust mothers reading your appeal and having children the same size as yours will be able to spare enough shoes to keep your little ones supplied throughout the winter.

Help in This Struggle!

Do you suppose any of your readers would have old furniture, beds, rugs, stoves, etc., to give to a poor woman with six small children, ranging from 1 to 12 years of age?

When she came to our notice she was ill and unable to work, having to live on what her neighbors brought in to her. However, we have since been able to place her in our factory, and helped her to the extent that the children have some clothing and she is able to move into a larger flat. She is now living in a two room flat. She is without a cook or heating stove, has but two or three chairs, one bed, and a cot. So you see, anything useful would be very welcome. I know that I could have one of our trucks call for things in any part of the city.

C. R. H.

Here is a chance to help a woman who is struggling to keep a home against heavy odds. I feel sure there will be a response to this appeal.

Sheet Music to Spare.

I have sixty-five pieces of sheet music to pass on to some one that has a piano and would like to have it.

E. S. J.

We thank you, E. S. J., for a generous donation.

THE POTTERS

by J. P. McEvoy

PROLOGUE.

Fortunately for Mamie and Bill, Pa and Ma returned from Germany in time to forestall their complete collapse . . . the frugal hotel proprietor in Venice having cut off Mamie's and Bill's board for only two or three days, they were unusually effusive in their greetings . . . such unaccustomed enthusiasm completely baffled Pa and Ma until they learned the facts . . . presumably it is the stomach and not the heart that is the seat of human affections . . . and now, the Potters, having paid their bill and taken the train to Mestre, where their silver is reposing peacefully, may now be observed wedging themselves and their baggage into Lizzie's faithful person . . . Where to next? . . . Holland, by way of Switzerland, Alsace, and Belgium.

It is one day's run in an automobile from Venice to Milan and the road is like a boulevard . . . Padua . . . Verona . . . Brecia . . . and then Milan . . . .

SCENE I.

PA (to hotel concierge)—Anything to see in this town?

CONCIERGE (passionately)—Anything to see? Great cathedral, one of the largest in the world . . . "The Last Supper," by Leonardo da Vinci . . . .

PA (to Ma)—You know that Vinchy bird? Painter or something. Did we see some stuff of his in Rome, or was it Naples?

MA—You can't expect me to remember the names of all those foreigners, can you?

PA (bullishly)—Well, do you want to go and see this cathedral or whatever it is?

MA—You can go if you want to. I am going to see if I can find a good pair of shoes for the baby.

CONCIERGE (astonished)—You are not going to see the great masterpiece of Leonardo?

PA (loftily)—I guess not. I'm all fed up with masterpieces. De Vinchy or whoever he is won't be any treat for me after what I've seen. Eh, ma?

"I guess not. I'm all fed up on masterpieces."

MA (decidedly)—I should say not.

CONCIERGE (tearfully)—But the cathedral, mio Dio.

PA—The cathedral mio Dio? That's out, too. We've seen enough of cathedrals—they're all alike. Aren't they, Ma?

Ma—I should say they are.

BILL (confidentially to concierge)—Say, do you know where a fellow can get some American cigarets in this burg? These Macedonias are fierce.

(The following day the Potters start out again, leaving poor snubbed Milano flat on its collective Italian spine . . . . a few kilometers northward the Potters find Lake Como, the beautiful, which Ma pronounces quite as nice as Round lake, but not nearly so large . . . . a few more kilometers and the Potters reach the Swiss-Italian border at Chiasso . . . . a nice iron fence across the road announces the fact . . . the usual choice collection of dogana (customs) officials swarm around the Potter car, emitting authoritative noises in Italian and French . . . . the Potters emerge from the interior of Lizzie's innards and are confusedly herded through the custom house and find themselves on the other side of the fence . . . . they are now in Switzerland, but the car, alas, is still in Italy).

MA (coming out of the trance)—But the car? Where is the car?

"No, but I can dance in every language."

PA (to Bill)—It's back there in Italy . . . . Go back there and get it.

BILL (who has already tried in vain to return through the custom house)—They won't let me.

MAMIE (to Bill)—You big boob, why did you leave the car in Italy?

BILL—Did you expect me to throw it over the fence?

MAMIE—I'll get in it, watch me. (Mentally rehearses high school French and then picks handsomest officer for victim): Vooly voo la automobile poor mwah, sil voo play?

OFFICER (with gallant smile)—Comment?

MAMIE (laboriously)—La—la volchoor say don la movays payee, nespah?

OFFICER (with scarcely an accent)—Do you speak English?

MAMIE (absolutely petrified with astonishment)—Why—why—yes. Do you?

OFFICER (smiling a bit mischievously)—Well, some . . . . You see, I used to live in New York, not far from the village.

MAMIE (gasping)—Oh!

(Needless to say the Potters soon get their automobile and have their triptique properly "sortied" out of Italy and "entreed" into Switzerland.)

MA (some moments later)—Just imagine meeting somebody over here that used to live in New York. (Triumphantly): Well, it's just as I have often said, it's a small world after all.

SCENE II.

At the Swiss border you are given (for three Swiss francs) a 64-page booklet in French and English in which are as many of the rules and regulations for motor traffic in Switzerland as the authorities could remember . . . .

PA (to Bill)—Now read all the rules carefully. We don't want to be pinched here in Switzerland.

BILL (rifling pages helplessly)—Gosh, you expect me to learn all these rules? Listen to this (reads): Rickenhof (near Wattwil) Schoenenberg-Ricken, G. 2, no thoroughfare except for motor traffic with residents Bleiken near Wattwil-Schetenau-Buchen-Thurau-Ebnat "Krone" (Crown) G. 2, local motor traffic of doctors, veterinaries, and transport of sick permitted. Section of veterinaries and transport of sick permitted. Section of road Stadd-Wilhelmshohe, H. 2, traffic entirely prohibited.

MA (anxiously)—Then you want to be careful not to go there. Where is it?

(Potters search map carefully and can't find anything answering this description.)

BILL (aggrieved)—Listen to this one: Lutisburg-Winzenberg-Dieselbach-Dottenwil-Eich G. 2, prohibited except for motor traffic of residents with cars of not more than 1 meter 50 width. (Helplessly): I give it up. Here, Pa, you read the rules and I'll do the driving.

MA (doggedly)—You mustn't break any of the laws.

(Bill mutters to himself unintelligibly and slips Lizzie some gas . . . the Potters discover that motoring in Switzerland is not nearly so complicated as it would seem . . . . a few hours of marvelous road and they are in Locarno, with snow-capped mountains in the distance and the marvelous blue of Lagro Maggiore flooding the valley for miles . . . . in the hotel yard palms are growing and creamy magnolia blooms scent the air . . . .)

PA (lolling on the veranda, enjoying his after-dinner cigar)—This is the life, Ma.

MA (feelingly)—I never thought I'd be sitting beside a Swiss lake and seeing snow in the summer. It's wonderful. How much are the rooms?

PA (uneasily)—Just forget the rooms for once and enjoy the scenery.

MA (with some asperity)—I'm sure there's no harm in trying to save, is there? If I didn't watch out for you, who would?

PA (with conviction)—Nobody (under his breath) I'm glad to say. (To Ma): It's dearer here in Switzerland than in Italy, but that's because their money is dearer.

MA (innocently)—Why is their money dearer? Money is money, isn't it?

PA (starting off bravely)—Well, you see, money is a medium of exchange and when the commerce of one country is big the shipments affect the money and the supply of gold goes from one country to the other, and the money is based on the gold in the country, so when it's shipped out there isn't so much of it and that makes the money cheaper. Don't you see?

MA (brightly)—No, I don't.

PA (helplessly)—That's a woman for you. You try to explain money matters to them and it's just a waste of time. Anyway, how can you expect to understand big international affairs? (Proudly): It's all a man can do to understand these things.

MA (regarding Pa with an enigmatic smile)—Yes, I guess you're right. (Changing the subject): Where's all those Swiss you see in the movies with the costumes and the little houses on the mountain sides with the big rocks on the roofs? I didn't see one yet.

PA (airily)—You won't, either. They probably quit wearing costumes about the time of William Tell.

MA (sadly)—And we didn't see any yodlers yet, either. All the yodlers you see in vaudeville are Swiss, aren't they?

PA (confidently)—We'll see the yodlers when we get up in the mountains. Yodlers live only in the mountains.

(Yes, it's the difference of pressure on the lungs that makes a yodler yodle.)

MAMIE (bursting into picture, all dressed in translucent evening clothes)—There's a big dance down in the village, and I'm going. Ta ta!

MA—But you can't speak Swiss.

MAMIE—No, but I can dance in any language. Besides I just ran into that lieutenant we met in Rome, and he's going to take me. He speaks English.

MA (bewildered)—But I don't remember you meeting any lieutenant in Rome.

MAMIE (easily)—Well, maybe it was Florence or Venice. It doesn't make much difference anyway, does it? By-by, see you later (exit floatingly).

MA (to Pa)—What is the world coming to, anyway? Now, when I was a girl——

PA (interrupting)—I didn't run off to dances with lieutenants I wasn't introduced to properly. Yes, I know. And you didn't have the chance, or you would have, probably.

MA—Is that so? Well, let me tell you . . . .

PA (happily)—Forget it . . . . Just look at that moon rising over the mountain and the reflection in the lake . . . . Hmmmm, boy! I've been living for this . . . (regretfully): Only it won't last . . . . nothing really worth while ever does . . . .

MA—Well, we have just as nice lakes as this in America.

PA—I know, but we never have time to stop and look at them. Too busy. And when we die they'll still be there, and we won't see them . . . . Wotta life, wotta life . . . . It's all wrong . . . . you have to spend the most of it trying to make enough money to enjoy the rest of it and then you're too old to enjoy it and you die and go back into the ground and the next generation starts all over again. Life is a mess, that's what it is . . . .

"Why—why—yes. Do you?"

MA (solicitously)—The trouble with you is that you're bilious. Now if you take one of those brown pills before you go to bed . . . .

PA (moodily)—A brown pill!

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

1656—Woman's house dress. Sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 3 yards of 36 inch material, with 1⅝ yards of 36 inch contrasting.

1655—Woman's apron. Cut in one size only. Two and three-fourths yards of 27 inch or wider material and 6½ yards of binding will be required for making.

How to Use the Patterns.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

THE plaits at each side of the front and back of pattern No. 1702 are becoming to every woman; and while many one piece dresses have more or less draping to the skirt, this design with plaits is especially suitable for an afternoon dress or to wear under a coat for general street wear.

The pattern is in two pieces—front and back—the skirt extending straight out from the waistline to give the necessary material to lay the plaits.

These are laid and brought back into position so that the underarm seam, from armhole to hem of skirt, makes one unbroken line.

Lay the plaits before joining the seams by placing the pieces, one at a time, on a large table, so the parts will be quite flat. It is, of course, necessary to have all perforation and other marks on the pattern clearly transferred to the material. Then fold a plait in position, pinning at intervals. Turn the length to the wrong side to see if the under fold is perfectly smooth. If not, release as many pins as may be necessary to readjust the fold.

Baste each plait in position and leave the bastings in until the dress is finished. They will have to be ripped part way at the bottom when the hem is put in, but after it is finished baste plaits in place again down to the bottom of the skirt.

This design is suitable for a great variety of materials, such as velveteen, wool crêpe, twill, or one of the lovely silks or satins. For a dress to wear in the house afternoons wash materials would make up well; mercerized poplin, for instance, being especially pretty.

The center front of the waist is slashed from the neck line to a point a little below the waist line, and in stitching the facing on it will be necessary to run the seam off at the end to practically nothing. Care will also have to be taken not to stretch the dress at this point. Three or four shallow buttonhole stitches taken just at the bottom and at each side of the bottom will help to strengthen there. The dress must be most carefully pressed.

Pattern No. 1655 is for one of those enveloping aprons that most women need sometimes. It is easy to make, easy to get into and out of, and should wash and iron easily—all good points.

The pattern is cut in one piece, the back laps over the front at the sides, and buttons there. Sateen, percale, or gingham will make up well. The edges should be faced with shaped pieces. A single row of featherstitching or chain stitching outlining the neck and sides from top to bottom would be pretty, and one could add a patch pocket if desired. A single initial or a monogram embroidered on the left side of the upper front would be most attractive.

A house dress made by pattern No. 1656 will be attractive. The design is a practical one for the purpose. Two materials will combine well—the waist being made, for instance, of plain gingham and the skirt of pink checked gingham. In that case the bands on sleeves, collar, and sash and the trimming on the pockets would naturally be of the check.

The kimono sleeves are seamed on the shoulders, which gives one a chance for trimming either by small buttons set close together or a piping or bias trimming band.

The one piece skirt is set on to the edge of the long waisted upper part and is slightly gathered on the sides and across the back. The waist is slashed in the front at the neck, this opening is bound, and the neck finished with one of those becoming round collars.

The width at the bottom, for size 38 is about 1¾ yards.

Two Spoons Fell Out.

When waiting on myself at cafeterias it is my custom to put knife, fork and spoons in the upper pocket of my coat. At one time I had no occasion to use the spoons I had taken and had forgotten all about them. When I went to pay for my meal I dropped my check in front of the cashier's desk, and in bending over to pick it up two spoons fell out of my pocket. And all the diners around me were my fellow students. Did I get the merry ram? R. J.

Useless to Explain.

Our grocer often gives little candy or some other treat when his customers pay their monthly bills.

When I was paying our bill recently, he said, "Which do you like, plain or nut chocolate bars?"

Not wishing to appear particular, as I really had no preference, I said, "Both."

He gave me a peculiar look, said "All right," and picked up one of each.

I tried in my confusion to explain that I had meant to say, "Either," but he insisted on giving me both, and I went out amid general smiles at my expense. N. E.

Had a Slick Coming.

An express man, I deliver to a certain place three or four times a week. I've never seen any of the girls smile or talk in that office. One morning I got there quite early; only one girl was in the office. I said: "You sure must have a crabby old boss in here." She said: "Why?" I said: "I never see the girls talk or even smile here like I do in other places." She said: "Thank you! I am the boss here." I slunk out quickly. F. S.

Happy with a Mouse.

We had just moved into a new neighborhood. I happened to be alone in the house when I heard a noise. Looking from one room to another I found everything O. K. until, opening the sewing room door I spied our dog tussling with what I thought was a burglar. I rushed out of the house to the nearest neighbors, entire strangers, of course, and informed them there was a burglar in the house. Imagine my embarrassment when we returned and found our dog perfectly happy with a mouse he caught, which had hidden in mother's dress form. F. O.

Mothers!! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Stop it that instant with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you will have prevented real sickness. Mrs. Ida Williamson of 1637 Pine St., Long Beach, Cal. and Mrs. Lou Brawley of Self, Ark., never have illness in the family because of their prompt use of Syrup Pepsin.

A Great Family Laxative

It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine the more it shocks the system. It was parents realizing anything that was safe to give children, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health

Purchase a bottle of Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and always keep one in the family medicine chest. Give it to anyone from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. You can keep a family healthy with just this simple medicine. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidences of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients and which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open.

MARITAL REEFS

What was the greatest stumbling block to happiness in your married life? Tell us about it; won't you? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Now Pleases Himself.

When I was single my husband would take me to parks, as I loved the trees and fresh air, and we were out three or five nights a week. After we were married we moved near to the park, but in our twelve years of married life not once has he gone to the park with me. He says he had too much park and did all to please me, so from now on he will please himself.

He began to go to card games. I went with him and would sit and watch till I got weary, so I got tired of that and stayed home, and cried my eyes out.

Now I've got a position and got my hair bobbed, but still my husband goes out without me, so I go out without him. We are drifting apart. I know it is the house and two children that hold us together. I don't know how long it will keep up. He doesn't like me and I am glad when he is gone from my eyesight. How will it end?

A. R.

Married Too Young.

One reason for so many divorces is marrying too young. We were both young, and two babies arrived in the three first years, meaning work, worry, and expenses.

It was then I first noticed that hubby seemed different, he seemed to think it was all my fault that there was so much expense. When my oldest was 4, another baby arrived—then more expenses.

A year later he told me he didn't love me, which almost broke my heart, as I have always worshiped him.

We are still living together, but he is so cold and indifferent toward me, it makes life miserable. But I'll fight it through for my babies, as it is not their fault.

My advice is not to marry young, and don't worship hubby too much, as it doesn't pay. Let him do a little worshiping, too. E. L.

How to Be Happy Though Married

BY DORIS BLAKE

Consensus Holds It's Up to the Wife to Keep Romance Alive After Marriage.

Is the power to conserve romance after marriage invested more in the woman than the man?

Where both are relatively normal physically, mentally, and emotionally, may the onus for any waning of the man's romantic love be laid more directly to the woman's actions than the man's?

The consensus is that added to all her other duties the perpetuation of romantic interest is in the main the wife's job.

The task of being a successful and a happy wife is a vocation that calls for almost superhuman effort, if the program of idealists is to be taken literally. It speaks volumes for woman's eternal vigilance, her adaptability, and her indubitable patience that more of her do not fall by the wayside from sheer exhaustion.

Woman the Magnet.

Reverting to the first principles of romance—to get on with our subject today—woman's part is that of the center of attraction, the magnet. By playing that rôle she won her man. By perpetuating it, she holds him.

That her task is somewhat harder as wife than as sweetheart there is no denying. Gone is much of the allure of mystery about her. Gone the incentive to gain "the heart's desire" with its seeming possession in the fact of marriage.

Yet romance after marriage is continued on much the same plan of action as before in so far as the woman is concerned. She still must be the inspiration of love, for it is true that it is nature's way—inspiration begins and ends in the woman.

The great mistakes follow when women try to substitute for it tears, reproaches, and demands.

Before and After.

Before marriage, reproaches, if there are any at all, were conveyed in a manner measured not to hurt. Enthusiasm then was never lacking, and plain truths were sugar coated most palatably, if they were felt necessary to administer.

Demands were not made. They were inspired. Affection was not pleaded.

How was the inspiration accomplished?

First, by the girl's maintaining a high standard of personal attractiveness, including not physical beauty alone, but a graciousness and a fineness which directed a practically painless system of correction and improvement in the man's manners and actions where such was found desirable.

Err in Frankness.

Now you cannot inspire a husband or any other member of his sex by telling him truths with brutal frankness, nor by demanding by all the rights of the marriage vows that he has to love you whether or not he feels the urge.

Love just does not respond that way. It does respond to the same personal magnetism and sweetness after marriage as before.

A promise to love and honor some one can hold only so long as the inclination to love and honor endures. Many women lose hold on the bright ideal in married life because they fail to conserve and use wisely the qualities which first attracted the lover—beauty, refinement, modesty, tact and adaptability.

Perhaps you will say it is bringing love down to a physical basis, when a woman's attractiveness is stressed so; but you cannot eliminate that basis so long as human nature is what it is. Beauty does not mean perfection in form and contour, but it does mean that a wife must continue her efforts to make the best of her natural endowments, which to the man is beauty enough, since he chose her from a world of women.

Inspire—Don't Demand.

It is not an infrequent occurrence possibly within your own personal experience, to meet a woman who recovered the ground she lost with love by restoring the conditions in herself which existed prior to marriage; in other words, by making herself quite as attractive as her rival.

A woman who awakes one day to find concrete evidence of a husband's wanderings has more than even chances of regaining her former position if she will realize in time that inspiration and not demand is the course to pursue. If she has become careless and neglectful of her personal self her husband's love may be but temporarily obscured—not lost.

You cannot tell a man he owes you his love. You must earn it.

Reproaching him or complaining of coldness or his lack of enthusiasm only makes the separation wider.

There are several reasons why a wife's chances of regaining and holding her husband's heart interest are greater than those of a rival. The marriage resulted from love, establishing a bond which is not easily severed, although it may become temporarily relaxed. And the average man has a nature to which appeal may be made, for his respect for position in his community and also honor as a gentleman.

Keeping Romance Alive.

The successful wife and the happy one possesses a finesse, a super tact, as it were, or a graciousness which contribute in large part to keeping romance alive. It is that quality which tells her just what to say without hurt or malice and just when to say it.

She bides an opportune time to call attention to things that may annoy, and she does it with tact. She never resorts to that stupid and cruel frankness which no one of us can stand up under when criticism is hurled at us.

She never reproaches a man for coldness, because that would be admitting failure for herself. She never lets her vigilance lapse in regard to personal attractiveness and personal hygiene.

Consciously or unconsciously, she aims to keep up the ideal she created in the man's mind in the initial stage of their romance.

ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair of which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care the Tribune. Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped envelope.

Do It Quickly.

"Dear Miss Blake: I was going with a fellow for two years until recently we had a plight quarrel. We would have made up but for my girl friend, who lives in the same house as he, told him I loved and was going with another fellow. This is not true. But he believes it. Dear Miss Blake, I love him dearly. Shall I speak to him? How shall I let him know I don't go with any one? I shall appreciate any answer. ANXIOUS."

Of course, Anxious, I would speak to him. I would make it my particular business to see that he was put right on his present belief. And I would do it quickly, too, before the troublemaker has an opportunity to get in any more of her deadly work.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

The Sunbeam

Two Superior Values

is the best electric iron ever made. It does nicest work and lasts the longest.

The Sunbeam iron will give you continuous, uninterrupted service through an indefinite number of years.

Its superior construction makes it practically everlasting and trouble-free.

Such an iron costs more to make. It therefore costs you a little more than some other irons, but the many years of satisfaction it will give you makes it well worth the small difference. Price $7.50.

This Iron Has These

Seven Big Improvements

Compare These Seven Sunbeam Improved Features, Point for Point, With Any Other Electric Iron on the Market

1. Heating Unit Will Not Burn Out — The heating unit is hand-wound and encased between whole sheets of genuine India mica. It will give the longest service and never needs repairs.
2. Perfect Heat Distribution — Ironing surface is properly heated. Edges as well as point have extra heat. Heat is evenly distributed over balance of the ironing surface. It does perfect ironing and cuts down the ironing time.
3. Improved Shape — Iron is shaped to do nicer and quicker work. Fine beveled edge prevents pulling on even sheerest materials. Makes ironing easier because it fits all kinds of work. It is especially made to do this.
4. Perfect Finish — Ironing surface is smooth as plate glass. No place for starch to stick. Ironing is immaculate. Heaviest possible nickel plate and high polish makes iron glide with a minimum of effort.
5. Cooler Handle — Air space between body of the iron and base of handle insures a cool handle. Conserves strength and energy and prevents ironing fatigue. With the Sunbeam, the hand never tires because the handle stays cool and is shaped for an easy and comfortable hold.
6. Reinforced Plug Guard — Made of heavy, reinforced steel. Really GUARDS the plug against breakage. The Sunbeam has this guard that protects the plug and terminals perfectly should the iron be dropped.
7. New Stewart Multi-Plug — Extra sturdy plug that fits your other electric appliances. Has firm, double spring action, but does not bind. Goes on and comes off easy. Keeps terminals clean and insures perfect connection at all times.

Yes We Have No Birthdays

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — "Celebrating birthdays is a vicious practice, because it keeps reminding us of the passage of time. And time, in the minds of most persons, is what brings on old age."

So says Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute, in an interview reported in a current magazine.

"At 30," the doctor says, "people begin to hedge; at 40, wish the calendar had never been invented, and at 50, either become dumb as oysters or else join the Ananias club."

Which unwillingness to disclose the dark and deadly secret is to be highly recommended, according to the medical director. Because it has a sound scientific basis, it is a sensible thing to do, in his opinion. And to support his thesis he has records of over a quarter million persons examined by him to prove that the date of birth has comparatively little to do with actual age. His advice to the general public is to have one birthday—the original one—and forget about the rest.

The date of your birth certificate won't tell anything, providing you keep it bound and gagged with youthful brawn and sinewy muscle.

Suggests Limiting to One.

Dr. Fisk even suggests humorously the passing of a constitutional amendment abolishing birthdays, or at least limiting the number to the original one; anniversaries to pass unnoticed and birthday celebrations to be abolished by law, capital or some drastic punishment to be meted out to the boyhood friend who comes along and slaps you on the back and says: "Well, old man, you're 40 today. But cheer up. We're all in the same boat—every day, in every way, we're getting older and older."

The charge to be brought against him—an insidious attack on moral and physical well being.

Dr. Fisk says there are but two ways of growing old—one by actual changes in the physical organism, the other in the way we think and feel.

Celebrating birthdays contributes wholly to the latter and in no small degree to the former, it would seem.

For example, Dr. Fisk presents the man past forty putting on weight, short of breath, rheumatic tendencies, or some other destructive symptom, saying "O well, I'm getting on toward fifty. It's what a man my age must expect."

Accepting his symptoms as a natural result of years is where the "dirty work" of birthday reminders comes in. The symptoms are not the result of years but of definite pathological causes. Because of the X's on the calendar he lets the symptoms multiply.

The worst effect of regarding mere time as the cause of old age is that it makes us blind to the real causes, says Dr. Fisk.

Women More Susceptible.

And women are more susceptible to the birthday bugaboo than men, he avers. They are more "the slaves of time" by their transposition of the Cloue code from the "better" to the "older" key with each passing day. As a result, they become the victims of "psychic apathy or disuse," one of the twelve deadly causes of old age. Instead of 'fessing up the number of years, then, you are advised to be examined periodically and answer according to the doctor's prescription, or else refuse to answer on the advice of your physician. And in the meantime put up a noble fight against the germs, bacteria, or laziness that are apt to creep upon the muscles after your dreams of getting the world tennis championship have subsided.

And if you would take the doctor's advice—don't tell anybody when you have a birthday. If anyone suggests a birthday cake, insist that it be a shortcake made with blooming peaches. No candles to remind you that these forty little tombstones may amalgamate into one ignoble tombstone ere another ten candles are added to the birthday cake.

Keep the Date of Your Birthday Certificate Bound and Gagged with Youthful Brawn and Sinewy Muscle.

Bad Mental Habits.

"Women are right" says Dr. Fisk, "when they try to avoid telling their age in years. The whole thing is a subtle and powerful conspiracy that makes people grow old in spite of themselves. You can't calculate the effect on a woman if she makes a practice of saying to herself: 'Next year I shall be 40; next, 41,' and so on. What she really is saying to herself is: 'Next year I shall be middle aged and I must realize I am getting old.'

"'Musn't expect anything more from life; mustn't go in for sports and amusements I enjoy today; mustn't expect men to be interested in me, and so on, although I don't feel a day older than I did ten years ago. I must remember I am getting older, older. Before I know it I'll be 50—and then good night.'"

As a constitutional amendment abolishing birthdays would involve the changing of the status of a good many established laws, the most perplexing perhaps the life insurance which is based entirely upon the annual birthday statistics, the chances are we would all be dead and indifferent before the thing came to pass.

Busy Ones Won't Worry.

Besides, the anniversary is so frequently the yard stick by which the husband's devotion or forgetfulness is measured, and to some women there is so much sentiment involved in the candle lighted centerpiece—the chances of following the doctor's advice to the letter are not universally promising.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

by Adrienne Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

E. D.: DO THE EXERCISES AND wear the chin band, too. But do the exercises! They are both good and, added together, they make accomplishment just that much more perfect.

MOLLIE: I RECOMMEND SWIMming as the best exercise for filling out those hollows around the neck and for bust development. It forces you to breathe deeply, and the muscle movement reacts favorably upon the entire upper part of the body. If you cannot avail yourself of the sport, send me an s. a. e., for which I'll send you some splendid exercises, including the same muscle movement used in swimming.

EVE: FORGOTTEN THE HAND lotion formula? Equal parts of camphor and glycerin. Massage it into the skin of the hands every night as before and here's hoping you will have the same good luck with it, which I feel sure you will.

MRS. J.: THE WRINKLES AROUND the eyes may be massaged with a good cold cream or skin food; formula for either or both you may have for stamped addressed envelope. Massage with finger tips gently from the inner corner of the eyes outward. Too, you must get plenty of rest and regular sleep.

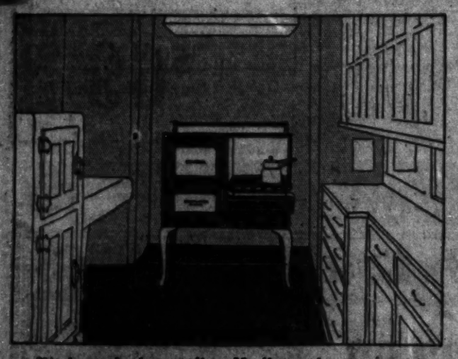
Only the Universal GAS RANGE WOULD DO for the Marlborough Apartments

The above illustration is from a photograph of one of the larger Apartment kitchens of the Marlborough. The double oven, heavy duty 6 burner Universal is used.



Kitchen of the smaller Marlborough apartments where standard 4-burner Universal Gas Ranges are installed.

You will find Universal Gas Ranges also in hundreds of the better and modern apartments

Among Chicago's many new and modern apartment buildings, the MARLBOROUGH stands out prominently—overlooking Lincoln Park and Lake Michigan, it is typical of the very latest in apartment convenience.

Catering to a high class of tenants: people who demand the best. Therefore, the equipment was selected with great care.

We are proud to say that as part of the beautiful equipment in the kitchens in these up-to-date apartments you will find the "New and Finer Gas Range"—UNIVERSAL.

Before leasing your apartment, look the Gas Range over very carefully. What equipment in an apartment is more important than the Gas Range?

Every good housewife feels justly proud to have the "UNIVERSAL" Gas Range, with its streamline design, snowy white porcelain enamel, recessed doors, invisible door hinges, self-cleaning grates—as easy to clean as a china dish.

The "UNIVERSAL" Gas Range is not only beautiful and sanitary, but a dependable and efficient worker to satisfactorily serve the exacting housewife.

Att: Frank W. Hatten, Sales Mgr.

Gentlemen:

In answer to your recent inquiry I wish to state that we are more than pleased with your direct from factory service in supplying the gas ranges to the Marlborough. In some instances we required delivery before the time scheduled, while in others we were not ready to accept delivery as originally planned, in every case you met the emergency and your service has been 100% efficient.

I want to say a word about your range, in this exclusive apartment nothing but the best has been used throughout, the Universal is the most beautiful, most sturdy, most accurately constructed gas range we have yet seen.

Very truly yours,

GRANGER MAKES A FEW REMARKS.

By Raymond Kelly.

"I BEG your pardon," said Ginger, the fox terrier, with polite impudence, "but would you mind telling us about the cyclone?"

There was some excuse for Ginger's question, because Granger was a sight to behold. His right front paw was in a sling, there was a bandage over his left eye, and his beautiful brush had been badly singed. He seemed to be stiff all over, and sick, too, for his appetite was gone, and he only sniffed at the lovely marmalade maccaroons without offering to take one.

His answer to Ginger was a growl, as he made his way over to a far corner of the cave and lay down on a mat, closing his good eye. Everything showed that that collie wanted to be left alone.

But after Wiggler, the monkey, had brought a cold wet napkin for his head, and had lengthened the sling so that his paw didn't hurt so much, Granger felt better, and began to tell his troubles.

"It's all that baby's fault," said Granger. "I dare say babies are all right for those who like them, though I question their taste, but the home is certainly no place to keep them. All they know is to destroy things. Why, this baby I'm talking about is almost three years old, and that's only a year younger than I am, but he has no sense at all. Yet you couldn't convince his mother of that. She blames me for the whole business, though my master says I ought to have a medal. That's a gold license tag with poetry on it, you know."

"But tell us what happened," said Carlo, the St. Bernard, who was president of the Gravel Pit club.

"Well," answered Granger, "you see it was this way. The baby's mother is visiting at our house, and she went calling with my mistress, leaving the baby with the cook, and the cook went to the movies, leaving the baby with me.

"He had a fine time for a while, climbing over my back and blowing into my ear, but he got tired of that about half an hour after I did. So he wandered off upstairs, and I stretched out under the piano for a nap. I was just dozing off nicely when water began to strike my nose. I'd never known a piano to leak before; so I got up and looked around. The water was pouring through the ceiling, and just as I started for the stairs, there was a crash, as the wet plaster went into the open piano.

"Sure enough, it was that baby. He was standing in the tub with both faucets wide open, and was yelling at the top of his lungs. I fished him out but, of course, I couldn't turn off the water. When I turned around, the baby was gone. I found him in the library, with a waste paper basket and some matches. The basket was blazing finely, too. So I grabbed it by the handle, and dragged it into the music room, where the water from the ceiling could put it out. That's how I singed my brush and got my eye full of smoke.

"By this time I knew something would have to be done. I got hold of that youngster's rompers and dragged him into the hall closet. Then I jumped out and shoved the door shut. You just ought to have heard him holler. The doors downstairs were all locked, so I had to push out a screen, and jump from the porch roof, breaking my paw in doing so. Then I ran on three legs, following the mistress' trail to the neighbor's, where she and the baby's mother were playing bridge.

"We have a new piano and a new cook and I guess I'll have some new fur when it's had time to grow out."

Bright Sayings of Children

These unpaid contributions originate among boys and girls who read the Daily Tribune.

Shortly after a freezer of ice cream was delivered at my back door for an afternoon affair which I was giving, Jackie wandered into the front hall from a neighboring yard.

"Hello! How are you?" I greeted him.

I received this suggestive reply: "I'm as well as anything, except I keep smelling ice cream." E. L. R.

Esther attended school for the first time. At supper that evening she had much to tell her parents of the day's happenings.

Assuming an important air, she said to her baby sister, "Well, Ruth, I suppose when you go to school I'll be the teacher." K. K.

Helen had returned from a visit to an aunt who had several children to help entertain her. It had rained so much during her visit that her parents asked her if the bad weather had spoiled her good times.

"Oh, no!" Helen cried. "There were so many smiles at Aunt Mary's house that none of us noticed the rain." H. L. H.

Ernest came home from his playmate's, and on being asked if he had enjoyed himself he replied: "Well, I was beginning to begun to have a good time, but Jack's mother came out and stopped us before we found out which could lick the other." H. L. H.

David wanted to go to school, which had not yet commenced, so mother said he must wait a few days and then she would take him to be enrolled.

After one day the child, growing impatient, said, "Mother, isn't this the day to roll me in school?" C. S. C.

"Can you read yet?" I asked Blair as he came in from kindergarten.

"Oh, I can always read 'cat,' 'cause a kitten sits right beside the word," he answered. C. A. H.

My sister, when going away from her home on an errand and leaving her daughter at home, usually said, "Goodby, Geraldine. Be a good baby and mother will be back soon and bring you some candy."

When visiting my sister's home a few weeks ago, I started out to the store, taking Geraldine with me.

Going out of the door, the baby turned around and waving her little hands at her mother said, "Bye-bye, mumsy dear. Be a good mumsy and Jerry will tum home soon and bring you canny." A. M. J.

The Tribune will pay $1 for each children's saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address Bright Sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

MEN'S FASHIONS

WEDDING GARB

BY A. T. GALLICO.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Next to picking the girl, the ring, the time, and the place, selecting what he shall wear is the most important part of a man's wedding day. You have heard it said that the most momentous occasion of a man's life is when he gets married.

A wedding calls for formal attire, no different from that worn at other functions of equal formality. That is, if the wedding is to take place during the daytime, at any other hour from early morning up to 6 o'clock at night, the proper dress is formal day attire, which is a cutaway coat and the accompanying striped trousers. If the wedding is to take place after 6 o'clock in the evening, the proper costume is formal evening dress, which means a swallowtail coat, and not a tuxedo.

Considering first the day wedding, which seems to be the variety favored by society nowadays, details on the attire are as follows: All of this applies not only to the chief member of the party, the bridegroom, but to best man, ushers, whoever is giving the bride away, and all male guests. If the groom wears a flower in his buttonhole, or comes to the church with a black eye, the rest of the party rushes to do likewise.

We are mainly interested in a formal metropolitan wedding, whether in church, hotel, or home. Weddings in the country are things all by themselves. Many strange outfits have been worn at out of town nuptials that would never have found their way into a city ceremony. As mentioned above, the correct dress for a formal day wedding is a cutaway coat and striped trousers. The cutaway worn by the best dressers is an unbraided one, with two buttons, usually rolled down to one of black or oxford gray preferably a white stripe.

The trousers are a black ground, with although with a cutaway fancy vests, plaid colored, washable materials, or dressed cloths in white, tan, or gray are permissible, the most conservative dressers, many of those about whom one reads in the society columns, stick to the single breasted waistcoat of the same material as the coat, usually edged with white. The shirt should be white, with a stiff bosom. Broad plaited bosoms are worn in some cases, but if you want to be extremely correct and formal the stiff bosom is the thing.

The collar is preferably a wing. As for cravat, possibilities with morning clothes, which mean the cutaway and striped trousers under discussion, are ascot, bow, or four-in-hand. But the latter is most in favor now, the ascot being just about dead. The color chosen by those same dressers who choose the waistcoat of the same material as the coat is gray, with either white or self stripe. A tie of plain white is sometimes used, but the pastel shades used by some wearers of the cutaway are frowned upon by the more important of the style setters. Patent leather oxfords are best. Cloth top boots have dropped out of style.

Should the ceremony be one taking place in the evening, the full dress outfit is the only correct one. With a full dress suit you doubtless know what to wear. To refresh the memory, however, here are the main points. The suit may be of dark blue or black dressed or undressed worsted. The waistcoat must be of white washable material, double or single breasted, with V or U opening. The collar may be wing, plain band, or poke, the wing being most in favor. Shirt is stiff plain bosomed white, with single cuffs, and calling for one or more studs. Tie is always a white bow, long effect or butterfly. Shoes are usually plain patent leather oxfords.

Jewelry should be as simple as possible. Studs may be pearl or small jeweled ones. Cuffs links may match or harmonize. If only one stud is used, it is usually pearl or jeweled. The jewelry for the day outfit, by the way, is just about the same as for the evening.

Both day and evening weddings call for a high silk hat, to be entirely correct. But, as a matter of fact, a great many men wear only the derby. With no topcoat, however, this does not look right. Tailed coats must have their accompanying stove pipes.

DORIS BLAKE'S ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Sent to Apologize.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 23 and go with a fellow two years my senior. Last week we had a few words. It was all my fault. Miss Blake, I love him dearly, and he loves me. But he never makes appointments with me, and still he says he loves me. Can this be? When I go to the store for mother he always stops me, and of course we talk a while. He treats me like a baby whenever his boy friends are around. Do you think that is nice of him? I try to forget him, but I can't, I love him so. To give him up would break my heart. Please tell me what to do.

"K. J."

Why don't you apologize, dear, and tell him you were in the wrong and ask him to forgive you? He is probably just trying to be the "big injured man" and I think if you play on that rôle—and you can do it sincerely, too, because you do care for him—and admit you were wrong, you will win his smiling forgiveness. I hope so, anyway.

Swayed by Jealousy.

Dear Miss Blake: I am 18 years of age and have been keeping company with a girl one year my junior. We never had an argument since we met one another until about a month ago, when she saw me walking along the street with another girl.

I explained to her that this girl was a friend of my sister's and, as we were both walking in the same direction, I should show some courtesy by walking with her. However, she seems to disbelieve me and nearly every night we go out she talks of this incident.

While we both care for one another, I feel much hurt by her actions and would like your advice as to whether or not I should discontinue going out with her.

R. B.

She is a frightfully jealous and unreasonable young woman, Richard. It seems to me I would be a little bit afraid of a girl like that.

All the Better Stores are showing these beautiful rugs—priced exceedingly low

Really remarkable they are—these rugs woven by an entirely new method. Remarkable both in beauty and charm of their design and coloring and in the exceptionally moderate prices at which they are sold.

They are the kind of rugs you have always wanted in your home—soft, smooth and pliant underfoot; thick and noiseless; and beautiful as you thought only a very high-priced rug could be.

More than that, they are exceptionally durable—with a sturdy resistance to hardest wear that is really amazing. Each rug is finished on both sides, giving double service. You can afford them for every room in the house—living room, dining room, bedroom, hall and sun room—even for the porch. From their delightful designs and colorings you can build up charming decorative effects. Plain bordered styles prove equally effective.

SOFT

Don't fail to see Kimlark Rugs—on display in all the better stores. Ask about their special features—qualities you did not know could be found in any rug. And be sure to price them. LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your family or family possession you would like to enter in the contest send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. All no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

IF YOU CARE AT ALL.

DARLING GIRL: I will never forget the way you looked when you said good-by. Your last kiss will be on my lips always. Time can never rob me of that memory. All that I love has been taken from me; my heart has been crushed and torn; my soul is gone, but those wonderful pictures will remain forever in my mind.

I love you, dearest girl, more than you can ever know, and that love will go on till the end of time. Sometimes I feel I am going mad, that something in my mind must break, and I pray to God to give me faith, but always I can hear that voice snarling, "Fool, you will never see her again."

Dearest, if you love me as you say you love me, you must change your mind. What can anything matter, if we have each other? Our love is greater than any force that is now, or ever will be, and yet you hesitate. No sacrifice is too great if it will result in our marriage. I have done wrong, but God knows I have suffered because of that wrong. I will do anything, anything, if you will only forgive me.

Had I known you would come into my life, all would have been different. I had never known what happiness was until God gave me you. Then came the terrible realization that you must know everything, and I laid my soul bare before you, praying that you would forgive. I have tried to drive the haunting memory of that night from my mind, but in vain. You said you could not forgive.

Girl that I love, if you care at all, you must forgive. I cannot go on, knowing I have killed the love I would die for—the love that means everything to me. Let me prove worthy of you. I would gladly go through all the tortures of hell to win back your love and forgiveness. Please, please, reconsider! Think how awful is the punishment you have placed upon me. It will drive me mad. I can't—I can't go on without you!

Your broken sweetheart,

JIM.

Downy Rest Bed Springs
They Rest You All Over

The "Downy Rest" Spring is as soft as a feather bed. It instantly adjusts itself to the contours of the body—responds immediately to the slightest movement or pressure.

The spring that rests you all over. After the first night you will decide that you can't do without it. No noises to disturb—no sagging, just an even, soft surface that rests you all over—"individually." When you awaken you feel fine—you look refreshed. Ask your dealer.

The New "FRANCONIA"

A Floating Palace of Luxurious Recreation

The S. S. FRANCONIA, which will be your home for the 133 days of this Cruise, is the newest of the splendid Cunard Fleet. Built especially for long distance cruising—safe and speedy—she has the most modern accommodations for pleasure and comfort. Numerous beautiful suites. Every room with running water, many with private bath. Immense swimming pool, garden lounges, cafes, smoking and music rooms. Big clear decks for promenade, for sport and for dancing. A fine orchestra. Lectures and informal talks by travel and commercial experts on all places to be visited. Famous Cunard Management and Cuisine.

Most Delightful Party Assured

Only a few of the most desirable staterooms are still available. Bookings already made indicate a party of exceptional interest and prominence from all states. The Franconia Party will be limited to a number far below her comfortable capacity and will not be increased. Do not miss this supreme opportunity to see and know the world. A thousand vacations in one;—and so easily arranged.

Expert travel representatives of the American Express will gladly call on you to explain every detail and to relieve you of every care in making arrangements. Just mail attached coupon to nearest American Express office. No obligation if you cannot go.

Illustrated booklet of Cruises with full itinerary, special trips, deck plans, prices, etc., on request.

AMERICAN EXPRESS—In the World of Travel

Varied and dependable World Service in the fields of International Commerce, Shipping, Banking and Travel has made "American Express" one of the best known and most generally appreciated names in the world.

Travelers abroad have long recognized the almost magical power of "American Express." American efficiency, practical ability, courtesy and the desire to serve, have established the International Offices of the American Express everywhere as headquarters—for service—of the world's travelers.

These International Offices of the American Express dot the route of the Franconia's Cruise 'Round the World. Every detail for the comfort and convenience of the Franconia party ashore, and on its many inland journeys, has been planned by these local offices. The best of everything everywhere is thus assured.

The American Express has operated more than 500 Conducted Tours—Around the World—thru South America, everywhere in Europe and to every place of interest in our own land. Since the close of the War it has conducted 18 Specially Chartered Cruises;—the Mauretania to the Mediterranean, to South America, West Indies, Hawaiian Islands and Around the World.

The present Cruise of the Franconia is the result of the splendid success of the American Express Cruise of the Laconia 'Round the World last year—a Cruise which greatly stimulated world cruising in general and which is responsible for the character and the many early bookings on the Franconia.

American Express Travel Directors in charge of Cruises are all Travel experts with long and varied experience. A staff of 16 accompanies the Franconia, all but 3 of whom have been around the world. The Director in charge has a record of 21 years travel service—10 years in conducting similar long distance cruises.

To the American Express Travel Department has fallen the honor of arranging and managing many recent and important tours of official bodies: Knights of Columbus Tour to Europe, 1920, International Chamber of Commerce Convention to Rome, 1923, International Students' Tours to Europe, 1921-22-23, British World Alliance Convention to Stockholm, 1923.

The American Express Company is the authorized agent of all steamship companies throughout the world; the agents for railway tickets on all European lines and for all lines in China, Japan, India and other foreign countries.

American Express Travelers Cheques (32 years ago) first gave the foreign traveler a feeling of security in his travel funds. Today half a million American travelers carry American Express Travelers Cheques annually—both as a protection to their travel funds and because of the widely recognized value of the personal service of the "American Express" to travelers in foreign lands.

Thus, from every point, age, experience, and the superior travel facilities of its world organization, the American Express establishes itself as preeminent in the extent and character of the service rendered to Americans who travel.

Cost of this Cruise—little more than expenses over the same period at home. Mail attached Coupon at once to your nearest American Express Office—

November and Westward

The Right Time, and Direction, for a World Cruise

Sailing westward, and in November—following the setting sun—brings the Franconia party to its most interesting lands when these lands are enjoying their short but delightful season under the most favorable climatic conditions. Especially is this true in the tropical Orient—the Philippines, Dutch East Indies, India and Egypt. Midday temperature will average about 71°. Excessive heat or cold and stormy weather at sea will be avoided most generally over the entire cruise. The balmy, spice laden air of the tropics takes the place of the blustering winter of December and January at home. And who would not give up Christmas at home for the privilege of going Around the World at the proper season of the year in an ideal ship under ideal conditions. Only six of the 13 days scheduled for Japan lie in the affected area. These will be rearranged as conditions warrant.

Follow the Cruise on the Map

Follow the Cruise of the Franconia on the map. Every port of call, every land visited, has been selected from hundreds of interesting places by experienced travelers who know what is most desirable. Each place represents some supreme interest of the world's present day life or past history. But quite as important to the traveler as the places themselves, is the time of year in which they are visited. For this reason the Cruise of the Franconia sails westward in November.

All expenses on land and sea are included in the initial cost of the cruise. Many special trips inland are offered, optional.

The Store of To-day and To-morrow

THE FAIR

Established 1875 by E. J. Lehmann

State, Adams and Dearborn Streets

48th Anniversary Sales

THE 48th Anniversary of the founding of this business enables us to point with justifiable pride to the accomplishments of the past all due to our prices which have always been kept at the lowest level at which quality can be purchased, and the spirit of service on which this store was founded. Knowing the values our patrons received in our previous Anniversary sales, it has been no easy matter to surpass the values of these former events.

But it is gratifying to be able to say that the values in this, our 48th Anniversary sales, are greater than ever before. This event will add another link in the chain of value-giving sales for which The Fair has become famous. Sales begin Monday and continue all week. Regardless of your want, you will find it here during this Anniversary sale, and at prices that will satisfy the most critical. Watch the daily papers for other special features, and plan to shop in the early morning hours when stocks are fresh and complete.

Anniversary Sale—Women's, Misses' Frocks and Coats

The Frocks at $19.75

FROCKS which represent the very height of fashion—supreme in mode, superior in workmanship, rich of fabric, are offered in this great Anniversary selling. Concentrated effort, careful searching of markets, has resulted in the group of beautiful, fashionable models displayed at this time. The woman whose wardrobe needs replenishing will welcome this opportunity—the woman who is just buying her fall and winter costumes will revel in the values! Every woman will find use for one or more frocks at this price.

FROCKS OF CANTON CREPE, SATIN CANTON, PASHA CREPE, FINE TWILLS AND LACE, ALL TRIMMED IN BEADS AND EMBROIDERY; OTHERS IN TAILORED EFFECTS

THE chic models of the moment—the graceful, slender silhouette favored for fall—have been adapted charmingly in these models, for street, sports, afternoon, evening, dress or business wear. The array is so inclusive that we can merely hint at the variety in our illustrations. You must inspect the frocks themselves.

There Are Sizes from 16 to 46 in the Group

Third Floor.

The Coats at $34.75

WINTER coats at so phenomenally low a price are a revelation! Coats that conform to all the dictates of fashion—coats that are essentially new and smart—use the side-tie effect whether they fasten with buckle, sash tie or ornament. Many are elaborately trimmed with stitching or tucks. Brown, black, deer, gray and navy indicate the completeness of the color range. And they have not only style, smartness of line, but warmth, without which no winter coat is desirable.

THE NEW SOFT WEAVES ARE USED IN THESE COATS, ALL OF WHICH ARE FULLY LINED WITH SILK AND BEAUTIFULLY FUR TRIMMED

KOREAN fox, nutria, natural Australian opossum, viatkaline and muskrat make good looking collar and cuff sets, which have the added desirability of service. They will wear well. They are smart! And the price is so inconceivably low that you will be surprised at the values!

There Are Sizes from 16 to 46 in the Group

Third Floor.

Extra Size Dresses

Of Canton Crepe

$21.75

SELDOM are dresses of such quality offered at so low a price, and the larger woman who requires a new frock will hasten to take advantage of this opportunity. Side draped and paneled skirts sacrifice no beauty to the demand of the larger figure. Sleeves are three-quarters and full length. Tucks, buttons, braid, ribbon and stitching are artistically used. Navy, black and brown are the colors. Sizes 40½ to 56½.

Special Values in Extra Size Suits $24.75

Remarkable value—all of the new twill weaves—expressly suited to the larger figure. Superior in tailoring and workmanship, simply trimmed with stitching and braid, these navy and black suits are recognizable values.

Extra Size Coats of Bolivia

Fashioned of Bolivia, these are outer garments distinctive in style, enveloping warmth and good line, lined throughout with superior satin and crepe. Stitching and embroidery appear on many. Smart touches add unusual quality. They are very low priced at $37.75

Third Floor.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

CORN AND PUMPKINS.

At various periods in our past a great deal of patriotic feeling has centered around Indian corn.

Considerable sentiment of a more or less national order has been expended on the pumpkin "with the crust on it." These are indeed our leading harvest symbols.

The pumpkin and corn stalk have been the main and showiest decorations for the harvest festivals, and sometimes rather beautiful handiwork has gone into making them unusually interesting. Of course, the pumpkin is indispensable to the small boy, and lately to the grocery clerk, in preparing for the ghoulish glees of Hallowe'en. It is nowadays carved quite expertly in fantastic imitations of a man's head.

An "all-American" menu in England is likely to include pumpkin pie and something made of Indian corn, but, to be quite specific, pumpkin pie is really one of the positively New England contributions to the national menu. I was brought up on pumpkin pies with a dark brown top with a shining custard-like skin.

It took me many years to discover why the ordinary American pumpkin pie was always a disappointment, with none of the deliciousness of those state of Maine pies of my childhood. I knew now that the reason is that the pumpkin in them is not cooked long enough, or until it is a rich dark color. To secure that color by adding spices does not make a pie of that delicate, want-some-more and want-it-often type which the old pies had.

Secret of Grandmother's Pies.

Long cooking, and until the pumpkin is dark, develops the flavor, a flavor that no more corresponds to that of pumpkin cooked merely till tender, after which the flavor it has is deadened by spices than the flavor of poorly boiled rice corresponds to the flavor of poor man's rice pudding. And yet some people writing as late as September, 1923, begin an article on spices and flavors thus: "And what was the secret of grandmother's pumpkin pies? Plenty of spice—cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger, and cloves, and sometimes a dash of allspice."

It was not my grandmother's secret, and I fear the writers of the article were inspired to write it for the same reason many other articles on the subject have lately been printed. A spice company was offering a hundred dollar prize for the best printed article on the subject of spices.

How to Cook Pumpkin for Pies.

Choose a rather small pumpkin, wash, cut it in two, parallel to the stem and blossom end, and remove the seeds (the gray squirrels will thank you for them) and most of the pulp. Do not scrape off the pulp that adheres closest and is without seeds, for it is the sweetest and most highly flavored part.

Cut each half into convenient pieces for paring, or put a waxed paper over half and cook it later if you have but a small double boiler. Pare the small pieces and cut them into cubes an inch or so square. Put into the top of a double boiler and cook gently and until the pumpkin is dark and looks rather dry, then put through a fine sieve. Formerly pumpkin in large quantities was stewed with a little water on the top of stoves burning wood, but on the back part of the stove and not over the firebox. We can make something like this in the fireless cooker, with stones but not without, but the double boiler is best.

Crust for Pumpkin Pie.

A pie crust recipe is always debatable. For a custardlike pie a breadlike crust that will not soak is perhaps most wholesome, but if the crust is too thick the filling may break away from it when it is cut, and that is not satisfactory. Therefore, expert pie-makers make it thin as of old with a double edge, crimped with the fingers. A pie tin with large scallops lined with crust and the lining cut off sharply at the edges after being well pressed in is rather good and it may be quite deep, so that one gets but a small amount of crust in proportion to the filling.

For a small but deep pie the following proportions may be sufficient: Three-fourths of a cup of sifted pastry flour, one tablespoon each of butter and lard, a little salt, and enough ice water to make a mixture of the right thickness to roll out thin—three or four tablespoons. A nice way to do is to chop the shortening into the flour with a bread cutter, then wet only part of the mixture and work the rest into it quickly and lightly. It always rolls better if it stands on ice for fifteen minutes or longer. But if you can make the more expensive puff paste of the light order it is best for a pumpkin pie, or for any other for that matter.

Pumpkin Filling

Pumpkin cooked until it is dark and dry will swell when put into milk, especially if the latter is hot. Two cups and a half of filling are about enough for one nine inch wide pie, and you can vary the amounts of milk and pumpkin used about to suit yourself, for the latter is sure to vary in quality and wetness or dryness anyway, and you have but to consider it as a filling in a custard to get a variety of effects. Remembering that you need two cups and a half in all, take one cup of pumpkin or one cup and a half with enough milk to make the measure, always remembering that part cream makes a superior pie.

If you must add spices in any quantity—that is, if you want a spice pie as you get spice cake on much the same terms—be especially careful to restrain yourself on the ginger. Mix the spices with the sugar which may be to taste or up to three-fourths of a cup with two eggs. A little salt, one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon, and a few grates of nutmeg make seasoning enough for my taste when the pumpkin is right. You will not need whipped cream on such a pumpkin pie as you almost do on one highly spiced. Bake in a medium oven.

By the way, if you do not use a little cream in a pumpkin pie, it is a good plan to use about two tablespoons of butter, although you can get on without it. Good sweet butter enhances the pumpkin as it does a vegetable for the table. Do not "slop" a filling on a crust. Fill crust partly full and add rest when the pie is in the oven.

Crustless Pumpkin Pie.

The putting of flour in some liquid pie filling, since it will sink to the bottom of the mixture, taking the place of a crust, may do well with a pumpkin filling, but it is possible to do much better sometimes in the baking of such a pie than others, or to gain much skill in such baking. At the worst one may get a soggy, unedible sort of thing.

Of course, the heat must never be such as to make a filling actually boil, but when it is near to that success may be had with the following: One cup of quite dry sifted pumpkin, two cups of rich milk [rich with cream], two eggs, six to eight tablespoons of flour, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, a pinch of cloves, a little nutmeg, and a half teaspoon of salt. Butter pie tin and pour in mixture. If it should crack in the baking, the oven was too hot.

Miss Farmer's Pumpkin Pie Formula.

The following formula is widely printed with all sorts of claims to ownership, but it probably originated with Miss Farmer or with some one earlier. Just the other day I saw it credited to a late cook book, perhaps because a tablespoon of orange juice had been added to it: One and one-half cups of steamed and strained pumpkin, two-thirds cup of brown sugar, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of ginger, one-half teaspoon of salt, two eggs, one and a half cups of milk, one-half cup of cream. Mix ingredients in order given and bake in one crust.

White Corn Meal Cereal.

Because I did not discover for so long a time how delicate and satisfactory a hot cereal white corn meal made—superior, it seems to me, to farina or granulated hominy in flavor, and by

How well—not how long—did you sleep last night?

If the quality and depth of every one's sleep were the same, it would be an easy matter to determine the number of hours of sleep required to sustain the highest degree of mental energy and physical health and vigor.

But only those who waken naturally, fully rested and ready for the day, sleep well enough and long enough. If your mornings always come too soon, you are being cheated. Your sleep equipment may be the cause.

Because the quality of sleep you get depends almost wholly upon the kind of spring and mattress you use, aren't they worth your careful consideration right now?

Spare a few minutes tonight to examine your bedding critically. Then go to your furniture dealer's and get acquainted with the incomparable comfort of the Simmons mattresses and springs he offers—in a range of types and prices to suit luxurious tastes or thrifty pocketbooks.

Practical and Fancy Needlework

BY CLOTILDE

PRETTY PETTICOAT SUGGESTIONS.

PETTICOATS, whether of crêpe, silk, or satin, are a decidedly expensive item in a woman's wardrobe, if bought ready made.

They do not take long to make—even the prettily trimmed ones—and most women like to own several at a time.

Printed crêpe makes a pretty petticoat to wear under frocks that are not transparent. Only two lengths are needed. One attractive one recently seen was made of printed crêpe in which blue and tan predominated. The bottom of the skirt was cut in eight scallops, rather broad and deep, and these were finished with a binding of black taffeta about one inch deep.

The binding for each scallop was cut separately, and as can be seen in the picture, the binding, instead of making a turn at the end of a scallop, is cut a few inches longer than is needed to bind one scallop and allowed to extend up on the skirt—the end of the binding for one scallop and the beginning for the next one crossing. The picture will show just what is meant. And the effect is decidedly pretty.

The seams of the crêpe should be French, sewed by hand, with a fine running stitch. It will make the skirt stronger if a deep hem is allowed for in the cutting, or set on before cutting the scallops. Take plenty of time in basting the binding on around the bottom, and the stitching must be most carefully done, as it will come right on the edge all the way.

Another lovely petticoat was made of deep yellow georgette. The two lengths are cut and sewed together as usual, allowing for a good hem. Then the georgette is cut in two inch strips, so as to make five ruffles. These strips should be hemmed with the narrowest hemmer that comes with a machine, and then knife plaited. The ruffles are set on so that the stitching comes one-quarter inch below the top—making a little heading. The first ruffle should be set on so that the lower edge of it comes to the bottom of the skirt, and the other four ruffles are set on four or five inches apart.

Tiny ribbon flowers may be set on the top of the third ruffle each side of the middle of the skirt—just to give that dainty finishing touch.

fat—I imagine others do not know about it. It is extremely easy to cook, and may be put into molds when hot and used with sugar and cream in place of a pudding when well chilled.

For a small portion take one-half cup of the meal, which when sold in bulk is sometimes called "cream of corn meal," add two cups of cold water and a half teaspoon of salt or a little more to it in the top of a double boiler, and let cook for one hour or longer. This does not heat up well, therefore, it is better to cook only so much as is needed, unless it is to be used cold as a dessert.

Philadelphia Scrapple.

Here is a repeat of a recipe printed not long ago which was appreciated because the portions were small. I tested it out just to get these small and inexpensive proportions. Most likely this famed and excellent viand is so little known because the old recipe for it were large, and the meat not a little difficult to manage. Scrape of any adhering dirt and wash one pound of spare ribs, add one quart of water, one or two onions, some dried or fresh celery leaves, and what you choose else of flavorings. The old recipes always called for sage, but it is well to go lightly on that, for it is too little known perhaps today to be in old time favor. I never liked it except when used lightly in true farm sausages.

Bring water to boil, with its collection of meat and seasonings, and cook the whole at a simmering temperature until the bones will slip out of the meat. Shred meat from gristle, and strain the liquor. There is no need to let it cool to remove the fat. Into a pint of this liquor stir one-half cup of yellow corn meal and a tablespoon of flour, stirring until it all thickens, then add the shredded meat and cook gently an hour or more.

Turn into a small bread pan, rinsed out with cold water. Let it set, and when ready to use cut it in rather thick slices and fry in bacon or other fat. Some rashers of bacon may be served with it. In its final preparation it should be cooked so as to have a delicious brown crust which will not peel off when the fork cuts through it.

By the way, in printing this the first time, I did not make the point about adding the shredded meat clear. Sorry, but people seemed to know that it should be or why shred it, and liked the recipe.

Varied Activities of the Women.

Ripley Lane, England, has a woman professional tea taster.

Ugly woman are the most attractive, according to Mlle. Polaire, the Parisian actress, who boasts she is the homeliest woman in the world.

Los Angeles, Cal., now boasts of a woman bricklayer. Mrs. Anona Hildebrandt, who is building her own home in the foothills of that city.

Mrs. Amy Slavin Matheson, once noted child actress, has reared a family of four in total darkness. She lost her sight one year before her marriage and has never seen her husband or children.

Miss Celia Gavin, city attorney for The Dalles, Ore., is believed to be the only woman in full charge of a city's legal affairs west of the Rockies.

Dr. Irene Behnke of Chicago, first woman physician in Illinois, will have charge of the organization plans of the American narcotic crusade in Los Angeles, Cal.

For the past 22 years Miss Emma R. Knoll has been secretary and manager of the Southwest Missouri Fair.

Miss Cora C. Colburn, for many years director of the commons at the University of Chicago, will have charge of the dining halls at Yale this year in an attempt to make the enterprise self-supporting.

Dr. Anna W. Hochfelder, assistant corporation counsel in New York City, will head a half million women in that city to fight fake coal during the coming winter.

DUTCH COLONIAL HOME.

QUAINTNESS and practicability are conspicuous features in this attractive five room Dutch colonial home, designed by Architect J. S. Whitman of Buffalo, N. Y. Because of its wide divergence from the commonplace city residence, a home of this type is especially interesting. Distinctive home architecture has come to the fore within recent years in the revival of individual home construction on a large scale. An attractive and homelike atmosphere is carried into designs of building which, a few years ago, was almost forgotten, except where expensive homes were built.

Now, however, since prominent architects have gone into designing homes for families of moderate means, the landscape is dotted with a new type of construction which reflects the character of its occupants to an extent hitherto unknown. Frankly, we can think of nothing which is doing so much to promote the good of the nation as this present trend in better housing. It will be reflected in the lives and characters of the new generation for all time. Having been fostered and splendidly carried out by the architectural fraternity, it is a distinctly worthwhile contribution to the well being of the nation.

Commanding favorable attention from an attractive wooded lot, this Dutch colonial home, with its wide clapboard sides and variegated slate shingles, may be conveniently placed on the average city lot 35 to 45 feet wide and 125 feet deep. The building itself is 30 feet 6 inches wide and 28 feet in depth. Being essentially rectangular in outline it can be built with considerable economy, both in foundation and roof.

The herring bone patterned brick walk leading from the front sidewalk to the house is continued up two steps to the entrance, which is of the same brick pattern. A curved trellis at the front entrance provides an interesting set-off against the rather simple entrance door. Opening directly into the stair wall, to the left of which is a convenient clothes closet lighted by a single window, is a small vestibule.

To the right is a large living room, with a masonry fireplace at the far end. This room, in connection with a dining room and sun porch adjacent to it, provides exceptionally large and attractive living quarters, as the rooms are so placed that they can be considered almost as one. The location of the sun porch with reference to the living room fireplace is especially interesting and unusual. The abundance of windows in these three rooms is another noteworthy feature.

In planning the living room Mr. Whitman has placed a bed davenport directly opposite the fireplace as a suggestion in the selection of furnishings. There are two corners in which a grand piano and radio set may be accommodated. Since radio outfits can be obtained in cabinets designed to correspond with other period furnishings in the room, with loud speaker arrangements similar to other mechanically operated musical instruments, their placement in the living room no longer imperils attractive arrangement. They have the appearance only of a good looking piece of furniture.

Just off the dining room is the kitchen, which is rather small to conform with modern housekeeping requirements. Built-in cabinets and cases do away with the old fashioned pantry and make the housekeeping considerably more of a pleasure than it was in years gone by. The kitchen range, the sink, the cabinets, and the refrigerator, which is just outside of the kitchen entry door, have all been carefully planned so as to eliminate useless steps. Being placed directly opposite the main entrance, any one in the kitchen may answer the front door bell without going through the other rooms. This, too, is a step saving arrangement.

The basement is well lighted by area windows. It is divided into a large laundry with a triple laundry tub, placed directly under a double window and within convenient reach of the electric washing machine and ironer and the fold-in-the-wall ironing board. This room is separated from the fuel storage and heater room by fixed light partitions with windows cut in them so the partition does not darken the rest of the basement. There are also a coal storage room and a place for tools. The entire basement has been excavated because the space so provided is obtained at minimum expense, and by using concrete floors and walls, vermin proof, dry cellars are obtainable without difficulty. In this connection it is interesting to note that with the better materials being used for the foundation walls and floors, metal lath has been used on the entire basement ceiling. Among the several advantages which are said to be derived from its use is that it provides exceptional fire resistance over the heating plant and fuel storage. Cracked plaster on basement ceilings, which is so common because of the heavy furniture generally placed on the first floor, is also eliminated, because of the greater strength and flexibility of this newer type of construction. This treatment is almost imperative, now that the housewife demands clean cut construction in the basement, where she does her washing and ironing.

GOOD morning!

The reason for this apparently late review of a picture that has been showing all week is that it is a film in which a pair of comparative unknowns do splendid work, WHICH, giving one a chance to ramble of a Sunday forlorn one has space) calls to the attention the fact that a LOT of young men and women the world hasn't heard much about are slipping into places that for years have been occupied by widely heralded "artists."

GERTRUDE OLMSTED.

Not only in the ranks of the players is this happening, but in that of directors. Slowly but surely producers are beginning to realize that the public—that is the everyday movie-going public that, chances are, sees a movie every day—has a jaded palate for the too exotic actress; the too pampered hero; the too spectacular and lavish photoplay.

The everyday movie-going public, while it still demands beauty, desires people who know how to present them with that beauty simply. They are tired of the flesh pots and the golden platters which we come to them via the screen, via the vivid, often chaotic, imaginations of the men behind. Big "spectacles" have been giving big debts behind.

Hornaley Edging Into the Game.

Hornaley has her foot on the bottom rung of the ladder. director doesn't now—as a rule—try half so much for as he does for naturalness. The producer has learned types have a more trenchant appeal than names. So—keep your eyes open. Of course there are the exceptions—but then you know what exceptions go to prove.

"Cameo Kirby" has been produced before on screen and The original play was by Booth Tarkington and Harry Wilson. It has remained popular through the years cause young and daring gamblers, no matter who they are in what walks of life they ply their trade, are ALWAYS popular—provided there's the saving grace of good in the bad boy or girl and he or she isn't hard to look at.

"Cameo" Kirby, you will perhaps remember, was a gambler on a boat that wended its way up and down the Mississippi river. He was as honest as the next man (and he knew whether the next man WAS honest or not), and had a genius imbedded superstition that his good luck was due to diamonds, one of which had at one time stopped a bullet which had been singing its way toward a vital spot. SO—he always

Hollywood Lights Grace Premiere of Chaplin's Play

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—A first night still wins the full face glare up. Charley Chaplin, Mabel Normand and Barbara La Marr each had a night of triumph this week.

The world premiere of Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris" on Friday night was voted the most brilliant affair socially and artistically ever held in Los Angeles.

MABLE NORMAND.

All the flicker-famous were there except Charley, the author and director, who was on his way to New York.

There was an element in the event that has been lacking in other first nights—curiosity. That palatable dish of Peggy, Pola and Purviance served à la Chaplin was munched slowly by the filmwise. Just how much of the story was Peggy Joyce's life? And had he trained Edna Purviance to become as great an emotional star as Pola Negri?

The last question was fully answered at the end of the play when Miss Purviance appeared on the stage. There was no polite applause, but a loud burst of appreciation. Edna was initiated into the stellar sorority.

For her debut as a star Miss Purviance wore a gown of shimmering silver cloth, a wrap of brocade delicately embroidered in blues and reds, and a wide bandeau of silver cloth.

Crowds Greet Film Stars with Loud Hurrahs.

In front of the theater the Great Unscreened had waited for hours to catch glimpses of the stars. They greeted each one with loud hurrahs. Inside the lobby a respectful line of debutantes and matrons welcomed the famous with polite stares and whispered words.

When Mabel Normand rolled up in her jewel box limousine there was a cry of "O, Mabel" and "O, Molly O." Mabel stopped and chatted with her admirers for a moment.

Mildred Davis wore a gown of silver lined with red velvet and an ermine wrap shirred in puffs. Harold Lloyd wore a charmingly modest grin. But I've heard that Harold loves his wife to buy scads of pretty clothes.

Mary Pickford was in cream satin and lace trimmed with small clusters of French flowers. Her wrap was of black velvet with a band of chinchilla at the throat.

Flame colored georgette was worn by Marie Prevost. Her coat was sable.

Enid Bennett's gown was of porcelain blue georgette.

Mabel Normand was lovely in a silver toque, a wrap of sealskin trimmed in ermine and an ivory gown generously embroidered in pearls.

A red velvet gown, a tiara of pearls and diamonds and a long wrap of ermine accentuated the vivacious Norma Talmadge. Her sister, Constance, was in pale green georgette with wrap-around turban of the same material.

Jackie Coogan's ma was in a gorgeously beaded gown and a full length mink coat.

All Hollywood's Lights Attend.

There were so many others there—Fannie Hatton, Blanche Sweet, Rupert Hughes, Sylvia Breamer, Conway Tearle, Adele Rowland, Ethel Clayton, Corinne Griffith, Monte Blue, Billie Dove, Gaston Glass escorting little Renee Adoree,

Mr. Stock Is Back with Many New Works

By Edward Moore.

"MANY years ago," says Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, "a music critic referred to me as the 'conductor with an outspoken classic bend.' He very likely wanted to allude to what he considered to be my predilection for things conservative and perhaps a little conventional in music. But the good man had very little idea that, in spite of my great love for the classics, I am at all times ready to take up the cudgels in defense of contemporaneous composers, be they ever so modern or even futuristic in their tendencies, and that, if it were possible, I would make many a program which contained nothing but novelties from beginning to end."

That Mr. Stock has a point of view on music which is origina almost to the point of being unclassical was made manifest early last week, when he arrived in Chicago after a trip to Europe and interpreted the trend of present day music on the continent as indicative of a state of disordered nerves that might become ominous of coming war. The criticism is an offshoot from the same brain that makes him successful when he goes out on a hunt for novelties. This department has maintained many times that Mr. Stock has a first class sense of news in his music, that he presents much music which he knows will never be approved simply because it is new and therefore has news values. For of a great many novelties the great majority is permanently discarded, but the retained residue becomes an addition to the standard repertoire.

"And so," continues Mr. Stock, "it becomes the more or less pleasant duty of conductors annually to search the coffers of big and small publishing houses here and abroad for things new and attractive. I feel both proud and happy to announce for the season close at hand the presentation of four new compositions by local composers, a Symphony by Eric DeLamarter; Borowski's Symphonic Poem, 'Youth,' which was awarded the first prize at the North Shore Music festival last May, and a fantasy for two pianos and orchestra by Leo Sowerby."

First Novelty This Week.

These are only, three, but Mr. Stock quietly indicates that the fourth is his own, an "Elegy" dedicated to the memory of Clyde M. Carr, late president of the Orchestral association. It will be an item in the first program of the season this week. The Sowerby piece, it seems, will be played later in the season by Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, during which program they will also, with an unnamed third pianist, play Bach's Concerto for three pianos, which will also be a novelty as far as the present generation is concerned.

The Chicago four are only a small section of the new pieces that are ready for the season's use. Here is the list as Mr. Stock outlined it:

English works are a Symphony by Arnold Bax, Vaughan Williams' Fantasia, "Thalia," Delius' Concerto for cello and orchestra, and Goossens' Symphonic Poem, "Tam o' Shanter." France provides Milhaud's "Deuxième Suite," Schmitt's two suites, "Antoine et Cléopatre," Satie's "Gymnopedies" in the Debussy orchestration, Honegger's "Pastorale d'Été," Roussel's "Pour une Fête de Printemps," and Saint-Saëns' "Carnival." Of Italian compositions there are three, Malipiero's

Man Gets a Pretty Severe Bumping in Emery's 'Tarnish'

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—At the close of the last act of Gilbert Emery's new drama called "Tarnish" (Gilbert also being the author of "The Hero," which you probably saw on the screen recently) Emmet Carr has taken his dismissal from Letitia Tevis and closed the door behind him.

Whereupon Letitia has thrown herself to her knees, buried her face in the cushions of an overstuffed chair, and given way to heavy sobbing.

TOM POWERS.

The door through which young Mr. Carr has disappeared opens slowly and Mrs. Healy, the housekeeper, waddles in. Taking Letitia's head in her lap, she seeks to comfort her.

"They're a poor lot—the men—all of them—and dirty, too," she agrees. "But the thing is to get one that cleans easy."

And, being thus comforted, Letitia looks up in time to see ypung Mr. Carr standing in the doorway hopefully awaiting a recall.

You see, Letitia was a Lee. At least, Letitia's mother had been a Lee. And she had been rather carefully brought up. Her father did not amount to much. As a matter of fact father did not amount to anything at all. The very day the play opens he had given the last money in the house to a manicurist he met at the Astor.

But Letitia was fine. And when she had to go to work, and found a young lawyer in the firm who insisted on bringing her violets without asking so much as a caress of her patrician forehead in return, she was happy. And particularly happy this day because he had honorably confessed his love and asked her to wait for him.

"All Men a Little Tarnished," His Defense.

Then she discovers father's affair with the manicurist and the loss of the family funds and goes to collect them. And right there in the manicurist's apartment, almost in the manicurist's arms, she finds her young Mr. Carr.

He tries to tell her that he has been tricked into coming; that he has not had a thing to do with Nettie Dark for months and months, and that he is, take him as he is, a lot cleaner than most men. They are all a little tarnished. But she will have none of him—until, as reported, Mrs. Healy's philosophy convinces her that she is wrong.

It is a pretty good play, this "Tarnish." A very good play in its conception and writing, but a little falsely theatrical in its playing. I am inclined to think, however, that the appealing simplicity and straightforwardness of Ann Harding, who plays Letitia, and Tom Powers, who fidgets a good deal but still manages to remain pretty human as Carr, will earn it a generous run. Fania Marinoff is a colorful manicurist and Marion Lord carries her familiar line of flip comedy. "There's two ways for a girl to get a fur coat," reports Marion, "and one of 'em is to buy it."

Trounced Again in "Chicken Feed."

The husbands come in for another trouncing in "Chicken Feed." Which, I suppose, is one reason it is the happiest, and also the funniest, comedy of the new season to date. Husbands are just naturally funny subjects.

In this play, which is by Guy Bolton, there is a sort of

Extra!—An Author Who Bares His Soul

By Sheppard Butler.

THE world is so full of a number of things that it is a pleasure to meet an amiable and talkative playwright. There are quite a few playwrights, I find, who are amiable but not talkative, and there are many—ah, a great many!—who are talkative but not amiable. The qualities in fusion, however, are rare. Discovery of one who combines them is, therefore, a heartening adventure.

I found him last week in the person of Mr. George S. Kaufman, co-author with Marc Connelly of "The Deep Tangled Wildwood," newly in performance at the Blackstone. I had sought him to ask about certain hectic tales concerning his comedy—namely, that it had been written and rewritten and revised and rearranged and fixed up and rewritten some more, practically up to the moment of the Chicago opening; that, in short, it held the long distance record among dramatic pieces in the matter of refusing to stay put.

GEORGE S. KAUFMAN.

That Mr. Kaufman is amiable was quickly evident, for he spoke to me kindly, though I had ventured in print the opinion that his latest work is "not a well knit play." That he is talkative—not to say chatty, discursive, and loquacious—became more gradually apparent. Surveying his answer to my questions, I am appalled. It will run, I am sure, much farther into an inside page of this section than comment on any one topic is supposed to run. Nevertheless, a glimpse into a playwright's soul is rather exciting, and I think I'll venture it.

The Only American Play with 186 Acts.

"In the first place," he said, settling himself comfortably and fixing his gaze in a general northeasterly direction, "'The Deep Tangled Wildwood' has something in common with the Chinese dramatic form. In China, it will be remembered, a play runs for three days and nights—an audience brings its cook stoves and makes a week-end of it, sending out every few hours for the dramatic criticisms. 'The Deep Tangled Wildwood,' to the best of our knowledge, is the only American play ever written with 186 acts. At the Blackstone, to be sure, we are exhibiting only three of them, but the remaining 183 will be open to public inspection just as soon as the Smithsonian institution and the British museum stop their petty bickering and decide how they are going to divide them.

"As I remember it, we were in Chicago for the opening of 'Dulcy'—this places the date as February of 1921, so Walter Prichard Eaton was in error in his 'Ten Turning Points in the American Theater'—when we decided, in our childlike way, that it might be fun to write a country town play with the ancient formula reversed. We fixed on the title of 'Little Old Millersville,' and Marc Connelly moved to a bigger apartment.

"We picked the little theater movement as the thing that Millersville would be most likely to go crazy about, and in the next six or seven months we wrote the play. In its original form it didn't run a minute over four hours and a half, and George C. Tyler still dates most of his ailments from the afternoon and evening that we read it to him. I remember that oxygen was administered during the last act.

"After hearing the play Mr. Tyler made a few minor suggestions—he said it should be laid in eastern Roumania instead of Millersville, and that it would be more effective if our New York playwright were changed to a Czecho-Slovak.

ME IN HOLLYWOOD BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE

Listen, then, to the simple tale of one who, gently and trustingly believing everything he read or was told, went forth in innocence and truth to darkest Hollywood.

NO, Hollywood should not be my ruin! As the train neared Los Angeles I ran over my resolutions briefly.

No opium! No, not a whiff, not a taste, not a sniff. Not one single little teenthy one. Let them rub out the white powder on the back of my hand and tempt me to take a sniff all they might. I would spit it in scorn to the ground. Let them fill the pipe and proffer it to me all they would. I would smash the pipes on their heads. And when they mixed me a dose of opium to swallow I would pull a little yeast cake out of my vest pocket and nibble in derision. It may be a sign of feeble mind to eat a cake of yeast a day, but I knew it would build me up, make me rise socially and financially far more than the Hollywooders' opium.

You don't know the half of it, dearie; you don't know the half.

Alas the needle and the deadly morphine! Though I tarried in Hollywood a month I would pass all the stores that insisted on my buying morphine and needles. Needles are all right for sewing phonographs, but they should not be employed against the horrid morphine into the tender forearm. None for me, Hollywooders, I thank you.

"Back, Temptress—or at least—give me a man's sized needle."

The dreadful night parties of wassail and mirth. Hollywooders have all these, for I knew full well that each and every night the Hollywooders held Bacchanalian orgies until, as the movie title writers say, "Came Dawn." Dawn could come all unheed to me in Hollywood, for——

Meanwhile, safe in his little bed at the Y. M. C. A., the Pilgrim from Chicago slept the hours away.

I had read all about Hollywood in the newspapers. I had been told all about Hollywood by one and all. I wasn't quite sure whether it was inclosed in a stockade or barbed wire fence, but I knew it was something like that. Inside were the wild women and the wild men of the movies. Cocaine and opium were sold in little sacks by street venders and the waiters in the restaurants gave you a shot in the arm while you waited for your soup. The nights were so filled with the shouts of the maddened revelers that policemen and night watchmen wore earmuffs. Murders between 10 and 12 unless postponed because of the inclemency of the weather. Beautiful girls torn from their happy homes by the lure of the movie, tramped in great droves dejectedly up and down the street crying piteously for bread. But they should not pull me down. Nay, nay.

Alone in Hollywood he kept the faith, he fought the good fight.

I decided not to go to Hollywood at once. It would be better to advance cautiously. First I would go to the Ambassador hotel, which was in Los Angeles. If I drove at once to the Hollywood hotel I might be seized upon and carried away to a debauch before I was aware.

Fearful of the snares and pitfalls of dreadful Hollywood, the young man from Chicago takes refuge in Los Anglaise.

All was quiet at the Ambassador. Millionaires sat around in chairs reading the stock columns in the newspapers, while billionaires chewed $2 cigars. A funereal hush and quiet pervaded everywhere. An admiral in white satin approached and led the way to my room. It was a wonderful room with carpet of scarlet plush a foot thick. Massive furniture once owned by the late Queen Anne dotted the room. Its new occupant gazed around at the magnificence surrounding him and walked musingly to the window.

All this will make an awful dent in my expense account.

That night there was a dance in the Cocoanut Grove in the Ambassador. Even with the windows down one could not escape. Then to bed. Suddenly I was pushed out of my beautiful bed. At first I was pushed upward. Then I was let down again. Then once more I was shoved upward. Plainly somebody was under the bed propelling me about with his feet. It must have been "his." No lady would act that way. Then I was rolled out of bed. I reached under the bed to grasp the person who was tossing me about. There was no one there. I heard a scream or two and excited talking in the hall. I dared not return to the bed, but, reaching for a pillow and a thousand dollar blanket, slept on the plush carpet. I knew no one could get under that plush carpet. The night dragged wearily on.

If night were so full of terror in Los Angeles, what would it be in Hollywood?

A voice outside in the hall was saying: "And, O, Imogene, I was just sure there was a man under the bed, but, darn the luck, it was just an earthquake."

"Ah, if Hollywood is like this at noon, then towards evening it must get quite gay!"

So it was an earthquake. Hollywood had, according to all popular reports, dope, cocaine, morphine, opium, champagne, hootch, wassail and song, but I had never heard of its having an earthquake. The horrors of Hollywood began to seem less terrible.

Our hero decided that he would make the plunge and go to Hollywood, come what might.

I chartered a taxi. I jumped in, my baggage jumped in after me, and I said as blithely and as bravely as I could, "Yoicks and away to the Hollywood hotel." Thitherward we drove for miles and miles and miles past thousands of little bungalows and yellow mission houses. At last we stopped at the Hollywood hotel.

Bill Carleton was sitting on the porch in the bright summer sunshine. I have known Bill since he was the handsome matinee idol in "Floradora" and sang, "There is an island fair, set by a silver sea." So now he was in the movies. Ah, the insidious movies that set a trap into which the most handsome fall!

I shook hands with Bill. "No, Bill," I said firmly, "do not urge me to take a sniff. No snow, if that is what you call opium, for me."

"Shoosh!" said Bill, "not so loud."

I got the point. Hollywood is dominated by the movies. The motion picture is the latest and the greatest of the Arts. But it has no more sense of humor than a box car. Bill was right. He thought I was trying to be humorous. He knew it wouldn't do. I shooshed. Up bobbed Joe Kilgour.

"Nay, Joseph," I said firmly, "ply me not with deadly morphine——"

"Cut," said Joseph firmly, "the word morphine is considered the same as swearing in Hollywood and there are ladies present." There were, a whole porch full of them. I recalled that somebody at the Ambassador had slightingly referred to the Hollywood hotel as the Old Ladies' Home.

Meanwhile in Hollywood there had been planned a revel.

I intended to escape after dinner to the solitude of my room and after moving the wardrobe trunk in front of the door and barricading the windows I hoped for a peaceful evening.

Suddenly a messenger boy appeared with a note. I read the note and then angrily crumpled it up and put it in my pocket. No, I would not go. Hollywood should not corrupt me. I fled to my room and read the note again. It read, "Come over right away. We're going to have a party."

Ha, ha! A party at Hollywood! I knew what that meant! I would not go. No, nothing should tempt me! Drugs, opium, flake, snow, hootch, morphine! Hollywood! Help! Help!

For a long time he pondered and then the tempter overcame all his good resolutions.

Shamefacedly and dejected I hurried to the scene of the night's debauch. There was a burst of laughter as I entered the room. So! They were jeering that their victim had fallen so easily. We were hustled into automobiles and driven to the high hills that frown down on Hollywood. We were apparently going to some lonely canyon far away from police interference.

"You'll just love this party," said Mrs. Kilgour and Mrs. Clayton together. "We're going to the Bowl."

Ah, the Bowl! A sinister name. It reminded me of the Bucket of Blood or the Dead Rat.

Apparently it was to be a big revel. All moviedom was going. Bill Carleton named them as they sped past our plodding little electric. "Carmel Meyers," said Bill. Tut, tut, too bad! Carmel was such a nice looking girl on the screen. And to think she was going to the Bowl. Ah, Hollywood, Hollywood, thou hast much to answer for.

Then Mae McAvoy glided past. Some more info. Dimly I perceived that Miss McAvoy had a face like an angel. And yet she was on her way to the Hollywood Bowl. And Jacqueline Logan and Ethel Clayton and Clara Kimball Young. I ought to do something about it. The shame of it! The pity of it!

He resolves to slip out of the machine and send for the police. These beautiful girls should be saved from the dreadful Bowl.

Suddenly we stopped. We got out. We threaded our way through hundreds of parked machines. O, the wickedness of Hollywood! Not only was an orgy to be given up here in the solitude of the hills, but the whole town was coming! Where was Law and Order? Where was Bill Hays?

We stepped into a great natural amphitheater. Fifteen thousand people were seated there. O, what a scene of madness would be witnessed after the ushers had passed around the coke and the morphine. It would be of no use to send for the police. It would take the whole California National Guard and the United States marines.

"Tonight," said Mrs. Kilgour, "is 'Orchestra

Meantime—seated there in the darkness—he wondered why the bed had left him.

Night,' and they play that delicious thing of Tschaikowsky's, 'Theme and Variation from Fourth Suite.' I adore it."

"I like best," said Bill Carleton, "Brahms' Adagio non troppo from the Symphony No. 2, in G minor."

"D major, Bill, pardon me," murmured Mr. Kilgour politely but firmly.

"Ah, yes, in D major," assented Mr. Carleton pleasantly.

Came dawn. It was a symphony concert.

THERE'S ANOTHER BRIGHT AND SNAPPY PROOF THAT

COLUMBIA BURLESQUE

IS FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY NOW AT THE OLYMPIC THEATRE—"BREVITIES OF 1923"

Starting with today's matinee and continuing twice daily throughout the week, Ed. E. Daley's "Brevities of 1923" will give the kind of a show that has made "Columbia Burlesque" favorite entertainment for theatregoers who demand the full worth of the money they spend for amusement.

The Columbia Burlesque "Wheel" has been successfully operating twenty-one years—this is its twenty-second season—and in that time has redeemed "burlesque" from its previous low estate and made it entertainment for the whole family. Indeed, the daily matinees at the Olympic are attended by more women than men and in the evening the audience is representative of women and men, in family parties, who fancy pleasant foolery, pretty girls, attractive costumes, tuneful song and nimble dances. "Brevities of 1923" presents just that kind of a show.

These twenty-odd years have brought into being a new generation of theatregoers and it is, principally, to this new element of fun-seekers that this "heart-to-heart talk" is addressed. Shows like "Brevities of 1923"—and there are 38 of them coming to the Olympic during the season—present the glint of color, the jazz of snappy music and the speed of dance and frivolity that appeal strongly to youth.

The whole family enjoys the Olympic's shows because there is something in every "Columbia Burlesque" to delight every member of the household—grown-ups and kiddies as well. There is in "Columbia Burlesque" the basic elements of entertainment that will always have the call with normal men and women—either the high-brow or the low-brow. See "Brevities of 1923" some afternoon or evening this week and you will get the idea of "Columbia Burlesque" and what it means.

Merry jest, bright dialogue, witty lines, funny situations, snappy songs, lilting music, graceful dance, brightness in colorings of gorgeous costumes; talented principals who really know how to sing, dance and enact true burlesque—and always a score of pretty girls to sing and dance while gowned like fashion manikins. These are some of the delights of "Columbia Burlesque."

Bargain matinees at the Olympic make every day "Ladies Day." Woman theatregoers enjoy the wholesome fun of the comedians who "clown" and make merry with their jokes and funny antics that impel hearty laughter. The dazzling combinations of color in the costuming of the chorus and principal women, the bright scenery and brilliant ensemble of smartly gowned and swift-stepping showgirls delight the feminine heart.

Ladies who attend the daily matinees will be amply provided for and courteously received by polite attendants. There are 500 seats at the bargain price of 25 cents especially reserved for women. In the evening prices permit the whole family to enjoy "Columbia Burlesque" without much strain on the budget. Reserved seats may be secured in advance (Telephone Randolph 2412) and have them held for you until show time at these popular prices:

Matinee: 25c to 75c. Nights: 25c to $1.

COUNT THE DANCER'S MAPLE LEAVES!

1st Prize, $25
2nd Prize, $15
3rd Prize, $10

In connection with the thrilling play of "Sally, Irene and Mary," presenting her famous maple leaf ballet, comes the announcement that Miss Dench has arranged a contest in substance of the exact number of leaves used by Miss Dench. Count them carefully and you may win one of the cash prizes offered by the management.

1. This contest is open to everybody, and there is only one condition. All answers must be written on the back of a used box number for any of the theatres this week at the Great Northern Theatre. Orchestra, balcony or second balcony coupons are acceptable.

2. To count the maple leaves, see the show, write your name, address and number on the back of your ticket stub, and mail same to the Maple Leaf Editor, Great Northern Theatre.

3. Answers will be opened Saturday night, Oct. 13th, at 11 o'clock, when the first, second and third correct unused ticket stubs submitted will be awarded the cash prizes. Announcement of the winners will be made on Tuesday, Oct. 16th.

"Then we went back to our country, changed the scene to a name island in the Pacific for a while, and finally shifted back to Millersville. I remember that at this time one act was laid in a chamber of commerce, and I think there was some good propaganda for a free Iceland. So we called it 'West of Pittsburgh,' and after eight or ten vigorous rewritings, together with a complete doing over while it was in rehearsal, we produced it in Atlantic City in June of 1922.

The Week that Was Lost.

"As I picked up the story after-pieces—a bit here and there from various survivors—the Atlantic City board of aldermen decided officially to prevent that the week had never existed. The city's merchants were ordered to return all money taken in during the week, and a general moratorium was declared. If you care to look up the old Atlantic City records you will find that officially June 4 was followed by June 11.

"So nearly as we could tell by looking at the play at that time, we had made our first mistake by dividing it into acts. All of the other slips were only secondary to this. So we went back to it, rewrote it as our friends who had seen it thought it should be, and billed for the new season. In the meantime 'Merton of the Movies' came along, was written and produced with practically no trouble at all—and all the country play waited.

"And then all joking ceased, as you might say. And our real troubles began. That pleasant evening 'The Torchbearers' was produced in New York—and there was one little theater movement. There was much more deftly and humorously than we had ever thought of doing with theatrical coincidences—but it killed our play as it stood.

"It was along about this time that Jesse Connelly suggested that we should write a play about a country club, reversing the ancient formula. We went back to work, substituting golf for little theater, and then sidetracked it once more to write the book for a musical comedy, yclept 'Helen of Troy, New York.' Like 'To the Ladies!' and 'Merton of the Movies,' this was produced with no particular trouble—and the country play, our second in point of writing, became the first in point of production.

Saved: One Title.

"A few months ago we read the new version—Series L, No. 2158—to Mr. Fuller and Hugh Ford. That is, we had two acts, which was all we had. Then we rewrote them once more—and went into rehearsal. The third act was written during rehearsal. Then we wrote the second act again. Then we wrote the first. By that time we had to do the third again. And then the second.

"We opened, finally, in Chillicothe—eight days before we came to Chicago. By this time it was called 'The Deep Tangled Wildwood,' and I will say that Chicago got the original Chillicothe title. That's all it did get. We did the first and third acts over and the company miraculously played them in Indianapolis two days later. This was the Monday before the Chicago opening. On Tuesday and Wednesday the second act was elaborately rewritten, but when it was played Thursday night we found that it was wrong. We wrote it again and it was played on Friday night. The last act was written Friday afternoon and acted at the Saturday matinée.

"As I remember it, 'The Deep Tangled Wildwood' is the story of a New York playwright who is found dead in his apartment, with a knife of peculiar design beside him. The missionary follows the girl to Millersville, where he attempts to reform her. Here there is a stern father who tried to rule his children by force, but one of them is a cripple who throws away her crutches at the end of the third act. The news gets out over the radio and reaches Hollywood, where the girl is trying to make good in a bungalow. At the finish peach jam is being made in great quantities, and there is a big finale on the stairs, with the girls dressed as nations.

"I may be wrong."

Gossip of Plays and Players

New plays come thick and fast. Some, in recent experience, have been possibly a bit more thick than fast, but it is interesting to be made a scene of theatrical experiment. "The Rainy Day," at the Cort tonight, is a hitherto untried comedy, seeking from us its first verdict. "Time," at the Central tomorrow, is likewise in embryo, as it were, having been performed only briefly in Cincinnati. To the Illinois tonight Gus Edwards brings a new diversion, "Sunbonnet Sue," for its metropolitan premiere. Of the week's four arrivals in the theaters, only one, the "Greenwich Village Follies," bears the customary accolade of merit from New York, N. Y.

Speaking of Mr. Edwards, as one usually does when he is about, brings to mind the accepted thing concerning him, which is to catalogue the celebrities whom, in his entertainments, he has started on the road to fame. Some of them are Orville Harrold, Eddie Cantor, Louise Groody, the Duncan Sisters, Helen Menken, Lila Lee, Mae Murray, Gregory Kelly, Eddie Buzzell, Lillian Walker, and Yvette Rugel—an impressive roster. Miss Olga Cook also began her career under his auspices; she returns now to his fold to head the distaff side of the cast for "Sunbonnet Sue."

Will Morrissey, the blithe Irishman who was entrepreneur and chief performer in the "Hollywood Follies" of recent memory, was added yesterday to the company which brings the "Greenwich Village Follies" to the Apollo tonight. He will appear in what is described as a "specialty." Its nature is not disclosed.

"Peter Weston," a great success in Chicago last spring, is a failure in New York. Frank Keenan took it away from there last night, after a run of only three weeks.

Miss Peggy O'Neill, once a familiar figure in these parts, has acquired the producing rights to "Plus Fours," which she played in London, and proposes to stage the comedy in this country in the late fall.

A novel presentation is planned for J. P. McEvoy's "The Potters" when the series of TRIBUNE skits is transferred to the stage under the auspices of Richard Herndon. In the comedy as prepared by McEvoy there are no less than fourteen scenes, each dealing with a phase of life in the Potter household, much in the manner of their Sunday morning adventures.

Emery's "Tarnish" Gives Mere Man a Severe Bumping

wives' strike against tightwad husbands.

"A husband's a relative," insists the most comic of the strikers, "and it don't pay to work for relatives."

Whereupon all the ladies who have left the dishes to go to the matinée laugh their bonnets crooked.

The wives' strike is led by Roberta Arnold, she of last year's "First Year." In "Chicken Feed" she is about to be married herself, but when she discovers that her family is broke because of her father's incompetency and his refusal for twenty-five years to pay over to her hard working mother anything like a partner's share of the family's net income, she postpones the ceremony.

She will not leave mother, declares Roberta, until father has reformed. Every woman should demand a fifty-fifty split and walk out if she doesn't get it. And when father laughs at her both Roberta and her mother walk out, and with them goes Lella Bennett, whose stage mate is also a lad with fishhook fingers when it comes to getting them into and out of his pockets.

Wives Dying to Give In.

Thereafter the contest is to see which side will weaken first. The men try to get canned dinners and be content with them, and the women smile and pretend they are enjoying their freedom, when, actually, if it were not for the strong-willed Roberta, they would be surrendering at the first opportunity.

The amusing Miss Bennett, for instance, comes sneakily back to her own little bungalow in the second act. "Do you want to see Hughie?" some one asks her. Hughie being the husband she is trying to reform. "No, I don't," loyally answers Lella; "I just came to get a warm nightie and a hot water bottle."

All the women at the matinée I attended did not at first catch the significance of this demand for substitutes, but when they did they roared. In the course of the wives' strike Miss Arnold is able to outwit the craftiest of the men and save her fiancé's bungalow building business for him. But her victory is offset by that of the men, seeing that her father's investment in gas stock turns out well and he comes back home with his head up.

A happy comedy, this "Chicken Feed," and so cast and played that every character scores at least once during the evening. Even the office boy. He, too, is against women. "And who'd mend your clothes if there weren't any women?" some one demands of him. "If there weren't any women I wouldn't wear clothes," he snaps back.

Miss Arnold gives a more spirited and generally a better performance than she did in "The First Year." Miss Bennett is frankly detached as a character but highly amusing, and the others include Frank McCormack and Stuart Fox.

Times certainly do change in the theater. It will mean nothing to a lot of folk that E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe are this week reviving "Cymbeline" in—of all places—Jolson's Forty-ninth Street theater. And I'm sure I'm the only one who thinks it at all strange that Lowell Sherman should be playing a starring engagement in the almost classic Empire theater this week, and that insignificantly placed in his support is that well remembered little actor, A. G. Andrews, who was for years and years a mainstay of Richard Mansfield's organization. Not that either change matters. Mr. Jolson has as much right as another to put his name over a theater, and the Famous Players' Picture corporation (Charles Frohman, Inc.) certainly need ask no one's permission to raise Sherman to the Empire. Worse actors than he have starred there many a time. But I approach the age when signs of change interest me.

Gorgeously Staged Affair.

The Sherman play is "Casanova," a dramatization of the episode in which the lost Henriette figures in certain memoirs. It is from the Spanish of a gentleman named De Asertis, and has been put into English by Sidney Howard, who wrote "Swords." It is, as to picture, a gorgeous affair, with ladies and gentleman of the eighteenth century dressed up in billowing folds of rare and heavy silks, and the scenic background kept beautifully simple but nicely impressive, and with a wonderful ballet staged as a prologue to establish the mood of the play.

The New Plays

OPENING TONIGHT.

"The Rainy Day" [Cort]—A new comedy by Fred Ballard, best known in the theater as the author of "Believe Me, Xantippe," a farcical diversion of some years ago. The cast includes Charles Dow Clark, Robert Armstrong, Al Roberts, Hugh Banks, Miss Irene Purcell, and Miss Anne Carpenter.

"The Greenwich Village Follies" [Apollo]—Fourth in this series of opulent song and dance compilations, coming with a long list of performers headed by Carl Randall, Karyl Norman, Will Morrissey, John Sheean, Miss Ula Sharon, Miss Dorothy Neville, Miss Ethel Davis, and Miss Julia Silvers.

"Sunbonnet Sue" [Illinois]—A new musical production sponsored by Gus Edwards, who has provided the tunes for a book and lyrics by Marguerite Wright and Robert B. Smith. In the cast will be Miss Olga Cook, Fred Hillebrand, Walter Preston, Chester Fredericks, Miss Florence Enright, Miss Alice Furness, and many others.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"Time" [Central]—A comedy by Arthur Henry, tested recently in Cincinnati but sent hither for its first regular performances. Miss Dorothy Francis will act the principal rôle, which involves the rendition of a song or two; others in the company will be Miss Anne Morrison, Miss Marie Curtis, A. H. Van Buren, and William Evarts.

OPENING NEXT WEEK.

"Sonrels" [Harris, Oct. 14]—Miss Margaret Lawrence in a romantic play of marriage and the Victorian period by Rudolph Besier and May Edginton. Tom Nesbitt, a fine actor, and many others are in the company.

"Molly Darling" [Colonial, Oct. 14]—The musical comedy which we saw, once, at the Palace Music hall, coming for a return engagement with a revised cast headed by Jack Donahue, the dancing comedian.

"I'll Say She Is" [Studebaker, Oct. 14]—One of last summer's crop of new revues, built around the personalities of the Four Marx Brothers, erstwhile vaudevillians.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"The Old Soak" [Princess, Oct. 21]—Don Marquis' amusing comedy of prohibition and its ways, to be played here by Tom Wise and one of those "special companies."

"The Music Box Revue" [Colonial, Oct. 29]—The second of Mr. Irving Berlin's stately pageants, with Clark and McCullough, the comedians, and hosts of other people in it.

KICK KORNER

In Object—Objection

Dear Miss Tinée: This is a kick for movie organists in general. There are ten, possibly twelve, organists playing in Chicago movie theaters who can truthfully be called genuine artists of the organ. A few more are fairly good. The rest are merely organists nominally.

It is interesting to note which managements employs good organists and which bad ones. All of them have both. A certain large theater employs one of the finest organists in America, while just one mile west at another theater the same management employs one of the poorest organists.

Most of the organists play vox humana, "Twilights" and vox celeste "Sunsets" excessively. One feels as if he had been in a sugar bowl for two hours.

Another set plays from memory. If it is a royal procession, memory dictates "Pomp and Circumstance"; if a Spanish scene, "La Paloma"; if an Italian scene, "O Sole Mio," etc.

There are some movie organists who are musically intelligent and often talented, but they are indifferent and indolent. Many of them are too lazy to read music. Hence, they sit enjoying the picture with the audience and play for an accompaniment a lot of hashed-over and "improvised" stuff.

These movie organists apparently believe that their audiences don't care. Well, I am one patron who does care, and that is solely the reason I wrote this kick. DISGUSTED.

Miss Tinée: "As a critic of motion pictures you'd make a good scrub woman. Why should the public be governed by your idiotic verdict of a picture? They should put your column in the ad section, so we all would not come across it on the first page, which is the only reason I ever read it. Stuck right on the first page, one can't get by it. I am so sick of seeing "Good morning" and "See you tomorrow" I'm willing to murder some body. There are many who would like to murder you, for your very evident lack of ability. O, what a difference between your articles and Rob Reel's, who never knocks any one, sticks to the golden rule, and is refined and talented. "See You Tomorrow."

Editor's Note: I like Rob Reel, too.

My Dear Miss Tinée: Just a line to ask you, with apology to Briggs, this question. I wonder what a 9 or 10 year old kid thinks about while they are watching a movie. I strolled into the Woodlawn the other evening to see Gloria Swanson in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." Of course you remember the scene where she tried to make her husband jealous by having that scene. And Her husband coming back, supposedly unexpected.

All during the scene I couldn't keep my mind off of all the kids that were there. And there were a lot of them. Wonder how they could analyze such a picture?

Don't you think that the movie managers should go back to the days of displaying that sign, Adults Only.

I would like to read your opinion of the matter. DICK ARMAN.

[Editor's note: I think a 9 or 10 year old child would probably have yawned and wonder what was eating his folks. The average 9 or 10 year old child would, I should think, be bored to tears by such a picture and be the first one to advocate a sign "For Adults Only."]

Dear Miss Tinée: It is my habit to read your criticism of the different movie plays, and it so happened that I read your opinion of "The Merry Go Round."

Perhaps it will interest you to know, if you should not, that the play has as its foundation the tragedy of the Austrian Crown Prince Rudolph, who loved the beautiful Baroness von Vetschera, although he was married, and perished with her at his castle in Meyerling, near Vienna, committing suicide. Of course the film has a different ending and has been changed a great deal, but those who know know who is meant by it.

As to the production, I must say to the credit of Universal, as well as the players, it is a complete success in every respect, and had I not read some time ago that this picture was staged in Los Angeles I would have believed it taken in Vienna itself—my home town—for it was so amazingly, accurately set that even the most severe critic could not tell the difference. It certainly was worked out to the smallest detail, and you may take my word for it, for I have lived in Vienna many years and am well acquainted with the famous Prater and its equally famous Kalifati, Ferry Wheel, etc.

Trusting that my lines have not taken up too much of your time, and wishing you further success in your work, I beg to remain J. K.

[Editor's Note: Indeed, your information is interesting! I reckon the movie fans will enjoy your letter as much as I did. Thanks for writing.]

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

Perfect sleep means perfect health

Without restful sleep, perfect physical condition cannot be attained. For all physicians agree that sleep is truly nature's greatest health builder.

Most people sleep long enough—but they do not get that desired, restful and refreshing sleep—because of a bedspring that sags, distorts the spine, and cramps the muscles.

If good health and that vigorous vim and vigor would be yours—your choice of a bedspring is all important.

Be safe—choose a Rome Quality De Luxe Bedspring for perfect sleep. It doesn't sag and is scientifically constructed to support every curve of the body. Ask your dealer for a Rome Quality De Luxe Bedspring today. It is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds. The ideal sleep combination is Rome Quality De Luxe Bedsprings and Rome Gothic Beds. Insist upon both.

Write for our interesting book "Sleep and its relation to health." It's free.

Carmel Myers—and everybody else from Hollywood's silver book.

Mabel Normand's first night of "The Extra Girl" was quite an occasion, too. There were more than a hundred of Mabel's friends there—and all with floral offerings!

Barbara La Marr and her husband, Jack Daugherty, were greeted at the train Thursday by Ramon Navarro, Arthur Sawyer, Bert Lubin and Miss La Marr's father, W. W. Watkin.

But she didn't notice them at first for all their flowers. Her adopted baby, Marvin, jealously demanded the whole stage—and got it.

Miss La Marr, who has been in Italy for four months, came home with her lovely hair shorn—all for the love of art—but with the secure knowledge that now she is a full fledged star.

She and Mr. Daugherty and Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer attended the opening of "Strangers of the Night" at Loew's State theater Sunday night.

One more first night—"The Road Together." I believe I've told you that the Mesdames Willard Mack I and II were both playing in it. At the formal opening Mr. Mack and wife No. 4 went backstage to felicitate Marjorie Rambeau—Mrs. Mack II, and also to congratulate Mrs. Mack I, Maude Leone. The only wife missing in this charming reunion was Pauline Frederick, who was the third partner of the actor-author. Pauline is in New York.

Real Pearl in Her Cocktail.

There was the typical noon-hour crowd at the Montmartre on Hollywood Boul last Thursday. Everybody was busy telling everybody else "whose nuts" and the like about the figure of the new contract when there was a gasp out of Carmel Myers. Carmel had not choked on a fish bone, but she did almost swallow a pearl she found in her oyster cocktail. Leach Cross, the prize fighter, who was sitting opposite Miss Myers, told her to go to a jeweler's and have the pearl appraised. It was worth, Carmel found out, with much wonder, nearly a thousand dollars!

Claire Windsor is leaving for the Sahara to learn the truth about sheiks. When Wanda Hawley came home from Egypt she said it was spelled "sheykh" and was sweeter away from one than in a closeup. Miss Windsor's director, Edwin Carewe, will sail on the Olympic for France Oct. 6. Claire and the other players will leave a few weeks later. The photoplay, "A Son of the Sahara," will be filmed in Algiers.

VOICE OF THE FAN

New, Mae, I hope you've let yourself in for something. That is, about so we want plain movie without all the gaudy trappings?

There are a heap of us poor unfortunates with debilitated pocketbooks that can't afford grand opera recitals and low lights accompanied by incense ushered in by a footman—in fact I'm sure that most fans are in that unfortunate condition. An opportunity to have good music, see the lovely lighting effects, plus a film for 25 cents, fairly makes us wiggle with appreciation. And can you deny that the news weeklies are often far more thrilling than the latest De Mille offering?

It is not that we are ever going back, to the fillums, or nave to have them disguised in the serving, but that each bit of beauty thrown our way is too precious to be denied. THEA.

Dear Miss Thea: So Mr. X decides that the feature play be the basis of a meal of entertainment has become stale, uninteresting, and monotonous. That in order to coax the audience to their full feast there must be a preluding of highly seasoned appetizers in the form of ushers' antics, terpsichorean fantasies and drowning yodelers. And then acting on the assumption that the feature had failed to quench our thirst for entertainment, we are given draughts of operatic selections to swallow down as all antidote or a rendering of "Carolina Mammy" to cheer us up.

Then how account for the fact that there are many movie theaters in Chicago and thousands throughout the country whose orchestra is confined to the intermittent ping-pongs of an untuned piano, the keys of which are tickled to the tune of "Yankee Doodle" during the death scene and "God Save Our King" during the projection of a cabaret vision? Movie houses with large orchestras are the exception and not the rule. The same applies to the so-called presentations. Why should one delude himself into going to a picture show to see vaudeville when the posters of variety performances beckon him from all sides? As for the orchestra: surely one does not go to the movies as a substitution for hearing the Chicago Symphony orchestra!

Preeminently and positively WE GO TO SEE THIS PICTURE for the same reason that the movies is the most popular means of entertainment throughout the civilized world. The cinema is a means of enabling one-half of the world to see how the other half lives. The musty, fidgety bookkeeper is yanked from his high chair to gape with awe and astonishment at the adventuresome life of the Canadian northwest. The doughty Alaskan miner slams the door on the shrieking, piercing blizzard and enters the Nickelodeum to view the seductive life of the South Sea islanders. The cinema is surely the magic cloak with which the fairies of our childhood days were transported from Bagdad to Dedsbig.

Still, music is the stimulating and exhilarating complement to motion picture production. It is music that transforms the writhing viper to a poised performer, and in the movies it is the music that gives the life to the approaching falls or the bedlam of pitched battle. The violinist plays no less on the strings of the hearts of the audience than on those of his fiddle. As an example take the picture "Humoresque." Its name alone brings out the point.

As for building palaces to flatter our social importance, this is the most fatuous statement of all. Art is human expression. Motion picture action is one of the highest means of human expression and is therefore purely a work of art. Was the imposing Field museum designed with the motive of flattering our social importance? Or the magnificent libraries and art museums throughout the world? Does the critic of the movies want the cinema to be displayed at abandoned schoolhouses or in outdoor tents?

Why the display that is presented at cinema performances? For the same reason that there are preliminary prize fights when Dempsey, Leonard, or any other major scrapper engages in a display of sixth age emulations. To give the people their money's worth. Yours for the cinema.

A. S. F.

Dear Miss Thea: Because I very often mind the main issue or thought in a book or play, myself, and am always so glad of the opinion of some one else to help me out, am I writing to you or "Zasu."

I am not an indictee, but I do religiously read your comments and criticisms and because they are not always kind I feel that they must be true and like them better.

I was shocked and surprised, after having seen the play, that you could be so severe in your unwarranted censure of H. B. Warner's portrayal of "Dufresne."

Have you ever been the recipient of the love and adoration of a well poised, serious minded man such as he? His actions run true to form. He may seem rather solemn and quiet compared to the tempestuous Gloria, but what a foil!

You can perhaps find justification for my letter, when I say that no play has ever affected me so deeply.

FAYE G. STUFFEL.

Ask Me! Ask Me! Ask Me!

LAURA J.: Marion Davies plays the title part in "Little Old New York." No, I haven't seen the picture so can't tell you about it when it comes to town.

MARY: Jackie Coogan was born in 1915. Who wins the argument?

ELMHURST: Yes, Maurice Costello was born in Pittsburgh. Every once in a while one sees him now in a minor role, though he is starred no longer. Yes—saw him personally. Very pleasants Twekkum.

MRS. V. C. G.: I've read your letter over TWICE. The first time it made me happy. The second time I was happier and thought what a mighty fine person you must be to take all that time to do so nice to somebody you only know through the papers. Some time when De Kalb can spare you and you come to Chicago, come on over. AND—with all my heart I thank you!

FAN: Pola Negri has bobbed hair. Pretty soon. Just address Miss Daniels, Hollywood, Cal. Uncle Sam will do the rest. (Providing you don't forget the stamp.)

KITTY HALIE: No, there's no water in the basement that I know of and if the rent's raised—well, why don't you sign your name? Afraid?

CONSTANT READER: Any way you want to put it.

North Side Gets NEW Skeeles-Biddle Mortuary Establishment

Just opened—at 4437 Broadway, near Wilson Avenue—Chicago's most magnificent and elaborately equipped funeral establishment and chapel.

Like a bolt from the blue sky will be the effect of this unexpected announcement upon the colony of greedy and unscrupulous undertakers who have been waxing fat for years on the illicit and illegitimate profits they have been extorting from their patrons. In the past few months the name of Skeeles-Biddle has not only become known to every inhabitant of Chicago but has stricken terror into the hearts of the craven reprobates who have been making capital out of the sorrow of grief-stricken families.

Never has any campaign or exposure produced the sensation caused by our revelations of the corruption in the undertaking industry. A million people now know to be true what they have long suspected—that thousands of caskets have been sold for $300.00 that were not worth a cent more than $125.00, that other undertakers charge as much as $75.00 for the same casket sold by Skeeles-Biddle Company for $25.00.

If you have read the earlier chapters of this amazing story of business banditry you have surely been amazed. But the chapters to follow are still more shocking—almost unbelievable.

Watch next Sunday's Tribune for a message that will literally take you off your feet—the story of the deliberate and desperate efforts being made to silence and to suppress this exposure. Don't miss it.

Meanwhile, tell your friends about the new Skeeles-Biddle Company NORTH SIDE establishment. Here, as at our South Side establishments, you can make your selection from an almost unlimited stock of caskets, from the most modest to the finest, and save from ¼ to ½.

We will be glad to have you visit us and inspect the wonderful facilities and equipment of this, the most magnificent institution of its kind in the middle west.

$25 pays for a cloth covered Casket of excellent quality, lined with silk and mounted with six handles in old silver finish.

Orchestra Will Play Long List of Modern Music

"Impressioni dal Vero" and Respighi's "Sinfonia Dramatica" and "Concerto Gregoriano."

From Germany and Austria there are Schreker's "Birthday of the Infanta," Korngold's "Der Schneeman" overture, Weber's "Passacaglia," Albani Emmy's "Drei Orchestra Stücke," Schönberg's "Kammersymphonie," and Schmidt's Symphony No. 2. Hungary is represented by Gross, with an "Overture to an Opera Buffa," and an overture not otherwise described by Alois Haba. Russia provides only Glassounow's Symphony No. 3, and Poland also puts in its single item, Fliefberg's "Polish Rhapsody." In all, a good bit of a list.

The first programs, on Friday afternoon and Saturday night of this week, will follow the custom in opening a season of having no soloist, and, with the exception of Mr. Stock's new work, of being made up from the standard répertoire. It will contain Weber's "Euryanthe" overture, Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, Debussy's "La Mer" and Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg." Both program and orchestra will be highly welcome.

The High Art of Ballet.

One of the most important artistic items of the Chicago Civic opera, the ballet, trained and headed by a famous artist, Adolph Bolm, is to have its own showing at the Apollo theater a week from today. From this distance it looks like an uncommonly interesting program. Chopin's so-called "Revolutionary Etude," in which Mr. Bolm will lead a group of his dancers, is one number; Mendelssohn's "Saltarello," after the style of the Commedia dell'Arte, is another; a new arrangement of Glazounoff's "Bacchanale" is a third; a fourth is a Bach Fugue, in which four girls weave the four parts of a rhythmical pattern.

Mr. Bolm will appear in the "Prince Igor" dances, in which he made a sensation when he was a leading member of the Diaghileff Ballet Russe, also in Prokofieff's "Dance Geometric," which is the interpretation of the impressions of America upon a Russian. Anna Ludmila, prima ballerina, will dance Delibes' "Passepied," which she performed last Monday night at the Veiled Prophet's ball in St. Louis, and she and Mr. Bolm will have duet opportunities in Debussy's "Puck." A symphony orchestra will play under the baton of Isaac Van Grove. The performance will be under the auspices of the Friends of Opera.

Looking Ahead to Opera.

Looking ahead to the Civic Opera itself, one hears of the expected arrival of Musical Director Giorgio Polacco and his wife, Edith Mason, this week. This is another way of saying that within a few days rehearsals for the season will be under complete activity. Probably an early episode in the rehearsal season will be "Boris Godunoff," which, it is said, will be the opening performance on Nov. 8, with Feodor Chaliapin in the name part. Wagner's "Siegfried" will take an early scheduling, probably on the second night. In this performance the part of what Bernard Shaw used to call the Wagnerian Bakounin will be sung by Forrest Lamont, the Erda rôle by Kathryn Meisle, a new member of the company, and Brunnhilde by Myrna Sharlow, who is returning to the organization after an absence.

But before the Civic Opera takes its place at the top of the musical news columns, there will be quite a bit of other opera. The Wagnerian Opera company, first announced for the Studebaker and then transferred to the Great Northern, will have a highly concentrated two weeks of melodic outburst, with an evening series of the "Ring" and an afternoon cycle of the same, and with other Wagner works, a bit of Mozart, Kienzl's "Der Evangelimann," D'Albert's "Die Toten Augen," and some Strauss operettas in the interstices. It would seem that the end of this company's engagement will overlap upon the beginning of the Civic Opera, since that organization plans to begin its season midweek this year. The Wagnerian company, forty-two principals and sixty-three chorus, is now on the ocean. Elsa Alsen, Hermann Weil, Heinrich Knote, and Heinrich Marowsky are listed among the important principals.

Even before this, next Sunday night, to be exact, another company is coming down from Milwaukee to the Auditorium to give a single performance of the Polish national opera, "Halka," by Moniuszki. The company would seem to be semi-amateur in makeup, but the work was given in Milwaukee last May to surprised and delighted acclaim. Rose Saskowska, soprano, has the leading part. A review from the city up the lake says that the work is rich in thematic material, which in less refined language means that it has good tunes.

Mainly About Music.

Mischa Elman, ranking high as a violinist, will open F. Wight Neumann's season at the Auditorium this afternoon, featuring, among other numbers, Albert Spalding's "Etchings," which has hitherto been played only on the Spalding programs. Mr. Elman will also play the Brahms Sonata, Op. 78, for violin and piano, with his sister, the Bruch D Minor Concerto, and some shorter works. At the same hour the Chicago pianist, Georgia Kober, who has been absent for a year, will give a recital at the Playhouse of César Franck, Chopin, Debussy, and other composers.

Meanwhile the Little Symphony orchestra, conducted by George Dasch, will be playing at Kimball hall, while during the noon hour the Chicago theater will present a popular symphony concert under the direction of Nathaniel Finston. Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding" Symphony will take an important place on the program, and Berenice McChesney, the soloist, will play the Liszt Concerto in E flat for piano.

The Sunday Evening club will begin its seventeenth season at Orchestra hall tonight. The choir of 100, directed by Edgar Nelson, will sing "Unfold, Ye Portals," from Gounod's "Redemption"; the "Pilgrims' Chorus," and "Your Thankful Songs Upraise," from Weber's "Jubilee Cantata." Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdien will be the soprano soloist and Stanley Martin will play a brief organ recital.

A series of twilight musicales will open at the Edgewater Beach hotel this afternoon. The first program will be given by Mary Welch, contralto, and Lulu Geisecke, violinist.

The Chicago Madrigal club's annual competition for composers has been won by Miss Frances McCollin of Philadelphia. Louis Victor Saar of Chicago and Howard Gordon Bennett of Harvard university received honorable mention. The judges were Howard Wells, Thomas A. Pape, and D. A. Clippinger. Miss McCollin is blind, and this is the second time she has been a successful contestant in this competition. Her work will be sung at the club's second concert, March 20, 1924.

William Wade Hinshaw, who likes the idea of putting out classical light operas in English, will add Donizetti's "Don Pasquale" to the list this year. Mozart's "Impresario" and "Cosi Fan Tutte" will be continued from last season. The Donizetti cast will be made up of Pierre Remington, Leo de Hierapolis, Irene Williams, Judson House, and Ellen Rumsey.

BOW MAGIC

MISCHA ELMAN.

It is early in the autumn, but it is likely to seem like midseason when Mischa Elman wields the magic of his bow. He will play at the Auditorium this afternoon.

Notes of the Musicians

Looking through Mr. Neumann's announcements for the season one finds the name of Vladimir de Pachmann at the Auditorium a week from today, Geraldine Farrar at the same place the week following simultaneously with Josef Hofmann at the Studebaker; and Clara Butt at Cohan's Grand and Harold Bauer at the Playhouse the Sunday after that. The Flonzaleys will give three recitals at the Studebaker beginning Nov. 25, at one of which Ossip Gabrilowitsch will be the assisting artist. Later in the season there are expectations of Helen Stanley, the Duncan Dancers, Fritz Kreisler, Pablo Casals, Sergei Rachmaninoff, and Georges Enesco.

Mrs. Edna Nicholson Sollitt announces a series of three recitals at Kimball hall. Josef Schwarz will appear Oct. 23; the Chernlavsky trio Dec. 11, and Ina Bourskaya Jan. 29.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Society of American Musicians, held Sept. 27, the following resolutions were adopted and will be presented to the society at its meeting on Tuesday.

"The Society of American Musicians has no thought of casting any reflection upon the present personnel of the executive staff of the public schools of Chicago.

"However, if a change of superintendents is to be made (granted that he has all the other qualifications for the office), we, the Society of American Musicians, favor a superintendent who has a sympathetic attitude toward music, who will help connect the music of the public schools with such civic institutions as the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the Civic Opera, and other musical activities, and who will give a courteous hearing and consideration to recommendations made by the Society of American Musicians and other leading musicians of the city, and will react to them as he thinks advisable."

The late Reginald De Koven it was who said of John Philip Sousa: "He is the world's greatest salesman of other men's music for the profit of the other men!" The composer of "Robin Hood" had reference to a humoresque which Sousa, then starting forth on his career as the master of his own rather than of the U. S. A.'s band, built on the basic theme of "O, Promise Me!" the effective ballad for Alan-a-Dale in that operetta. Sheet-music sales of operetta were not large in those days; and both Harry B. Smith and Mr. de Koven were astonished to find their royalties from the publisher jumping two, three, and even five hundred percent. Inquiry made clear that the jump was due wellnigh entirely to the sales of "Oh, Promise Me!" in the territory visited by Sousa and his band—and, in the nature of such things, most of it territory not yet visited by the Bostonians with "Robin Hood" itself.

De Koven's tribute to the March King is recalled because an item in the Sousa program for afternoon and night of the 28th inst., in the Auditorium, will be a new humoresque built on "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," the topical gag song which the two jesters whose names are in the title have used as a stepping-stone to $2,000 a week salary and some litigation with the author, who happens to be one of Eddie Foy's children. Patrons of Sousa's concerts on his last visit, a year ago today, recall that he made an effective and altogether lovely eleven-minute "stunt" with Jerome Kern's "The Silver Lining" from "Sally."

Insects

HE WEARS THE "EVIL EYE."

ALL creatures that see live in deathly fear of the "evil eye." They hate to be looked at. Gaze steadily into the eyes of any animal, a dog, a tiger or a bear, and see him turn his head away. He does not like to be glared at. Even goldfish dislike to see big eyes looking at them through the glass, and a fish has a mind of the most elementary sort. Many insects capitalize this dislike of eyes, and so save themselves from being eaten.

An insect's eye does not have the sinister glitter that the eye of a vertebrate possesses. Its lenses are all on the outside, and make a mat surface that diffuses the light, instead of concentrating it into shining spots. Insects know that vertebrate eyes see better than theirs. Long experience has taught them this lesson. They have a wholesome respect for gleaming eyes of their enemies.

But what is a fellow to do if nature has been so unkind as not to give him any staring eyes to look at his enemies with? This question once confronted the click-beetles. What to do, what to do? The tribe did the only obvious thing, and grew some artificial eyes on their backs.

Have you ever seen a giant click-beetle? His eyespots gaze steadily at you, without a wink, and with a sinister stare. A shudder runs through your frame, and you hesitate to come too close to such a strange beetle without first learning whether he is dangerous or not. This is precisely the effect that the insect wishes to convey. Your mind, and the mind of every bug, bird and beast that sees him reacts toward him as you do. He means to make the adventuresome hesitate, and the timid to pass him by.

Lower animals do not possess as much capacity to reason as we do, and cannot analyse their fears. Should a bird lay hold of the click-beetle, the latter emits a sharp snap, and the bird, utterly dismayed at the strange tactic, and remembering the fearful looks of the insect, is quick to let him go. Truly, the game of bluff is played for all it is worth in little land.

ART AND ARTISTS

Spice of Variety Vies with Beauty of This Exhibit

By Eleanor Jewett.

The Palette and Chisel club is one of the exhibitions that are hung to be remembered. Although all the paintings are from one brush, yet in the show neither monotonous nor stale. There is variety and it exerts a similar effect upon this exhibit to that which it is commonly supposed to exercise upon life—it lends it spice. From summer to winter the pictures run; snow is the whiter for the contrasting green; mountains loom higher for the smooth aztec of the sea; the far scenes of Norway are more beautiful for the familiar pleasant meadows of Illinois.

Karl Oursen needs but little introduction to those who know something of the exhibitions that have been passing like a string of colored beads through the doors of the Art institute, Palette and Chisel club, Arts club and other centers of art in Chicago. He has made a place for himself from which it would indeed be difficult to dislodge him. As a painter of snow, he first commanded respect. As a painter of snow, he still commands respect and with it much admiration for his increasing talent. Not that it is snow alone that he paints well, but that in those scenes where snow is the main theme he excels.

There are in this exhibition two canvases that mark great strides in his progress. They are as beautiful as any that have been shown here in many a year. They are worthy a place in the permanent collection of a museum or in the more privileged collection of an art lover. It is hard to distinguish between the two, placing one as better than the other. In fact, it is impossible. The pictures differ in theme, but are alike in excellence. "The Open Gate in Winter" is one; a beautiful canvas. "Evolver, Lofoten in Winter, Near Spring" is the other.

"From Grönen in Nordland" is also a lovely thing. There is a bay, unruffled under a delicately clouded sky, a fishing boat, a few houses, and mountains in the distance. It has charm and strength and great beauty. Were it not for the first mentioned paintings, it would stand out more strikingly than it does.

"January" also is a splendid piece of work. The spirit of solitude dwells in it. A man and horse only make the loneliness of the vast show dell the more pungent. A great hush lies over the country. A world in chains, you would say, waiting, waiting—perhaps for spring, like a fairy lover, to kiss its white cheek and rouse it to flowers and life again after months of confinement in the toils of winter.

Among the other paintings are "River Banks," "The Brook in June," "Orkedal in Winter," "Winter Afternoon," "Toward Spring," "Mountain Farms in Orkedal," "Medio July," and "The Brook."

The exhibition will remain at the Palette and Chisel club through October.

At the Art institute there opened last Tuesday an unusual and extremely charming exhibit. It consists of twenty-eight models of stage settings for the Chicago Civic Opera company designed by Julien Dové. The little miniature stages are lit by electricity and are perfect down to the last detail despite their minute proportions. Tiny people walk about, or dance, or whisper secrets; tiny screens stand before tiny doors; at the feet of tiny chairs are tiny stools; tiny couches give a touch of comfort to tiny rooms whose walls are tinted in rich colors and whose tiny windows are hung with brilliant draperies. In one scene a turn of the electric button and there is moonlight; another turn and the yellow light of day plays upon the narrow street.

These miniature stages are made a quarter inch to the foot. One may see in them the vast stage of the Auditorium reduced to dwarfdom. Julien Dové produces these settings in their exquisite perfection before a strip of canvas or a paint pot is touched for the real settings. When the miniature stage has been perfected to his satisfaction his troop of painters and carpenters set to work and the tiny fairy scenes grow rapidly into the finished opera successes that excite our applause at the rise of the curtain.

Possibly the most beautiful of the settings shown at the institute are those depicting scenes from "Boris Godounow," the new opera sensation heralded this season. One showing a winter landscape, silver ground, and silver trees is surpassingly lovely. There are also interiors, dramatic, rich, and somber, and other scenes, each fascinating and each proclaiming the genius of M. Dové.

Among the operas for which these little stages are set are "Meistersinger," "Cavalliera Rusticana," "Madame Butterfly," "Carmen," "Orfeo," "Edipo Rd," "Tristan and Isolde," "The Jewess," and the "Love of Three Kings."

An exhibit of screens and stage decorations by John Wenger completes the gallery in the east wing, where the stage settings are. The screens are decorative and the decorations charming. A number of sketches and photographs add interest to the exhibition. All in all, this gallery is at the present moment one of the most attractive the Art institute has to show its appreciative visitors.

In gallery 60 of the east wing of the institute, where are installed the modern paintings from the Birch-Bartlett collection, several more paintings lent by Mr. Bartlett are being shown. It is doubtful whether they add to the beauty of the original group, but they do give another exotic touch. If you enjoy cubism, or mode of that movement, you will get pleasure from "Les Dames D'Avignon," by A. Lhote. "Naiada," by Raoul Duty, is grotesque, something after the fashion of a parody on the Lorelei.

"Interior," by Marcoussis, is a horribly mixed up concoction. What its meaning is is a puzzle. Probably Marcoussis had had a bad dream in which the whole world was enjoying one huge moving day and out of confusion emerged a room, hat or miss pitch-and-toss, and this room, seasick, stricken with vertigo, green with nausea, purple with fever, he painted.

One turns for relief to Vlaminck. Vlaminck, of whose work a number of examples make the gallery livable, painted in an intelligible way. More than that, his painting possesses beauty and strength, distinction and force. To enjoy his pictures it is worth while lingering in this room of modern horrors.

The collection of paintings owned by the Oak Park and River Forest Art league is being exhibited at the Hamilton club. The paintings are by Chicago artists and have been gotten together as a result of a local art movement in Oak Park and River Forest. It suggests what might be accomplished along similar lines for the benefit of our school children and others in local communities. The collection is interesting and attractive and has numerous examples of the work of our leading artists.

A bequest of $170,000 made by George W. Sheldon has been received by the Art institute and added to the endowment funds.

A bequest of $5,000 has been received from the estate of Hermann Paepcke to be placed among the restricted funds.

Louis Ritman, an American artist who has met with great succes in Paris, is here for a while to arrange about his one-man show to be given at the Art institute in December.

Emil Carlsen has recently finished a portrait of Edward E. Ayer, which will be shown in Chicago this winter.

Charles Morgan is continuing the Municipal Art league series of Artistic postal cards showing the beauties of Chicago. His last four card reproductions of his sketches of the new Field museum, the Pioneer Press newspaper church, the Wrigley tower, and other views, in all about twenty in number. The cards may be found at 84 East Monroe street, at the Chicago Book store.

MRS. ISAAC E. EMERSON.
Painted by Seymour M. Stone, former Chicago artist, who has made a name for himself as a painter of portraits, both here and abroad. This portrait, and one of Capt. Emerson, were painted by Mr. Stone during the last summer.

FRED MANN Presents
Edward Beck's entire new Autumn production
"RAINBO CHARMS"
Company of forty—Rainbo beauty chorus

"It is easily the most ambitious thing of its kind in town. Indeed, there is hardly a musical comedy in the standard theaters at the moment that could not with profit take a leaf from the book of Mr. Beck's way of staging an entertainment."
—Sheppard Butler, TRIBUNE.

"No cleaner, brighter, prettier entertainment is offered anywhere than at the Rainbo Room, in itself an architectural delight, handsomely fitted for its purpose."
—Margaret Manu Crollus, NEWS.

"From the first number to the 'Tweet Tweet' finale events joyful to eye and ear take place in such profusion that even the most eager must go away satisfied."
—JOURNAL.

"Fred Mann's Rainbo Room—the million-dollar one, you know—has come to be the smartest place of its kind in town. . . . 'Rainbo Charms' is similar to the Beck revues, well mannered, but lively with the necessary contrasting variety."
—HERALD-EXAMINER.

"The Rainbo is something more than that most distinctive of American institutions, a cabaret. It is more than a place to dine and dance. There is not a number on the bill that will bore you. The Rainbo long has been famous for the clothes its chorus wears."
—Sam Putnam, POST.

"All of which is by the way of saying that the production which opened the fall season at the Rainbo Room is as good as Fred Mann hopes you will think it is."
—AMERICAN.

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN?

Quespetta.

BY SELBY MAXWELL.

IBERIAN IS ARTISTIC.

IRELAND and Spain were once connected, and for many years after the land parted and the sea came between, traditions of the union still lingered. Both places are now centers of dispersion for the Iberian people. To show you what an Iberian type looks like, here is Quespetta.

Women of Iberian mold are slim, light and graceful. They are brunette, with shining black hair and large gray to brown eyes. Quespetta is the personification of her type. Her face is narrow and delicate, with long crowned white teeth and red lips. Her profile is convex, and the bones of her hands are long.

The Iberians are a branch of the Semitic race, which is numerically the largest subdivision of Caucasian stock. Semites include the Arabic, the Liguri- the Mediterranean, the Egyptian and other dark peoples of the east. The Iberians are the most noted of them all, in art, in appreciation of things beautiful, and in drama.

Quespetta understands the nature of things, and knows how people arrive at their opinions of culture. Fore-understanding in forsection with her, and she is quick to offer her interpretation to esthetic questions as they arise. She has excellent taste in art, and talking with her is inspiring.

Quespetta is vivacious. She thinks with great rapidity, so that her wit is always alert. It is next to impossible to outmaneuver her mind.

Iberian people have contributed much to art and culture. It is in the blood. Quespetta always wears clothes that are in excellent taste. Their colors are in harmony, and their ornaments are so placed that they do not leap out of the pattern. She looks subdued until you watch her closely, when you see that everything about her is planned and precise. The psychology that built the Alhambra is strong within her. Whenever you see Quespetta, expect to be thrilled by her artistic consciousness.

HOW DO ATOMS LIE?

HERE is a pattern of light rays. It is symmetrical, it is regular, and it was made from a cubical crystal of magnesium oxide. What do the dots mean?

When light passes through a crevice its rays are spread. When you look at a bright light through half closed eyelids, with the rays streaming through your eyelashes, you see the light broadened into a band of light. This is because its rays were spread in passing through the narrow spaces between your lashes.

When a beam of X-rays streams through a crystal they are spread in a similar fashion, save that here the crevices are in every direction instead of being in a curtain. Each of the dots in the photograph represents a space between the atoms in the molecule of magnesium oxide. But how are the actual atoms spaced? Here is a picture of the holes between them. Who can answer the question?

X-rays streaming through a crystal of magnesium oxide.

Plan Now For Your Home In the Country

To own a home in the country is ever the hope of city dwellers crowded into small quarters by increasing congestion.

The suburban districts tributary to Chicago, easily accessible by electric or steam railroad, offer wonderful home-sites where the youngsters can romp and play to their hearts' content.

Insure to your children the healthful freedom of play in the open where the streets are safer and the air is cleaner. Enjoy beautiful flowers, o'erspreading shade trees, inviting lawns and surroundings that mean contentment.

Adequate educational facilities—kindergarten, grade and high schools—offer proper instruction for children of all ages, under most modern conditions. Churches of your chosen affiliation extend a welcome.

Now is the time to plan for next year and the years to come—for that home of your desire out where the country begins.

The area around Chicago is the very heart of the territory served by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, so in making your plans you may be sure of the same full measure of gas or electric service which you now enjoy.

SANITAS
MODERN WALL COVERING

Your walls are mirrors, reflecting your personality

YOUR wall decorations are as intimately personal as the clothes you wear. One expresses your individuality as much as the other.

Your sense of harmony and good taste can be revealed in no more fitting way than by the use of appropriate patterns and treatments of Sanitas for the walls of your rooms.

Sanitas comes in styles for every room in the house—beautiful decorative and floral patterns, flat finish plain tints that can be hung as they come, or stenciled, frescoed, stippled, etc., and enamel finish plain colors and tile effects.

Sanitas is made on cloth, ready-painted with durable oil colors. It does not crack, tear, peel or fade, is impervious to moisture, grease, and stains, and can be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

It can be applied on new walls as soon as the plaster is dry, is ideal over wallboards, and on old cracked walls, if the cracks are properly filled, they cannot show through Sanitas.

Your decorator will gladly show you the new Sanitas styles. Write us for samples and booklet.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Sunday Evening Club Will Open Its 17th Season

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE seventeenth season of the Sunday Evening club, which meets in Orchestra hall, will open this evening under the leadership of Clifford W. Barnes, president and founder of the club. Dr. Barnes will speak at 7 o'clock and Bishop Edgar Blake will speak at 8 o'clock. Bishop Blake has charge of the work of the Methodist Episcopal church in certain parts of Europe, with headquarters at Paris, France. His recent experiences in Russia caused international comment. His subject will be, "Americ ics and Russia."

One of the interesting results of the espousal of the Sunday Evening club idea by Dr. Barnes was the work done by him during the summer vacation. While residing in Northeast Harbor, Me., among the deep sea fishermen, Dr. Barnes conducted a Sunday Evening club for their benefit. He had the help of speakers of national reputation, most of whom have at one or more times appeared before the club in Chicago. Among the vacation speakers were Dean Pehbody of Harvard university, Gov. Hadley of Missouri, Bishop Manning, New York; Bishop Lawrence, Massachusetts; Henry Van Dyke and others. Shopkeepers, tourists, fishermen, and residents formed a choir.

The Woman's Baptist Mission union will meet Tuesday, beginning at 11 a. m., in Hyde Park church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue. Dr. Bruce Kinney will speak of work among the Indians. Others will participate.

THE REV. EDWARD SCRIBNER AMES, Ph. D.

Dr. Ames is pastor of the University Disciples of Christ church, 57th street and University avenue, which will dedicate today its new church, the finest and largest of the Disciples of Christ churches in Chicago, costing $250,000. Dr. Ames will at the same time celebrate the twenty-third anniversary of his pastorate. The new church is built of white Joliet rubble stone. The interior finishing is of dark stained oak. Ample provision is made for the Sunday school and library. The architects were Howard Shaw and Henry K. Holtzman. The dedication will be financed without a public appeal for subscriptions. A place for voluntary gifts will be provided, but no solicitation will take place. Dr. Herbert L. Willett of the University of Chicago faculty will speak in the morning, and President E. C. Burton of the University of Chicago at 3:30 p. m. Dr. Ames is associate professor of philosophy in the University of Chicago and an author of books and periodical literature widely read.

The Presbyterian union has decided on the following program: Nov. 1, Dr. Joseph A. Vance, Detroit; Dec. 6, Dr. Charles F. Wishart, moderator of the general assembly; Feb. 13, Dr. Robert E. Speer, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, and April 24, Dr. John H. Finley, New York. The meetings will be at Hotel La Salle. Frederick P. Voss has been reflected president and Walter R. Mee secretary.

The annual meeting of the Dupage county Holy Name society will be held today at 3 o'clock at Immaculate Conception school hall, Elmhurst. The Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban and Judge Michael Girten of Chicago will be among the speakers.

World's Fair pictures will be shown and addresses in memory of the world's fair will be given in the First Presbyterian church, 41st street and Grand boulevard, this evening at 8. W. A. Illsley, C. D. Lowrey and Dr. W. C. Covert, the pastor, will speak.

The Rogers Park Sunday Evening club will hold its opening session this evening at 8 o'clock in the Masonic Temple, 1716 Lunt avenue. Hilton Ira Jones will speak on "The Wonders of Science." The Rogers Park Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal, and Presbyterian churches will unite in the meeting.

The installation of the officers of the church and of fifteen organizations in the church will be held at 11 a. m. today in the Waveland avenue Congregational church, Waveland and Janssen avenues.

The corner stone of Our Lady of Pompeii Italian Catholic church, Macalester place and Lytle street, will be laid today at 3:30. The Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. G. Fitzsimmons, vicar general and rector of the Cathedral of the Holy Name, will officiate. The pastor, who has had charge of the church eleven years, and other clergy will assist. The Rev. F. X. Breen, S. J., will be chairman of the plans for the procession, and James P. Marsano will be grand marshal. The Rev. Michele Favero, C. S. C., and Mayor Dever will speak.

Bishop Edgar Blake, Paris, France, for several years resident in Chicago, will speak at 11 a. m. today at Powers theater, Randolph near La Salle, on his experiences in Russia, at the service of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Dr. John Thompson, pastor.

George C. Kimball, international Kiwanis club, will speak at 8 p. m. on "The Three Cs, Church, Community, Citizen," at Drexel Park Presbyterian church, South Marshfield avenue and 64th street.

The English Evangelical Lutheran Church of Our Redeemer, Harvard avenue, near 64th street, valued at $350,000, said to be the largest and finest Lutheran church in America, seating 2,000, built of stone and with rich art glass windows, will begin today a week of dedicatory services. The pastor, the Rev. G. Schuessler, will be in general charge. The preachers today will be: Prof. Martin S. Sommer, St. Louis, 10:30 a. m.; the Rev. O. C. Kreinheder, Detroit, 3 p. m., and Prof. W. H. T. Dau, St. Louis, 7:45 p. m. Wednesday evening, the Rev. H. W. Prange. Next Sunday morning the pastor will preach the dedicatory sermon and in the evening the organ will be dedicated, with William Middelschulte as organist and Miss Barbara Walt as soloist. The building is of stone of late English perpendicular Gothic design.

The Rev. Claude E. Perrin, S. J., of Loyola university, will broadcast a reading concerning Christopher Columbus next Thursday evening, Columbus day, from the Westinghouse radio station KYW under the auspices of the Chicago chapter, Knights of Columbus.

You Can Sell Best Now
It is much easier now to sell your car at a good price than it will be later in the year at a much lower price. You can cut selling expense and increase your profit by using Tribune Want Ads to locate prospects.
Mr. L. Manis, 4453 Prairie, relied on this Want Ad, appearing September 5, to sell his car:
FORD—COUPE, 1921, A1 COND.; $300 cash; all extras. Atlantic 1406.
He is a Tribune booster now, for he "had seventeen answers the first day and sold the car." Tribune results will make a booster of you if you will give them a fair chance.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $5 will be paid. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Making It Unanimous.

It was married men's night at the revival.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles on your minds stand up!" said the preacher.

Every man in the church arose except one.

"Ah," said the preacher, looking at the man in the chair, "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped the man, as the congregation gazed at him. "I can't get up—I'm paralyzed."

H. E. Z.

Try It and See.

Flubb—It takes real grit to keep a smiling face when you're losing steadily at poker.

Dubb—O, I don't know. I find it harder to keep from smiling when I'm winning. E. H. D.

This Is News Indeed.

"I've got a lot of things I want to talk to you about, dear," said the wife.

"That's good," answered the husband; "you usually want to talk to me about a lot of things you haven't got."

R. S.

Calling It Square.

She had arrived at the little station in Vermont on a cold, stormy evening, and had hired an old man to drive her to her friend's farm up among the hills. The roads were in bad condition from the storm, and the ride was altogether an uncomfortable one.

"How much do I owe you?" she asked on arriving at her destination.

"Well, ma'am," said the old man, "my reg'lar price is a dollar, but seein' as it's sech a bad night and the goin' so terrible, I'll call it 75 cents." I. L.

His Dress Rehearsal.

Doctor—He'll be up in a day or two, Mrs. Jones. Why all this distress?

Patient's Wife—I was so afraid, doctor. He was practicing the harp on the bed rails all night. F. A. W.

Psychology

MUSIC REFLECTS RACE.

"BY their music shall ye know them." Races of men, and breeds within these races, and even families, have musical preferences of such a pronounced kind that the complexion of the singer can often be told from his song.

There are three parts to music—rhythm, harmony, and drama. Jazz music is mostly rhythm, sacred music is largely harmony, and popular songs are mainly drama.

Nordic music is the most highly dramatic of all. By dramatic the reflection of human emotions is meant. Nowhere except where Teutonic is spoken from the heart can you find such songs as "Annie Laurie," "Home, Sweet Home," or "Ninety and Nine." Compare them with the Alpine "Marseillaise," or the equally Alpine "Deutschland Ueber Alles."

Various people respond best to their own racial music. Some time when you are where many selections are being played before a mixed audience, notice the gleaming in the eyes of different types as the music of each is played. Or, if you cannot do this, go into a music room of a public library and note the kind of people who come there and the sort of matter they take away. Or, if this is not possible, go to some music teacher and ask him how many blonde pupils ever master his complicated lessons, compared with the brunettes, and see if he does not tell you that their number is few.

WEATHER

HOW HURRICANES BEGIN.

TROPICAL hurricanes make temperature low pressure areas in the air, or storms.

Tropical hurricanes do not follow in each other's paths, like they will when they get into temperate latitudes. As they come up from the regions under the vertical sun, they swing in wide parabolic arcs, and turn from their first direction toward the northwest to northeast or east. The first hurricane of the family takes the westernmost track, and has the deepest curve. The second follows to the east, on a lesser curve. The third is still farther east, and its path is straighter and more nearly north and south. Observers have hitherto been looking for the counter-balancing highs to follow the hurricane, never realising that it passes behind and to the east.

More Answers Than You Need

The choice of men which may be obtained by the use of Tribune Want Ads surprises many who are not constant users of The Tribune. The returns from Tribune Want Ads in the Help Wanted columns may be judged by this example. The National Motor Insurance Co., 166 W. Jackson, used this Want Ad on September 5 and 6:

YOUNG MEN — WE WANT SEVERAL young men, ages 20 to 24, who are seeking a permanent location in a business with unusual opportunities. Phone Harrison 2501 for appointment.

Mr. Otten said afterwards, "We really had more than we wanted in the way of results. Men were phoning all day long. I interviewed about forty who came in answer to the Want Ad."

SLAMS OF LIFE

By J. P. McEvoy

THE TIME TO LIVE.

The time to be kind is now,
The place to be kind is here,
We needn't be told the way to be kind
For the way to be kind is clear.
But it's good to pause and remember
In the heat of our stress and drive:
The very best time to live
Is while we are still alive.

"The time to be happy is now,
The place to be happy is here,
The way to be happy is to make others happy"—
Simple enough, I fear.
But the simple things we are apt to miss,
As we struggle and fret and strive,
Forgetting the very best time to live
Is while we are still alive.

An eternity lies behind us,
Another one lies ahead,
Here for a flash . . . and then who knows?
Ask of the silent dead.
Then why all the grab and the hate and greed,
In our pitiful earthy hive,
When the only time that we have to live
Is while we are still alive?

Varied Activities of the Women.

Miss Louise Hunter of New York, who made her debut this year at the age of 15 years, is said to be the youngest prima donna in the world.

At the beginning of 1922 the smallest pension paid to mothers in any state providing pensions for a single child was $10 a month, and the highest $25.

It is estimated that if a farm wife was paid a salary based on her actual worth, she could command at least $2,500 a year, as seamstress, laundress, cook, nurse, assistant hired man and several other tasks which she performs.

Hursen Funeral-Autos Are Palaces on Wheels

Yet there is no extra charge for their use over the usual auto hire.

Every funeral conducted by Hursen has a great many elegant marks of distinction. Hursen funeral-automobiles are one of these. Each of these noiseless limousines has been specially designed by Hursen himself, and cost a fortune to build.

The purpose was to surpass in comfort and appearance anything ever before attempted as a conveyance at funerals. Hursen limousines are so built that passengers may remain in complete seclusion, if desired. There is more room, more riding comfort, more elegance than in most of the highest-priced cars known in America.

Yet, the charge for these Hursen "palaces on wheels" is no greater than the usual auto hire. The size of the funeral makes no difference. Hursen chauffeurs are super-trained. They are men chosen for their higher qualities of head and heart. They are hard to get. They are "blue-ribbon" drivers. Most of them have been Hursen employes for from 10 to 20 years.

All Chicago knows how Hursen fought the funeral trust, single-handed, for years. He has been fighting all these years for decency, for better service, higher quality, lower cost. Out of the victory Hursen has built the largest and most highly esteemed institution of its kind in America. Hursen prices are from one-third to one-half the charges usually exacted elsewhere. Call Hursen, of course!

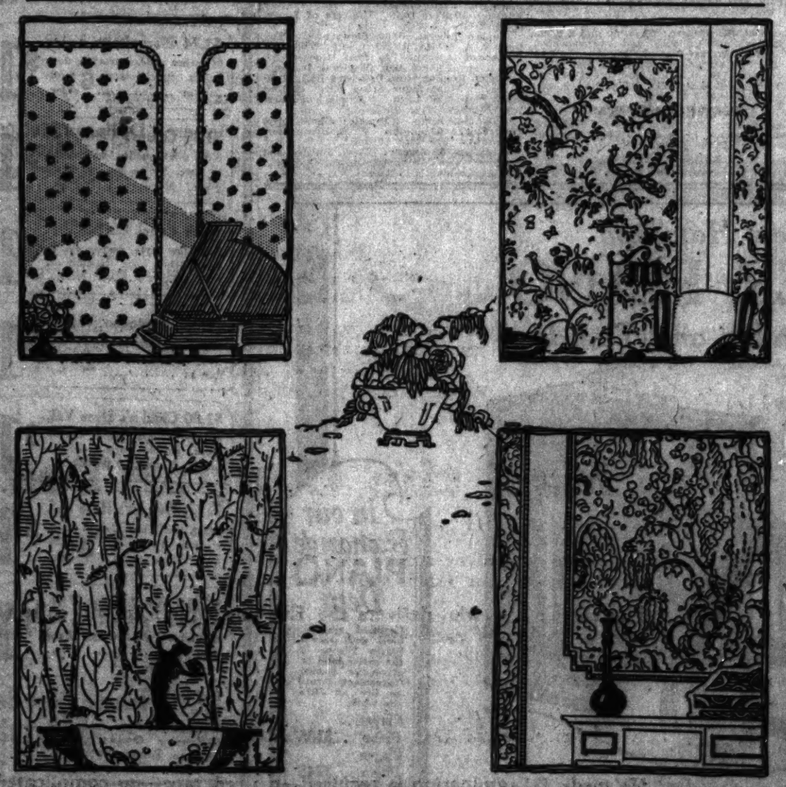
WALL PAPER THAT PROVIDES THE THEME OF ANY DECORATING SCHEME



Wall Paper Brings Summer Indoors

The new styles in interior decoration demand the banishment of plain walls and sombre tones—and the introduction of the colorful and sprightly themes in wall paper.

And that is the new spirit of the Alfred Peats wall papers—the change to gorgeous colorings. The newest patterns present motifs of gay floral designs, charming vistas, tiny scenes set among leafy medallions—which give the occupants of a room the veritable feeling of natural foliage and landscapes.

Thirty Killed and Injured—Chicago's Daily Auto Toll

The Evening American Offers Free Protection to Its Readers

A RECENT CHICAGO ACCIDENT

4 KILLED IN AUTO SMASH AT CLARK AND CENTER.

FOUR people were ground to death in the wreckage of this automobile. Who was to blame? Perhaps the other fellow, but that doesn't give the wife and children any protection against the husband and father who met his death.

Thirty people are killed or injured in automobile accidents in Chicago every day. No matter how careful YOU are, it is impossible to guard against the recklessness and incompetency of others. Today it is the other fellow who is killed or hurt. But tomorrow—suddenly and without warning—it may be YOU. What will happen to your loved ones? Are they protected? Are they provided for? Or would they be thrown on the world, dependent on charity or the assistance of relatives?

You Can't Afford to be Without Protection—You May be the Next Victim

You simply cannot afford to be without accident protection in these days when the newspaper headlines tell the same story every day—of the family breadwinner being struck down by automobiles or street cars and of widows and children left destitute.

Police department figures show that up to October 5th, 516 people have been killed as a result of automobile accidents in Chicago and 8,110 injured and maimed—many of these victims destined to go through life as hopeless cripples.

$1,000.00 Travel-Accident Policy FREE to Evening American Readers

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

ard to Hold an udience Unless ou Make 'Em Pay

By Mme. X.

TRAVELER recently returned from a trip round this rapidly shrinking globe of ours, and, full of enthusiasm at the great advance, found that a narrative of experience and emotions incurred during the tour rather rapidly bored his immediate neighborhood of listeners, so he decided to found a club consisting entirely of those who, like himself, had circumnavigated this planet, the members of which should talk only to each other on the great subject. The response to the idea was hearty, though, up to now, the club is not large. . . .

You try sitting down to talk of your adventures and, unless you are of the ancient mariner type and capable of holding the wedding guest by the power of your glittering eye, you soon find out how interested the rest of the world is in your travelogues. Burton Holmes puts it over because of his large and gorgeous pictures. Also because he makes you pay good money to listen to him. If you can make people pay to hear what you have to say they will give you at least their ears, if not their attention. Many people apparently listen and are really carrying on a quite separate train of thought, usually hiding it behind a fairly intelligent smile.

All this is a prelude to assuring those of our prominent local and social folks who have returned from rambles sheep distant and unusual countries that in the author of this column they have a really interested and enthusiastic auditor and that further news she will spread abroad such of their information as seems to her to be of interest to those readers of the W. G. N. who patronize this p. p. p.

There is one traveler whose account of her round-the-world experiences will be of real interest to a much larger audience than any I can hope to reach and this is Miss Jane Addams. Miss Addams brought to her long and varied journey a mental equipment of unusable order. She has the tolerant and the sympathetic understanding and the large vision that [illegible] given her the distinguished place in the affections and esteem of her contemporaries which this daughter of Illinois occupies today. She left Miss Mary Rozet Smith left this country last autumn, traveling eastward. This is, I think, the most interesting way to make the trip, as by going that way you pursue antipodes to its ultimate expression, going from our brand new continent to Europe, thence to aged Egypt, and from there to still more venerable India, ending with hoary old China, the most ancient of all present civilizations.

Fearlessness Awes Chinese.

In the latter country the two Chicago women had an adventure which shows the metal of which Miss Addams is made. They were on the last train that was sent through from Shanghai to Canton before traffic was interrupted by the present state of revolt and war which, according to travelers, is going on there, though our papers do not devote much space or time to its battles and campaigns. Suddenly there was the rattle of bullets against the side of the cars and the two travelers realized that the train was being attacked by rifle fire. Naturally alarmed, Miss Rozet Smith suggested that she and Miss Addams should shelter themselves under the seats as they had been told to do in case such a situation should arise.

"Not at all," said Miss Addams, mistress of herself even under fire. "We will pull up the curtains and show them that we are two American women and they will not fire on us." Which they immediately did, and the firing stopped. It showed both good sense and courage. Miss Rozet Smith, too, showed courage in thus accepting Miss Addams' view of the danger. It was a moment to try the soul of any woman unused to the excitements of living in a revolution and bandit ridden country.

While on the subject of the adventures and experiences of our wandering fellow citizens, I venture to quote some of the observations of Henry J. Patten, who has just returned from eleven months of widely extended wanderings, wanderings which included the island of St. Helena, where is Napoleon's last dwelling place; south and central Africa, the Vale of Cashmere, Siam, French Indo-China, Germany, and Russia, as zigzag and varied a trail of wandering as one could well imagine in that period of time.

Place Failing Into Decay.

He hands out a vigorous line of criticism of the English government for the neglect of all things connected with the house which was the abode of Napoleon for the last six years of his life and which has many picturesque associations. There has been no attempt to preserve even the shell of this final chapter in one of the most extraordinary lives in history. There were years when the house and the rooms occupied by Napoleon were used as a cowshed. Today it is absolutely stripped bare of any of the equipment which must once have made it habitable for the dying and done-for colossus. There is not a stick of furniture left in any of the rooms that are shown. You must use your imagination entirely to fill these barren apartments with the scenes which once made them important and memorable.

Mr. Patten is an unusually good and intelligent traveler. He always informs himself thoroughly as to what he is to look for and, if possible, see in the countries he visits, and he knows how best to use all the means of travel. He makes a science of it. So when, last June, while he was in France and decided to go to Russia via Germany, he was not deterred or dismayed by the warnings of well meaning friends and officials. He consulted the Russian commissar, or governmental agent, in Paris, and following his advice went to Berlin, where he got hold of the Russian commissar, who assured him that if his purpose was not unfriendly to the present Russian régime, and if he had some legitimate business, there would be no obstacles put in his way. His assurances on these various heads being satisfactory, he and his nephew, "Jack" Patten, were given passports and permits sufficient to insure them entrance to the most mysterious and unget-at-able country in the civilized world today. The agent said that he would write ahead that Mr. Patten was coming, and that some person of importance would meet him and his nephew.

The journey from Berlin to Riga, via the famous "Corridor" from Poland to Danzig, was made in about a day and a night. The Pattens went first class in a comfortable train and had a sleeping compartment and all the privileges and consideration which are the lot of people traveling in the most expensive and luxurious way, and the cost for both for all rail accommodations was, in our money, $2.40. The German railroads are owned and run by the government, as is the postoffice. Foreign postage at the time Mr. Patten was in Germany amounted to one four-hundredth of a cent for a letter. Considering the charges on these two government owned enterprises, it is evident, as Mr. Patten points out, that Germany prefers to provide free transportation and free postage to every one within her borders, thus going bankrupt, to charging for the same and helping by so much to pay the reparations demanded.

Get Facts à la Soviet.

There was a good deal of thrill about going into Russia, but nothing happened to justify the warnings of those whom Mr. Patten consulted in Paris. Through some delay in communication no one met the Pattens, though when they saw a solemn delegation gathered at the station on their arrival in Moscow they thought that they were the objects of its attention. It proved to be a body of revolutionaries to meet delegates to the International that met there last June. The Pattens were refused admission to the Savoy hotel in Moscow until they had gone to the bureau in charge of accommodations, where they got a paper giving this permission with little or no difficulty. Later the use of a comfortable suite of rooms was offered them by the government in the top of some official building, an offer they accepted with the proviso that they be allowed to pay for them. They stayed ten days in Russia and were shown just what the government wanted them to see—and no more. They were told just what the government wanted them to know—and no more.

Moscow did not look gay, but its streets were being swept, which was encouraging. There was little general traffic on them, few automobiles, and fewer taxis, and these very expensive. On the way to Moscow in the nearly twenty-four hours it took to go there from Riga, the Pattens saw only one freight train, and that not a very long one. But they were not molested in any way and they felt that public security was pretty good; in fact, they thought that the streets of Moscow were safer than those of Chicago. The government punishes promptly and severely any lawbreaking and thieving. There was plenty of wine to drink in the restaurants, though they saw and heard nothing of vodka.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock and Miss Muriel McCormick, who returned last Tuesday from a short trip which they took in Sweden and Russia, have even more explicit things to say about the last named unfortunate country. They liken it to Pompeii, except, that they say it is not dead, but dying, and dying of a loathsome disease which makes it an offensive object to those who look at it from near at hand. When they arrived at the Russian frontier they stepped from the Finnish train across an invisible line, leaving behind them a neat, trim, well ordered little country, and entering a vast, disheveled, and uncomfortable wilderness. Their luggage was taken from them and the result of a minute examination was that every book in their possession that had been published since 1917, the year of the Russian revolution, was confiscated. When Mr. McKinlock remonstrated and tried to salvage at least a collection of "Bobbie" Burns' poems, a book by Mark Twain, and a work by a radical British writer attacking capitalism, he was told that no publications of a later date than 1916 were admitted into Russia for fear that there might be some criticism of the present régime in it. Sensitive folk, those bolsheviki are. Say a word against them and they shiver and turn pale.

MISS DOROTHY BUTTOLPH.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Miss Dorothy Buttolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ashbel Buttolph of 5429 Cornell avenue, will become the bride of Warren Hines Clarke of Cleveland, O., son of the late Warren Hines Clarke of Bowling Green, Ky., and Mrs. R. Proctor Barclay of Baltimore, Md., Saturday evening, Oct. 20, at 8:30 o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal church.

MISS MADELEINE CHILDS.
[Baymor Studio Photo.]

Miss Madeleine Childs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick Childs of Lake Forest, is to have charge of the chorus in "Tell Tales," the musical comedy to be given on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Nov. 20 and 21, at the Aryan Grotto by the Service club. Miss Childs' job is no easy one, for it will be her duty to see that the chorus assembles on time for the rehearsals, which will start the middle of this month. Miss Childs made her debut last winter.

MISS ELISE FRENCH RICE.
[Underwood & Underwood.]

Miss Elise French Rice, daughter of Mrs. William Lowe Rice of New York, is to be married to Winfield Scott Linn of Chicago on Wednesday, Oct. 17. The wedding will take place at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon in St. Thomas' Episcopal church and will be one of the most important of the season in New York. Miss Rice spent a week-end in Chicago recently with the sister of her fiancé, Miss Katharyne Linn of 65 East Division street, and his cousin, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr. of Lake Forest.

which the train passes between the Finnish frontier and Petrograd is one long panorama of desolation. Houses once pretty villas or stately estates stand roofless, with gaping windows, shutters hanging by one hinge, while gardens are overgrown and unkempt. There is no sign of life anywhere and a sense of abominable desolation rules supreme. Petrograd is the acme of this prevailing expression of failure and destruction. Moscow gives more sign of life, but its once gorgeous palaces are all turned into tenements and its former splendors are become ragged and faded habiliments of a ghastly experiment. Only so much space, so many square feet, is allotted to each person. If you happen to have been born in a home with good sized rooms and if these exceed in size what is permitted, the government plants a family with you to complete the allotment. This course has destroyed that most precious of all institutions, privacy. There is no longer any privacy in family life in Russia. Communism, like charity, begins at home.

No, it is not a pretty picture that these returned fellow citizens of ours draw of the Russia they saw and sensed, for the discerning traveler can see a little way through the thick and dirty curtain which the present government hangs between the Russia it has created and the rest of the inquiring world. It is a pity that all the followers in this and other countries of the doctrines being tried out in Russia could not be given a six months' visit there to see the theories of Marx made manifest to their final analysis.

The report now being circulated in Russia is that Lenin is getting better. His illness is not, according to rumors heard here, paralysis. It is the result of an attack made on him a year and a half ago when a revolver bullet lodged near his spine and injured the nervous system without affecting his brain.

He and Trotzky live in entire seclusion, neither daring to let his resting place be known to any but those of their most intimate entourage. Trotzky is said to have many lodgings and to hurry from one to the other, never sleeping in the same place two nights in succession. A pleasant life it must be! Even the old Romanoffs, the rulers whose blind and fatuous tyranny brought about the present state of things there and who from birth to death lived in a constant state of terror, had no worse time than their successors to bloody tyranny.

In spite of the many discomforts experienced by the McKinlocks and Miss McCormick, they were glad that they had ventured into the black night of Russia today, though it is an experiment that few besides Mrs. Margaret Harrison would care to try a second time. In spite of her prison experiences, a glimpse of which she gives in her admirable little book, "Unfinished Stories," she returned to Russia and I believe is now part of an important expedition to investigate some remote region there. She is a cousin and was a schoolmate of Mrs. John Chapman of Lake Forest, who describes her as being a person of quiet exterior, giving no hint of the indomitable spirit and powers of endurance which have enabled her to pass through such a multitude of strange and dangerous adventures.

To come from Russia to this country must be like stepping out of a dank, dark, noisome cellar into the clear light of a fragant June day as it shines in a rose garden full of birds, butterflies, and happy children.

Friends of Opera Meeting

One of the earliest signs of the coming social season was the first meeting of the autumn of the box committee of the Friends of Opera, which was held on Wednesday in the charming and sumptuous drawing room of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick. There was spread a long T shaped table around which the members of the committee sat and partook of a delicious repast while they listened to reports of boxes sold during the summer and discussed how to set about selling the rest of the opera boxes. Mrs. Jacob Baur, chairman of the committee, presided and gave encouragement to her corps of enthusiastic workers by telling them that they had come within eight or nine of the high water mark set by the box selling committee of the Friends of Opera in 1919, which was 151 boxes. That was in the boom which immediately followed the close of the world war when, for some inexplicable reason, every one suddenly felt rich.

There are today a good many good boxes which can yet be had by people who have as much brains as money. This city is full of people who have made fortunes in the last decade and who have so much money they don't know what to do with it and yet don't want to spend it where it will do them no good. My dear Mr. and Mrs. Newcome-Rich, a box at the opera is one of the best roads to a recognition from the leading personalities in your community that you are also a part of it. Your name on the list of box-holders, a long and impressive list it is, immediately leads to the query, "who are the so-and-sos?" And an answer from the box committee will be an enthusiastic indorsement of your qualifications as a desirable member of the community.

The prominent members of this hard working committee include, besides Mrs. Baur, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, honorary president of the Friends of Opera; Mrs. Arthur Meeker, its president, and its four vice presidents, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Jacob Baur and Mrs. John Borden. Other much interested members are Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. William M. Burton, Mrs. Frederick Upham, Mrs. R. T. McCormick, Mrs. Arthur Small, Mrs. Watson Blair, Mrs. Thomas Prindiville, Mrs. William Prescott Hunt, Miss M. J. Roset, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs John H. Winterbotham, Miss Mary Waller and Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr.

The Auditorium has been redecorated with, I am told, very successful results. The new background is guaranteed to be of a color and quality that will set off jewels and fine raiment to a superlative degree and we all know how nearly a love for music and for beautiful costumes are allied. A diamond tiara sets off the splendid strains of Lohengrin or Pelleas and Melisande as nothing else can, while a Paris frock makes one far more appreciative of the beauties of the music of Puccini or Massenet or any other of the modern composers, or even of Mozart and Gounod or some of the other classics. Thirty sopranos are to be on the roster of the company this winter, together with seven contraltos and mezzo-sopranos, nine tenors, seven baritones, four bassos, and three conductors. Among the already tested favorites promised are Mme. Galli-Curci, Mary Garden, Florence Macbeth, Edith Mason, Rosa Raisa and Myrna Sharlow, with a new soprano, Elizabeth Kerr. Tito Schipa heads the list of tenors, with what is claimed to be the first among French tenors today, Fernand Anseau as the novelty among the tenors. Feodor Challapin, the famous Russian basso, is probably the biggest attraction promised for the coming season. He is to sing in the Russian opera "Boris Godunoff," by Mussorgsky, a work which had a great success when it was presented a year ago last summer at Ravinia.

Altogether, the promise is for a brilliant opera season and those on the list of season box and seat holders will get their money's worth, while at the same time they may enjoy the added satisfaction of knowing that they are contributing to the glory and renown of Chicago by helping establish grand opera here as a fact of unlimited musical and social importance.

Grand opera and society have always walked hand in hand since grand opera first was produced some two centuries or so ago. It has been the protegee of kings and has always had to be supported either by a ruling family or by that power higher than royalty, the people. It is associated in people's minds with social gayety and tradition has made of it an occasion for display and splendor. Many music lovers dislike this association and these try to find seats in the opera house down near the front so that they may not be distracted by the spectacle of wealth and vanity. But most of us frankly like the combination. It fires the imagination and sets the fancy roaming. So on with the feast of music, lights, color and motion!

Bolm to Present Dancers.

Speaking of motion, Adolph Bolm, the "maitre de ballet" of the opera, is presenting the graduates of his school of dancing at a terpsichorean performance to be given next Sunday at the Apollo theater at 3 o'clock. The Friends of Opera are promoting and sponsoring this entertainment, which promises to be both interesting and charming. John A. Carpenter and Mrs. Arthur Ryerson are especially active in calling the attention of the public to this affair. Mrs. Ryerson is coming next Saturday just to be present at it, returning almost immediately afterwards to Ringwood, her country place near Cooperstown, N. Y. She brings with her Miss Douglas of Australia and London. Mr. Bolm took his company to St. Louis lately, where they had a great success. Tickets may be bought at the box office or of the theatrical agents, Cuthoui. Dear me! I nearly forgot to say that that very charming personality, the "prima ballerina" of the Chicago Civic opera, Anna Ludmilla, was to dance with the troupe. She is rapidly making her way to the top of her class of artists.

The North Shore Theater guild (it spells its name, not in our modern manner, but in the old and classic way, theatre) is out on a membership campaign which it is conducting along the north shore among the residents of the district which stretches from Evanston to the Great Lakes. The guild is two years old, and in that period has produced very successfully many worth while pieces. It seeks to make the choice of plays as important as the way they are produced. It has presented to its public such well known and established pieces as "Dear Brutus," "Joanne d'Arc," "The Truth About Bladys," and "Mixed Marriage." It is becoming each season more and more of an institution along the north shore. This year it will endeavor to outdo any previous record in the excellence of the entertainment it provides. To this end it has engaged as director Mr. Alexander Dean, associate professor of dramatic literature and art at the Northwestern university. He has already made his name and fame as director of the Little theater in Dallas, Tex., and as a professional actor and member of the Forty Seven Workshop, a celebrated enterprise at Harvard, besides being director of dramatics at the University of Montana.

The first piece which the guild is planning to produce will be Henry Wagstaff Gribble's "March Hares." It will start the season with this almost immediately. "The Red Robe," by Eugene Brieux, in which both Mme. Rejane and Lionel Barrymore at different times made great hits, is next on the list. This drama held the public for twenty years in Paris, and in New York attracted crowds. Other plays under consideration are "Lady Windermere's Fan" (of imperishable charm as a play), "Duley," Strindberg's "Brother Pehr," and "The Man Who Ate Popomack." Such an attractive prospectus should bring into the fold enough new members to establish the North Shore Theater guild on a firm financial footing.

Because the fine new apartment building on the corner of Fullerton and Lake View avenues, which Howard Shaw is putting up for eight or ten prominent Chicago families, has been delayed in construction by the hundred and one obstructions which surround building nowadays, and won't be ready before spring, several of our gay social lights are facing a winter in their country homes. Among those who will be thus marooned among the snow drifts of Lake Forest, and who, it must be confessed, are smiling at the prospects, are Col. and Mrs. Noble Judah (and the twins), Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown, Miss Betty Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon and their sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shaw and Miss Frances Theodora Shaw. There are worse fates than having to breathe the pure and vigorous air of that region in winter, and being obliged to watch the glitter of sunshine across dazzling snow, and to enjoy the outdoor sports such as skating and snowshoeing. Our only fear is that they may become so infatuated with the many delights of the country in the winter and so indifferent to the city's bright lights that they may never want to take up again the strenuous indoor delights of city life in that same season. Let us hope not, however.

Sawed-through section Sonora Brass Tone Arm and Wood Amplifier.

Sonora Amplifiers Are Built of Laminated Wood

ONLY laminated wood is used in constructing Sonora amplifiers; veneer panels built up to five, seven and nine layers. This rigid construction although costly, intensifies amplification by preventing absorption of tone vibration while making vibration of the walls impossible.

Observe the free, uninterrupted curves, so necessary to the natural flow of sound waves. Sonora all-wood amplifiers require more thorough construction than any other make! Over one hundred distinct operations are necessary.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Clubs to Further "Picture Week" for Benefit of Youth

By Kate Webber.

THE idea that the value and beauty of good pictures is an important element in the education of a child, and is an index to the culture of the home, are the bases on which scores of club women in the city and state are coöperating toward obbeginning tomorrow and lasting arrvance of "national picture week," through the week.

The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, under chairmanship of Mrs. Charles W. Leigh, is one of the outstanding organizations which is coöperating with the American Art bureau in conducting a wide campaign of propaganda for good pictures in home, school, office, and other places.

Plans for popularizing excellent pictures and placing them before the attention of the public were made at a recent luncheon of school, club, art museum, and library authorities, who discussed with members of the American Art bureau the importance of pointing out the place of good pictures in the child's education and their decorative charm as part of the furnishing of the home.

Mrs. William F. Grower, chairman of the art purchasing committee of the Chicago Woman's club, is at the head of this committee, and associated with her are Miss Lucy Silke, supervisor of art in the elementary public schools of Chicago; Mrs. Harvey A. Tyler, secretary of the Municipal Art league; Mrs. Theodore Tieken, president of the Public School Art society; Miss June Dunham, Miss Helen Montegriffo, civic director of the Woman's City club; Miss Ada Whitcomb of the Chicago Public library; Miss Norma Stahle, director of the Association of Arts and Industries, and Miss Helen Parker of the Art institute.

Through the efforts of these women and many others interested in art throughout the country, it soon will be realized by homemakers that one of the surest tests of the standards of good taste and culture of a home are the pictures upon its walls, and the proper arrangement of those pictures.

Club programs have been arranged in the I. F. W. C. membership which will bring out the fact that good pictures should dominate home decoration; that good reproductions of masterpieces are within the means of every one; that pictures should be chosen with as much care as beautiful rugs and the right piece of furniture; that an effective picture may become the decorative keynote of a room. The study of the proper framing and hanging of pictures also will be made.

National picture week in Chicago will be observed with a special showing of reproductions of original paintings at the Art institute; the reproductions to be shown in juxtaposition to the originals. There also will be special programs in the public school, and women's club programs devoted to the subject of pictures and their relation to the home.

MRS. SYDNEY MAY.
[Keehne Photo.]

Mrs. Sydney May is chairman of a committee composed of members of the Daughters of the British Empire, which is assisting in the sale of seats for a lecture to be given tomorrow at 4:30 o'clock at Orchestra hall with Lord Birkenhead as the speaker. The proceeds of the lecture will go to the British Old People's home.

MISS NORMA STAHLE.
[(C.) Ray Huff.]

Miss Norma Stahle is chairman of the speakers' bureau for "National Picture week," which is to be observed Oct. 8-14 throughout the city and state. Women prominent in club life are lending their aid toward impressing the homemaker with the importance of good pictures in the home life and education of the child.

MRS. HOMER W. BANG.
[Burke Photo.]

Northwestern university women in Chicago are sponsoring a benefit performance of "You and I" tomorrow evening at the Playhouse. The proceeds are to be devoted to the fund for the proposed new woman's building and open dormitories on the Evanston campus. Mrs. Homer W. Bang is treasurer of the Chicago organization of Northwestern alumnæ.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

The Chicago Woman's club will meet on Wednesday at 2 o'clock in Recital hall, to hear Emil Davies, of the London county council, speak on "The Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock Dr. Zella Allen Dixson will give an illustrated lecture before the literary class on "The Evolution of the Modern Book." Friday noon Bishop Edgar Blake will be the principal speaker at a luncheon under auspices of the international relations committee.

There will be a meeting of the legislative committee of the Woman's City club tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock. On Tuesday at 10:45, Mrs. John V. Farwell will speak on "Civic Agencies and Government" before the citizenship study class. The Tuesday morning citizenship class will be addressed at 11:30 by Dr. A. Damiria on the subject, "The Italian Contribution to Chicago's Health." The housing and zoning committee will meet on Tuesday at 2 o'clock, and at 7 o'clock Mrs. Delwin M. Campbell will describe the organization and work of the state legislature. There will be a meeting of the clean city committee at luncheon on Wednesday at 12:30 and at 2 o' clock the eighth ward branch will meet. There also will be a meeting of the current book review class in the lounge on Wednesday afternoon. The police, police stations and jails committee will meet at 11:30 o'clock on Thursday and at 12:15 the civil service committee will meet for luncheon. The Americanization committee will meet on Thursday at 2 o'clock, and there also will be a meeting of the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth ward branch at the same hour. The citizenship study lecture for the young woman's auxiliary will be given on Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock, with Mrs. Edward Gudeman as speaker. The Second ward branch will meet on Friday at 2 o'clock and the third ward branch will meet in the evening. A special program will be given on Friday evening at the club, as part of the "better picture week" to be held in Chicago all this week. Miss Lena Macauley will speak on "Pictures in the Home."

The Chicago College club will give a tea on Friday, Oct. 12, from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock for the new officers and directors. Mrs. Robert E. Graves is the newly elected president. Other new officers are: Mrs. Bruce Scott, Mrs. Herbert W. Sanborn, Miss Mildred B. Dennis, Miss Dorothy R. Clark, Mrs. Robert Watt, Mrs. George L. Marsh, and Mrs. F. H. Montgomery. There will be a musical program. Mrs. George Howell and Mrs. William S. Gaxiay will be hostesses. Mrs. Alexander S. Anderson, Mrs. Benjamin Robinson, and Mrs. Robert Watt will be hostesses at a card party in the club rooms on Saturday at 2:15 o'clock.

The young business women's clubs of the Y. W. C. A. will start their fall activities tomorrow evening with a club supper, program, and registration for study classes at Central branch, 59 East Monroe street. These clubs are made up of employed girls who are organized for friendship, sociability, study, and social service. Special Monday evening classes will be offered the club members in citizenship, handcraft, homemaking, literature, economics, Bible, and development of personality. Three clubs, the Chameleon, Gamma Delta, and Warrenville, will take part in the Monday opening, while two others, the Friendship club and the Loop Business Girls' league, will inaugurate their programs on Thursday evening. New Liquid Gives 7-Day Curl in 15 Minutes!

NO longer need you spend many bothersome hours a week combing and waving your hair. Nor need you pay big fees to hair-dressers. For thanks to a wonderful new liquid you can now—in only 15 minutes—acquire a wealth of lustrous curls and charming waves—waves and curls that will stay in place for a full week, often longer.

This new liquid is called Domino Curlette. All you need do is moisten your hair with a few drops of it. Then use your favorite irons to shape and place the curls the way you like them. And in 15 minutes your hair will have acquired a beautiful permanent wave effect that will be the admiration of all your friends. If you prefer you can use kid or silk curlers. In either case the results will amaze you.

Domino Curlette costs only a small amount for a bottle. [illegible] mention. Get it at your favorite store today. If they haven't it in stock send dollar ($1.00) plus ten cents (10c) postage to Domino House, 2209 South 16th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Success of Your Fall Costume Depends on Choosing the Right Style of Corset

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

Every woman who is particular about her figure—about the way her clothes hang and fit—about the fashionable figure lines—is planning to buy a new corset for autumn before she buys a gown or suit—and especially so the woman who is inclined to be stout. The following is quoted from "Vogue," Sept. 15, 1923:

"Corsets are again of supreme importance to the well dressed woman. Every smart woman today, be she sixteen or sixty, must have the straight figure together with a free, easy grace, a litheness of motion, that were formerly the attribute of youth only. And to acquire this figure and grace, she must be corsetted. For women have learned that going without corsets makes the figure heavy. Paradoxical as it may seem, only by being well corseted does she acquire that much sought uncorseted effect."

Our corsetieres have been demonstrating this fact for years. Now the foremost publications voice the same opinion. You'll understand why, after our corsetieres have fitted you, you may rely on the comfort of any corset bought here. For the fitting service here, conceded to be the best in the city, there is no charge.

A Binner corset that is exceedingly popular for the tall, long-limbed, plump figure—made especially for this type—it comes well down on the figure, taking wonderful care of large thighs—the ungraceful lumps of flesh will disappear. The bust is extremely low with elastic inserts in center of diaphragm. Sizes to 36, at..... $10

Binner corset—for the more average figure that wants the diaphragm controlled and reduced. A model that comes up slightly over the diaphragm, but slips away at side and under bust—extremely low. Many women find that this corset gives them an appearance of greater slimness than any corset they have ever worn; in serviceable coutil, at..... $8

Binner Corsets in Complete Variety at $5 and up to $15

The Model "Criss Cross" Brassiere Means No More Unsightly, Unfashionable Bulging Diaphragm: We Feature Them

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

The Unfashionable Diaphragm Bulge

The unfashionable figure, with the ill-shaped diaphragm corrected at once with Criss-Cross. A graceful, attractive silhouette can be obtained if a Criss-Cross diaphragm flattening brassiere is worn.

"Criss-Cross" corrects the ugly, protruding diaphragm curve for good and all. Once you wear Criss-Cross you may be sure of a faultless figure and well fitting frocks. Criss-Cross is guaranteed to keep the unsightly bulge within bounds so that finally it disappears! It makes the bust absolutely flat and gives the fashionable straight front and back line.

Style 0161—Criss-Cross. Extra long, four garter Corset-Brassiere, comes down over the figure and takes the place of a corset for youthful figures; very popular for dancing; of attractive fancy material in flesh; sizes to 50; hook back..... 3.50

Style 1704—Criss-Cross. Bandeau of brocaded shadow stripe material; hook back; sizes 38 to 48. 1.00

Many stage and screen stars have adopted "Criss-Cross" as the one foundation garment that successfully produces the correct form. Although the first Criss-Cross appeared but six months ago, over a hundred thousand enthusiastic wearers of Criss-Cross have forced "Model" to add a complete assortment of styles adaptable to all figures, for all occasions.

Style 1801—Criss-Cross, the new long style to wear with the basque gown; comes well down over top of corset, has elastic at side that makes it adjustable and snug at the waistline; sizes to 50, at..... 2.00

Style 1700—Criss-Cross. Long hook-back bandeau of silk striped and crepe batiste, sizes to 50. 1.50

The Fashionable Criss-Cross Figure

A fashionable figure can be obtained with Criss-Cross. The specially designed cross-boned support holds the diaphragm in a straight line with absolute comfort, and keeps it within bounds until it disappears. See the Criss-Cross and you will see the reason.

FALLING HAIR

DANDRUFF, itching scalp and falling hair are signs of unhealthy scalp. Sergeant's Mange Medicine makes the scalp healthy. Then it will grow healthy, luxuriant hair. Sergeant's is a real scalp medicine—standard for 50 years. Nothing else approaches Sergeant's for actual results. Its sulphurated pine and other natural oils kill dandruff germs and fertilize the hair roots, stop falling hair and cause the hair to grow thick and fast all over the head. Results are almost immediate. Barbers apply Sergeant's. A large bottle is only 65 cents at drug stores and toilet counters.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

A friend and I recently visited a business meeting of a suburban women's club.

The chairman started the debate on every question that came up.

It was moved to donate a sum of money to a relief fund. She told the members that the cause was worthy, that she believed in it, and hoped they would vote for it. They did.

A motion was made to donate a similar sum to a different cause. The chairman disapproved of this, told why, and hoped the members would kill it. They did.

A motion was made to give an entertainment. The chairman liked the idea, argued for it, and hoped the members would show they were with her. They were.

In every case the chairman stated her attitude toward the question before she recognized any one from the floor. One who stood against her was put in a disagreeable position.

When we left the meeting my friend protested.

"That woman sounds like a dictator, instead of a chairman," she said. "She doesn't seem to know that she should sense the will of the members and not tell them how to vote. She should cultivate a poker face and keep her opinions to herself. She has the right to speak to a question only when she leaves the chair, but, even then, it's not considered good form.

Nemo Editorial on Corsets

THERE IS NO SMOKE WITHOUT FIRE.

If someone should tell you that you wouldn't have backaches nor that tired feeling, nor bearing down pains and dull headaches, nor that ghastly, death-like expression on your face if you would wear a certain corset, you would think it was ridiculous.

But that is exactly what can happen if you will wear a Nemo Wonderlift Corset which not only prevents those disorders, but gives buoyancy to your carriage and symmetrical lines to your figure.

Women do suffer whether they admit it or not. The remedy is a very easy and inexpensive one. Try a pair, and incidentally send for a booklet entitled "Why Women Should Wear Corsets." We'll mail it free upon request.

Nemo Wonderlift Back-Resting No. 558, illustrated, for women of slender and medium figures. Concealed bandlets give correct poise and healthful, restful support. Pink coutil; sizes 24 to 32—$6.50.

GEOLOGY

Head of a unicorn dinosaur.

UNICORNS WERE LIZARDS.

ONCE, back in cretacious times, there were dinosaurs in this country. The world was peopled with these big reptiles, so that there was no room for higher animals. Dinosaurs were lizards most nearly related to birds, but unlike the feathered folk they never got over the alligator habit of wearing scales and being stupid. There were many kinds of dinosaurs. Some were no larger than sparrows, while others were as big as small houses. Life was easy for the strong then, and many reptiles grew to be unbelievably ponderous.

Among the lizards of the past, none is stranger than the unicorn dinosaur. Externally he looked something like a small rhinoceros. He was about as big as a large hog, but his physique was entirely different. Instead of a mouth, he had a bill like a turtle. On the center of his nose there was a long, sharp horn. The unicorn was a vicious brute, and was quick to come charging at any enemy he fancied he saw, to impale him on the sharp spike.

Unicorn dinosaurs were cousins of the triceratops, or three horned American dinosaurs. They were the pigmies of the tribe. The only relatives of horned dinosaurs still living are horned toads.

How much sense do you imagine a dinosaur unicorn possessed? Lizards are notoriously stolid, but horned dragons were the dunces of the family. If bulk of brain is a gauge of power of mind, the unicorn was about one-tenth as smart as a crocodile. He had sense enough to take care of himself, and fight, but that was all.

It is a remarkable fact that creatures who spend great effort in cultivating their powers of aggression sooner or later come to a bad end. They violate a law of nature which says that all emotions and parts of the body must be developed alike, or else there will be a fatal lack of balance. Some time a test comes to a part that has been neglected, and they are found wanting. Then the end is not far off, for nature does not trifle with weaklings.

This lesson can be applied to men. It is always true. The horned dinosaurs found out to their sorrow that there is more to life than eating and fighting. The first mammals who came by, equipped not only to eat and to fight but to love, swept them out of existence.

CHEERFUL CREDIT

is the modern, convenient and most satisfactory way to buy clothes—now used by many thousands of Chicago's better dressed men and women!

All of us often experience the need of clothes and the lack of cash. These are circumstances that even confront men and women who have substantial incomes. It is never wise to neglect your appearance, for they say that "success looks the part," and to look successful is to increase your efficiency in business—your prestige in society. And by dressing smartly, men and women create proper impressions and gain the confidence of their business and personal associates.

When you use Cheerful Credit you buy good clothes in spacious daylight showrooms—you select merchandise from ultra-fashionable styles—from quality fabrics—and you always pay a fair price—not one penny extra is charged for the use of our special charge account plan.

Visitors to Wheeler's are always welcome. You'll not be made to feel obligated to buy. . . merchandise will be cheerfully shown. . . questions will be cheerfully answered. . . you will be made to appreciate the full meaning of Cheerful Credit! Wheeler's is easy to reach—convenient to residents of all parts of the city. Opening an account here is just as easy as opening the ordinary 30-day charge account in any department store. Come up. . . just say "charge it"—and take your purchase with you!

YOU should take advantage of Cheerful Credit at once!

The 1923 idea of Credit—

In recent years the public's opinion of the use of credit has greatly increased in favor. The beginning of the present broad understanding dates back to the distribution of Liberty Bonds among people who could not afford to purchase them on a cash basis. It was then that hundreds of thousands of men and women began to realize how easy it was to buy bonds through the payment of a little each week or each month.

Today almost every commodity is being sold on this basis—useful devices for the home, for the office, automobiles, lots, houses, musical instruments, jewelry—and the use of credit today in securing clothing is in vogue among many millions of people in America—men and women of repute, of character—who consider their credit an asset, and who use it as such.

Cheerful Credit represents the very highest type of extended credit—it has been perfected to the point where its advantages are as ideal as this long established institution can make it. It's always a good thing to know and remember that you secure the same class, character and quality of merchandise here on a credit basis at the same price you would pay if you bought elsewhere for cash.

It's Easy to Pay the Wheeler Way!

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

CAN YOU QUALIFY?
For a position with a leading American Insurance Company transacting a nation-wide business, interested in the development of Illinois territory. If now associated with real estate or insurance and have attractive openings in the following cities for aggressive Resident Sales Representatives (not agents):

Aurora.	Joliet.
Cairo.	Kankakee.
Champaign.	Moline.
Danville.	Ottawa.
Decatur.	Peoria.
East St. Louis.	Quincy.
Elgin.	Rockford.
Galesburg.	Rock Island.

Exclusive territory of one or more counties will be assigned by contract.
The classes of indemnity written include practically every line of casualty insurance [except life] and the protection and service offered are unexcelled.
Any applicant we select must be able and willing to finance himself [R. R. fare and living expenses] for a training period of six weeks in our Insurance Sales School at Chicago, where a thorough course in insurance sales work will be given. Men in school will have opportunity of doing enough special sales work while in Chicago, enabling them to earn commissions enough to defray expenses.
This is an unusual opportunity for a young man of intelligence, character, and one possessed of potential sales ability. Insurance Salesmanship is far more than mere selling—it is a profession in which individual can without material investment build up a successful and substantial business of his own. No other business offers the hard worker the same opportunity of ultimate success and independence. The work itself is pleasing and puts you in contact with the best business men of your community.
After the applicant has successfully completed the training course he is returned to his assigned territory and given every assistance in the way of direct advertising for procuring prospects and is given valuable amount of field training by our field supervisor, all without expense to him. Our plan is such that the Resident Sales Representative is practically guaranteed a fair income from the start.
Some of the most successful men in your city are engaged in the sale of insurance. Their business is sure and their income increases each year. If you possess the necessary qualifications and an honest desire to forge ahead, we can and will help you.
The Company will perfect arrangements for modest but first class living accommodations for the student salesmen while attending the school, and the cost will be very reasonable. Fathers interested in starting their sons in a substantial business career would do well to investigate this opportunity for them.
Those desiring to apply should write immediately, giving full history, age, and outline of previous business experience. Personal interviews will be arranged with desirable applicants in their cities. Address L L 444, Tribune.

MEN.

Have you ever given a logical thought to the future? One that is based on good common sense; one that will enable you to make a living when you no longer can "fill the bill"? Get out of the class that always gives "if I were only young again." Make a start now, the golden present; the best. You will never get it again. But there is a long road ahead that holds all the things you have planned and are planning and also lures that will make the future just like the past. The surest road to your goal is one to you; do you want to travel on the highway of success? Remember, it is not matter what kind of work you have done, your experience in other lines will help you if you but tell your employer truthfully. Will you do what you are told? If you are interested come in and have a talk with me. MR. BISHOP, 1708 Consumers Bldg., 220 S. State-st.

THE MAN WE WANT

is about 25 years of age, or older; preferably married. He has a few years' experience, but has not yet found the line of business he is willing to make his life's work. He is not looking for a college graduate, but not necessarily so. Above all he is a man of character and stability, ambitious and the energy to carry through. Such a man will make a favorable impression at the first interview, and to such a man the position will offer such attractions as to make him put forth his best efforts to get it. The applicant must give complete information about himself in letter asking for an interview. Applications will be held in confidence. Address L L 562, Tribune.

SPACE TO SUIT YOU
You can find office space exactly suited to your requirements through Rose & Co. offerings. In rentals, size of space, location, and service are very important, but you must want. Here are five buildings with office space for immediate possession at attractive rentals.

The Blum Building
624 S. Michigan-blvd.
Adjoining Blackstone Hotel; an attractive, finely equipped office bldg., conveniently located for business and free from the dirt, noise, and congestion of the Loop; good automobile parking facilities; moderate rentals; immediate possession; space divided to suit tenants.

America Fore Building
844 Rush-st.
One of the newest office buildings in the new business district on the near North Side; splendidly equipped every way; a delightful place in which to work; quiet, clean, fresh air, and light on all sides; ample parking facilities. This building offers an exceptional opportunity to secure adequate office space at favorable terms. The rapid business development of this district means higher rentals in the future. It will be to your advantage to take action now.

The New Boyce Bldg.,
500 N. Dearborn-st.
Just across the river; a splendidly equipped office building; light and air on all sides; some select space immediately available at considerably less than loop rentals; no parking restrictions.

Madison Terminal Bldg.,
West Madison-st.
Opposite Northwestern railroad station; a modern, fireproof building in every respect. Office space in units of 400 to 2,400 sq. ft.; very reasonable rental; immediate possession; no parking restrictions.

The Morton Building,
532-4 S. Dearborn-st.
Near Harrison. Good office space in units suitable to your needs. 12 story building with light and air on three sides. Two street frontages. Reasonable rental; immediate possession.

If you do not find what you want in this list phone us, Wabash 1053. We have many other buildings and can get you what you need at the least inconvenience to you if you will let us know.

MARMON, 1922, TOURING CAR, 7 PASS. This is one of our Renewed Cars and carries our standard guarantee and service. Car is fully equipped; has new tires and has been repainted beautiful Marmon maroon. We believe early inspection will be necessary to obtain this late model car. Price. $1,950.

MARMON, 1921, 2 PASS. SPEEDSTER. It is seldom that we have an opportunity to secure a car of these most desirable cars. This one came to us in exceptionally good condition, as the former owner took excellent care of it. Has a paint job Canary Yellow, and has every equipment on it. Mechanically is in exceptionally good condition, and must be seen to be appreciated. Something exceptional for $1,800.

PIERCE-ARROW TOUR'G 5-PASS. MODEL 6-38. We do not believe a car of this make in this model can be obtained elsewhere at such a low figure. It has been in the hands of but one owner and was recently put in good running condition. For this clearance, is priced at $550.

NATIONAL "6," 1919, TOURING. People who know the National will tell you it is a dependable motor car. This one is refinished in Rolls-Royce Blue; top and upholstery exceptionally fine, and mechanically in excellent condition; 5 very good tires, motometer, etc. A remarkable value at $600.

WINTON TOURING CAR, 48 H. P., 1919 MODEL. This is the large 7 passenger type, in exceptional condition mechanically. We have overhauled the engine and refinished the entire car in Dark Maroon, with gold striping, natural wood wheels, and its appearance compares very favorably with that of a new Winton. Well equipped with cord tires, windshield cleaner, motometer, spotlight, etc. Top, upholstery and coach work excellent. A value like this one is rarely available at $700.

HUPMOBILE 1922 TOURING CAR. This car has been thoroughly overhauled and repainted in our shops. Its appearance is like new and the equipment consists of bumper, motometer, wheel lock, nearly new tires, spare, etc. Carries the same service and guarantee which we give on a new car. $800.

At South Side Branch:

DORT, 1920, TOURING, 5 PASS. Good paint, 5 tires. Has the famous Lycoming engine. Should give lifetime satisfactory service for a long time. A snap at $200.

HUPMOBILE, 1922, TOURING, 5 PASS. Just out of our shops and repainted. Has good tires. Carries our guarantee and service. We will drive this car. Priced to operate, low upkeep, most reliable. $800.

HUPMOBILE COUPE, 1923 MODEL. Here is a car that is almost new in every respect. Has excellent paint, almost new cord tires, bumper, seat cushions, motometer, sun visor, mirror, etc. This full 5 passenger coupe can be purchased for $1,350.

ZONE 7—The Chicago Territory—is the most productive and most stable automobile market of its size in America.

IT IS THE MOST PRODUCTIVE because its five great states—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin—represent one-fifth of the country's wealth—one-fifth of the entire sales opportunity that lies before an automobile manufacturer.

IT IS THE MOST STABLE because there is a fine balance between industry and agriculture—a diversity of occupations that makes buying slumps rare. Even in the dark days of 1921, when automobile registrations dwindled so rapidly throughout the United States, those in The Chicago Territory showed a substantial increase.

Today, 22 per cent. of all the cars in the country are owned in The Chicago Territory. The replacement market alone is conservatively estimated at over 400,000 cars for 1923.

CAN YOU THINK OF A MORE FERTILE FIELD, or one more worth your while to cultivate?

And in considering your own proposition, bear in mind that this rich, productive area is exceedingly compact. It is easily reached and easily controlled. You can maintain an aggressive sales and advertising campaign at a relatively low cost.

EXPERIENCE HAS TAUGHT the manufacturers listed at the left and scores of other automobile builders that strong, selling advertising concentrated in The Chicago Tribune exerts the full amount of pressure needed to win and to hold Zone 7—all of it.

In Chicago and its suburbs, The Tribune reaches an average of 3 out of every 5 families. In the 137 cities of over 5000 population outside of Chicago, it reaches one-half to one-fifth of all the families. In hundreds of smaller towns the proportion is the same.

GOING FURTHER INTO THE FIGURES you will find that the 900,000 Chicago Tribune circulation is more than the combined circulations in Zone 7 of the two greatest national publications in the country. You can concentrate your advertising in The Chicago Tribune at a fraction of what it would cost you to secure similar pressure in any other way.

With these facts in mind, do you wonder that last year The Chicago Tribune carried 1,318,635 lines of automotive advertising—more than twice the total automotive lineage of the next highest Chicago paper? During the first six months of 1923, The Tribune carried more than twice as much automobile advertising as the nearest competitor and almost as much as all other Chicago papers combined.

In a recent survey, made for the Chicago Automobile Trade Association, 1273 automobile distributors and dealers in Zone 7 checked The Chicago Tribune as their choice against 320 dealers who indicated another Chicago newspaper.

IF YOU ARE SEEKING INCREASED SALES in Zone 7 at relatively low cost—if you are after better distribution in a section that has been called the country's wealthiest—if you want your dealer organization in The Chicago Territory kept in a healthy, hearty, cooperative mood—then advertise consistently and intensively in The Chicago Tribune.

The Automobile Department of The Tribune is at your service. It consists of men who are specialists in the advertising and selling of motor cars. Continuous contact with dealer organizations and localized selling problems has taught these Tribune men just what can be done in Zone 7, and how to do it.

THEY ARE READY, AT ANY TIME, TO HELP YOU THRESH OUT YOUR PROBLEM IN THE CHICAGO TERRITORY. A letter or phone call will bring one of them to your office.

The Tribune's New BOOK of FACTS on Markets and Merchandising will be mailed free to any selling organization requesting it on business stationery.

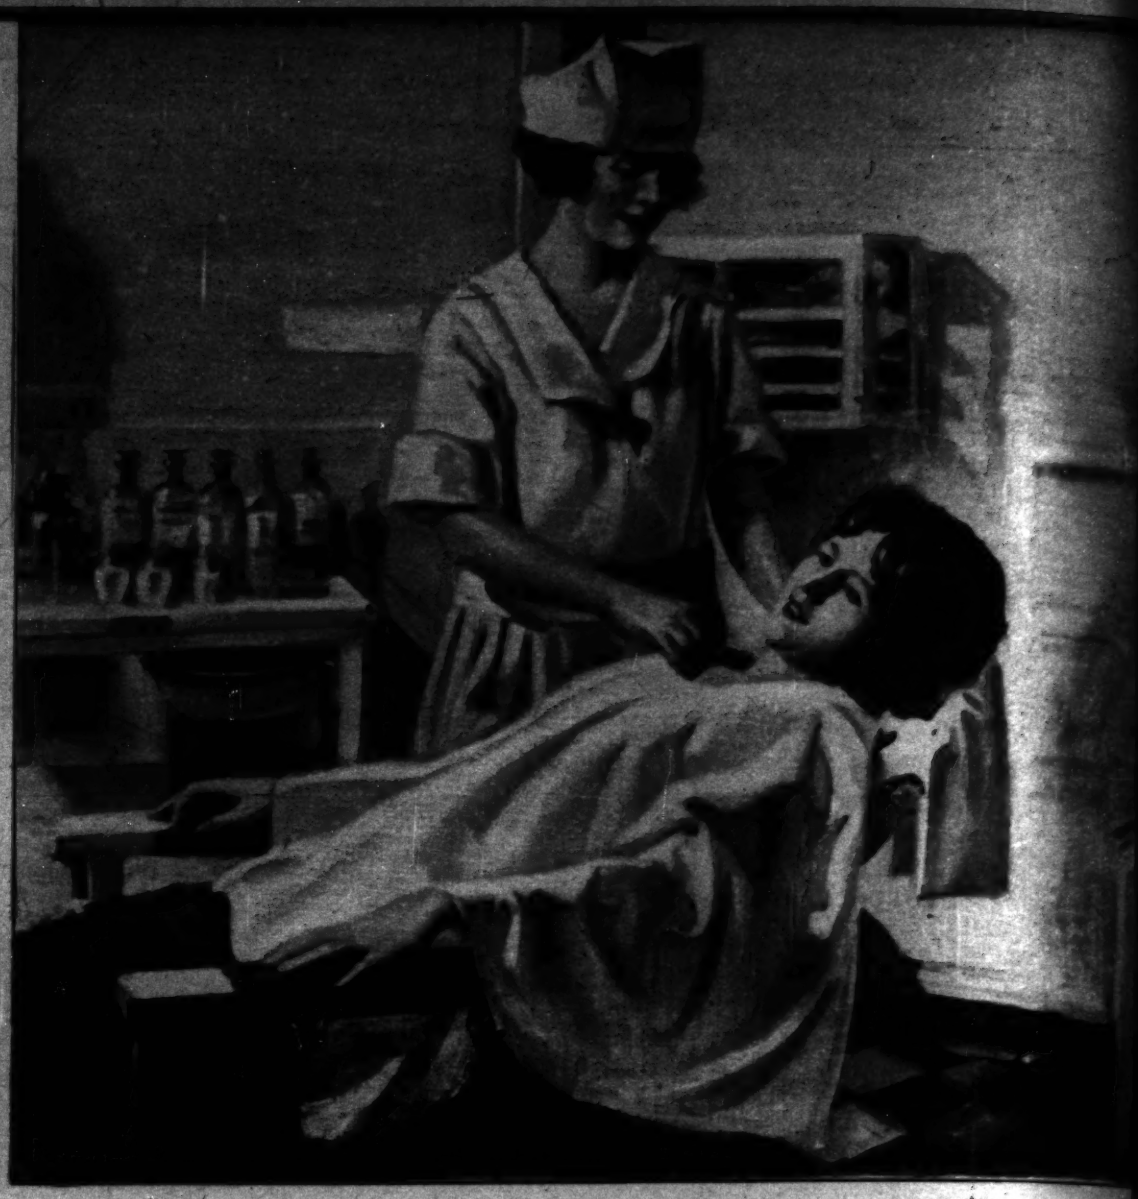
BEAUTY
Four Hundred Years Ago
A Strenuous Ordeal of Uncertain Magic

Giovanni Marinello, the world's first beauty expert and the court physician for Catherine de Medici, told the court beauties they must distill the dew of peach blossoms gathered in the royal gardens at dawn—blending with that the oil of almonds crushed in the light of the new moon—if they would acquire the bloom of youth.



BEAUTY TODAY
A Sure Science—A Restful Tonic

Modern Marinello requires no superstitious rites or weary hours of painful preparation on the part of the seekers of beauty. Marinello of old depended upon magic incantations and mystic ceremonies, but Emily Lloyd, the founder of modern Marinello, relies upon science to work her miracles of beauty-bringing. Instead of ministering to a few capricious court beauties, Emily Lloyd's genius must solve the beauty problems of ten million independent, exacting women.

Each of these women—whatever the type or condition of her complexion—sallow, dry and wrinkled, too oily, coarse of texture, etc.—asks Emily Lloyd for the secret of a clear, smooth, soft, glowing complexion. And in each individual case Emily Lloyd is able to point the way to radiant loveliness. Her years of research and experience have uniquely fitted her to do this.

Scientifcally Sure, Individual Formulas

While conducting magazine and newspaper beauty departments, Emily Lloyd received thousands of letters from women all over the country who found the haphazard purchase and use of cosmetics did not solve their individual beauty problems.

Emily Lloyd, a trained bacteriologist and chemist, prepared creams and lotions and powders to meet each specific need. They were marvelously successful. Therefore she conceived the idea of giving her discoveries to all women who sought for beauty. From a modest beginning her enterprise grew into a world-wide, world-famed organization—Marinello.

6,500 Scientific Beauty Centers

Today there are more than six thousand five hundred Marinello Shops located in every state in the Union using and endorsing Marinello Preparations. Daily they are solving the beauty problems of women living under widely varying climatic and health conditions.

For each individual beauty need, these shops can offer the individual Marinello treatment and the individual Marinello preparation that is scientifically correct. Thus no woman is ever turned away from Marinello disappointed in her search for beauty.

Your Personal Beauty Aids

If it is not convenient for you to call in person at one of the Marinello Shops, bring your problem direct to Emily Lloyd. The Marinello preparations she prescribes will be essentially personal beauty aids for you—as suited to your individual requirements as though she had written their formulas for nobody in the world but you! THE TURNING POINT in the match which decided the national amateur championship. Maxwell Marston of Philadelphia holes a one-foot putt for a birdie 2 at the seventh hole at Flossmoor. This came during the afternoon round of his match with the defending champion, Jesse Sweetser, and won the hole for Marston, 3 and 2. That put Marston ahead for the first time in the title battle. A stymie finally beat Sweetser at the thirty-eighth hole. Sweetser is at the left watching his rival. Between the finalists is Robert A. Gardner, himself twice winner of the national amateur.

The Comfortable Way to Dress

You're not comfortable if you're cold. You're not safe from the attacks of the dampness of fall and winter when you feel chilly.

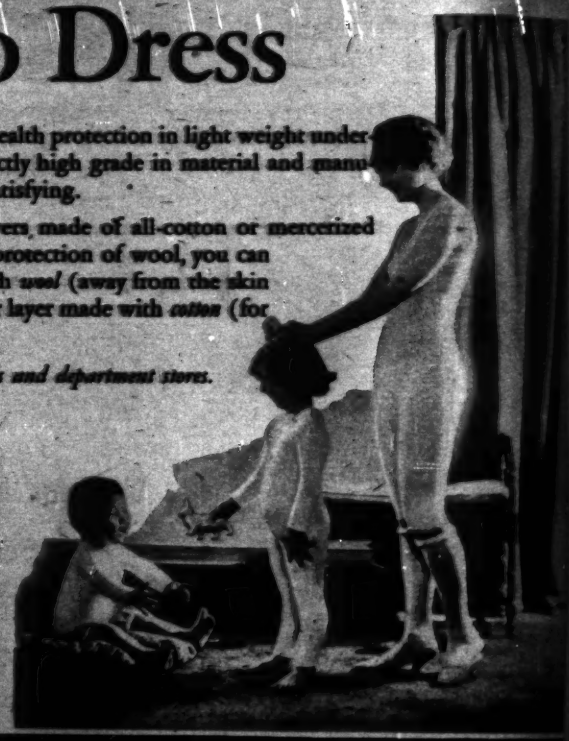
You can easily and permanently protect yourself from cold and damp air without having to wear heavy underwear.

Cover your body with Duofold. Its unique fabric made of two THIN knitted layers with an air space between, keeps cold out and bodily warmth in far more efficiently than a single layer much thicker and heavier.

You will get not only comfort and health protection in light weight underwear, but also garments that are strictly high grade in material and manufacture—neat, durable, thoroughly satisfying.

You can get Duofold with both layers made of all-cotton or mercerized fabrics; or, if you prefer the added protection of wool, you can get it with the outer layer made with wool (away from the skin where it can't irritate) and the inner layer made with cotton (for full comfort next to the skin).

Sold by most men's furnishing, dry goods and department stores.



Ideal for Infants and Children

What fabric could provide greater protection to a little body and better comfort to tender skin than a thin layer, made with wool, on the outside for warmth and a thin layer, made soft with cotton, on the inside for comfort? This is the fabric that has the doctor's approval for your little ones.

Stores that sell Duofold can give you a copy of "Health Protection for Infants and Children"—a helpful, well illustrated booklet you'll find interesting. Ask for your copy, or write to us for it.

FRANCE DEDICATES YANKEE MEMORIALS

The Younger Son

By GENE MARKEY

Lucy's Ambitious Mother Imported the Scion of an Earl, but the Aged and Withered "Rums" Brought with Him a Young and Handsome Secretary.

"HE'LL be here any minute now," chirped Mrs. Pike, beaming upon her daughter and Mrs. Bellair. "The Aquitania must be in by this time!"

"Keep cool, darling," advised Lucy, crossing her trim ankles; "we must act as if noble Englishmen were an everyday occurrence."

They were sitting, the three of them, in the vast walnut paneled library of the Pikes' recently acquired château on Fifth avenue.

"It seems almost too good to be true! The younger son of an earl—just think of it!" Mrs. Pike clapped her plump hands ecstatically. She was a portly woman, with skillfully hennaed hair and one of the finest English accents that had ever come out of Ohio. "I wonder what he'll be like."

"Of course, I've never seen him," said Mrs. Bellair, "but I know all about his father, the Earl of Billingsbridge."

"Pronounced 'Badger,'" put in Lucy's mother, eagerly. "We've all read about the family in Debrett."

"He's a great catch, Lucy. You'll be the Honorable Mrs. Rumblesham."

"Pronounced 'Rums'!" chirped Mrs. Pike. "Isn't it funny the way the English propounce names?"

"You're a fortunate girl."

"I wonder," mused Lucy.

"Why, what do you mean, dear?"

Lucy passed a graceful hand over her fair hair and smiled vaguely. And when she smiled she was beautiful indeed.

"Don't be alarmed, mother. I'm not going to bolt. I like the idea of being the Honorable Mrs. Rums, and I assure you I'm not in love with any poor but honest American. This isn't a movie, with the usual plot—daughter of designing mother forced to marry penniless peer."

"Lucy!"

The girl laughed. "Really, dear, I'm just as keen for the thing as you are; and I'm crazy to live in London. Only I've never seen him."

"He's a well known clubman, formerly a soldier," recited Mrs. Bellair with the air of a shopkeeper dealing in families. She was an angular, sharp eyed, sharp nosed lady who had once lived in London. "I know all about him—from the solicitor who made the arrangements."

"He is so distinguished!" exclaimed Mrs. Pike. "It's wonderful, dear! I have a mental picture of him—one of those tall, handsome, pink cheeked young Englishmen."

A distant doorbell jangled.

"He's here!" Mrs. Pike rose with a shriek of excitement.

"Be calm," ordered Mrs. Bellair, at once assuming command. Having been paid to arrange this marriage between the younger son of an English peer and the daughter of George J. Pike, quondam pork-and-bean baron of Illyria, Ohio, now of New York, she was determined it should proceed smoothly.

From the outer hallway sounded voices and the cackling laugh of George J. Pike. Then came the slow, solemn footsteps of the butler.

"Tall, handsome, pink cheeked young Englishman," repeated Lucy in a whisper. She rose and shook out the folds of her almond green crêpe frock. Her eyes were shining.

"You look beautiful, my dear!" beamed Mrs. Bellair.

In a tremor of expectancy they waited. The sad face of Pollock, the butler, appeared beneath the mulberry portières.

"Major Rums," he proclaimed.

Then the Honorable Albert Rumblesham entered the room—and instantly the three ladies facing him gasped. For the younger son of the Earl of Billingsbridge was an old man—a wrinkled old man, wearing a toupé; and as he came moving toward them he frowned severely and plucked at his brushy, mouse colored mustaches.

Lucy felt an hysterical desire to laugh. Her mother stood in pop-eyed confusion. It was Mrs. Bellair who took the situation in hand and swooped down upon him like a bird of prey.

"Oh, how d'you do, Major Rums!" she exclaimed, thrusting forward a bony hand. "I'm Mrs. Bellair, you know. Awfully jolly meeting you here, I'm sure. Hope you had a pleasant crossing."

"Rotten!" growled the Honorable Bertie. "I was sick as a dog all the way over!" And he gave her a feeble finger to shake.

"This is Mrs. Pike."

"How d'you do." He extended two fingers.

"And Miss Pike!"

The Honorable Bertie stared at the girl he had crossed an ocean to marry, blinked—and gave her his entire hand. She was very, very beautiful. "Ah," he rasped, not unpleasantly, "how d'you do, my dear."

"Won't you sit down?" said Lucy, controlling with difficulty her desire to laugh. ("If he doesn't sit down," she was telling herself, "he'll fall down, the poor old fellow!")

"Thanks," muttered Rumblesham, and collapsed into a chair.

"We're so glad to have you with us," began Mrs. Pike, pulling herself together and putting forth her best English accent. "Poppa—uh—Mr. Pike—met you at the pier, of course, and——"

"By the way," queried Lucy, "where is father?"

"Here he comes now."

George J. Pike waddled into the room. He was a plump, plethoric little man, quite bald, dressed in a check suit and wearing on his watch chain a large elk's tooth.

"Well," he declared, beaming and rubbing his hands, "I see you met the folks!"

"Mr-r-umph!" grunted his future son-in-law.

"I been looking after his things," Mr. Pike explained, genially. "He's got a secretary with him, and a valet."

"Perhaps," put in Lucy, hastily, "Major Rums would like to go to his room."

"So I would," grumbled the Honorable Bertie.

Whereupon everybody talked at once, and the butler was summoned to conduct the noble guest upstairs. As he limped out of the room they stood for a moment looking at each other in speechless amazement; then Lucy sank down upon the divan, gurgling with laughter.

"O! O!" she wailed. "It's the most ghastly thing I ever heard of! Behold, the bridegroom cometh!" And she toppled over in a paroxysm of mirth.

"I had no idea," began Mrs. Pike, "that he'd be an old man! Why, I had visions of a——"

"I know," choked Lucy; "a tall, handsome, pink cheeked young Englishman!"

"Yes! And, of course, it's a shock to find him an elderly——"

"Elderly!" shrieked Lucy. "Ye gods, he's an octogenarian! He's older than father!"

George J. Pike rubbed his nose thoughtfully. Mrs. Bellair, in the center of the room, looked perplexed. She had arranged this international alliance: if it were not consummated she would lose her commission.

"Of course," she explained, cautiously, "I didn't know how old he was. I supposed that, being the younger son——"

"If he's the younger son," laughed Lucy, "I'll bet his brother has to be wheeled around! And as for his father—O, it's too much, really!"

"The Rums," proclaimed Mrs. Bellair with dignity, "are an ancient and honorable family."

"They're ancient, all right!"

"Well!" Mrs. Bellair shrugged her shoulders. "He's here. What are we going to do?"

"We're going to eat first," declared Mr. Pike. "Isn't lunch nearly ready, Nell?"

IT was not until George J. Pike had wearied of amassing millions in Illyria, Ohio, that he became cognizant of his wife's vaulting ambitions. That lady had long since exhausted the social possibilities of Illyria and was casting a bright green eye toward the distant battlements of New York. Moreover, there was Lucy to be considered: a damsel of twenty, outrageously pretty, and determined to marry somebody of consequence. The topless towers of Illyria offered no opportunities.

At Palm Beach that winter they encountered Mrs. Bellair, widow of the late Captain Bellair, U. S. A., one-time military attaché at the Court of St. James,: a gentlewoman of dwindling finances, who, as she herself admitted, "knew the ropes." The Pikes were enormously impressed. Never before had they come actually face to face with any one who could chat familiarly of Lord This and Lady That, and knew—apparently intimately—all those personages whose names appeared in the New York and London society columns. At once the Pikes' dream of New York loomed up as a reality. Gratefully they seized upon Mrs. Bellair: plans were laid and checks were signed.

That spring the family of the pork and bean magnate, following an advance guard of press agents marshaled by Mrs. Bellair, descended upon New York. Not by strategy, not by devious routes or wily flank attacks on Long Island or Westchester did the Pikes lay siege to the city, but in full force, like an army of tanks, marching up Fifth avenue. Orders were to spare no expense—and no expense was spared. The largest house on the avenue was purchased—a vast, turreted, gray stone structure, which came to be known as "Pike's Peak"; the most opulent box at the opera was, at great difficulty, engaged; and with a blare of trumpets the Pikes launched their campaign.

Then for a year nothing happened. Mrs. Pike's dinners, it is true, received mention in the society columns; her gowns and Lucy's, at the opera, were accorded complete newspaper description; George J. Pike became a genial figure at several minor clubs downtown. In short, they found themselves, through the efforts of Mrs. Bellair, within the walls of the city—but they were not of the city. Therefore when Mrs. Bellair offered the suggestion of a foreign marriage, a brilliant match with some scion of nobility, Mrs. Pike and Lucy were delighted. As for George J., who still wore a diamond Shriners' emblem in his lapel and an elk's tooth on his watch chain—even he had been bitten by the bacillus and enthused over the idea of an international alliance, which would, as his spouse pointed out, command much newspaper space.

Mrs. Bellair had been commissioned to investigate the European matrimonial market—only to discover that choice titled husbands were at a premium. Fair American tourists appeared to have ransacked the stock. So, after considering a shabby Italian count, a penniless Portuguese duke, and a nearsighted Bulgarian baron, likewise insolvent, she had selected, by mail, the younger son of the Earl of Billingsbridge. Englishmen were, after all, superior beings, and a younger son was quite desirable.

Then, after weeks of high hopes, had occurred the dénouement. Major the Honorable Albert Rumblesham—him whom they had visioned a rosy cheeked young gentleman—had limped into the Pike's château, a withered and exceedingly grumpy old man.

When Lucy, who alone of the family possessed a sense of humor, had laughed until she could laugh no more, luncheon was announced, and the Honorable Bertie, grumbling because his "boxes" had not been sent up from the pier, descended with his secretary. And as they came into the room Lucy forgot for an instant the grotesque old fellow to whom she was betrothed—forgot him completely, for she found herself gazing with unmaidenly admiration at his secretary. He was young—and tall and rather handsome, as they had imagined the Honorable Bertie; and there was a bright twinkle in his eye, as if he were enjoying the comedy hugely.

"Mr. Chesterfield," George J. Pike presented him.

And Nigel Chesterfield, very much at ease, bowed gravely to Mrs. Pike and Mrs. Bellair and smiled upon Lucy. Then they went in to luncheon, all talking at once; and Lucy, ignoring her mother's frantic eyebrow signals, slipped blithely into Mrs. Bellair's place, next Chesterfield, leaving Mrs. Bellair to sit beside the Honorable Bertie.

To their credit it must be said that the hostess and Mrs. Bellair (veteran diners-out) strove valiantly to make the luncheon a gay one. But it was doomed. The noble guest slumped in his chair and frowned sourly at the Lucullian viands that were set before him.

"As a matt'r of fact," whispered Chesterfield, "Bertie has dyspepsia frightfully. I forgot to tell your mother. Only soft food, you know—milk toast or something of the sort."

Whereupon Lucy, putting down her desire to laugh, whispered around to her mother; there followed more whisperings, protestations of regret over Major Rumblesham's digestion—and Pollock dispatched two footmen for milk toast.

"Now," beamed George J. Pike, "I'm going to give you folks something special. A rare old wine——"

"Mr-r-umph!" growled the Honorable Bertie.

"I say," put in his secretary apologetically, "Major Rums doesn't take a thing, you know. Sorry I forgot to tell you."

"O, what a pity!" cried Mrs. Pike. "Can't we get you something?"

"Milk-and-vichy," grumbled the Honorable Bertie.

"Tell me," whispered Lucy discreetly, "how old is he, for heaven's sake?"

"Sixty-nine," answered his secretary.

"Sitty-nine!" she gasped. Then: "Will he hear us—across the table?"

"Not a chance," grinned Chesterfield. "Matt'r of fact, he's a bit deaf."

"Sixty-nine," repeated Lucy, shaking her head. "Then, if he's the younger son——"

"His brother, Viscount Quam, is seventy-one. And the earl is ninety-eight."

"Not really!"

"Ra-ther. He's the oldest peer in England."

The girl regarded Rumblesham as one does a curio in a museum.

"They said he was a soldier," she whispered. "I suppose that limp of his comes from a wound he got in some war?"

"Nothing so romantic," said Chesterfield, "it's gout."

So while George J. Pike drank his own

"I thought it was a line from one of Ethel Barrymore's plays."

ulse his ambitious wife and Mrs. Bellair kept up an intermittent fire of small talk. In their best English accents, the Honorable Pikes looked wretchedly bored, and Lucy and Nigel Chesterfield chatted pleasantly together. Mrs. Pike, the grande dame, paid no attention whatever to Rumblesham's secretary. Lucy, however, found the young Englishman charming, and before the salad arrived had learned all about him. He had been a soldier; had idled about London writing plays which nobody wanted; had idled in the country, hunting whenever people would furnish mounts; and at length, to catch a glimpse of America, had come over, "seeing" for Rumblesham.

LUCY PIKE was, it is to be feared, something of a snob herself. She would doubtless have preferred Chesterfield a marquis. But even as he was, a mere secretary, she liked him: liked his eyes, his accent, and his clothes.

"It's so funny," she said, "the way you English pronounce names."

"English names are funny," agreed Nigel. "For instance, we spell a name C-h-o-l-m-o-n-d-e-l-e-y — and pronounce it 'Marchbanks!'"

Lucy laughed gayly.

The Honorable Bertie was groaning again, and Mrs. Pike and Mrs. Bellair bent solicitously toward him.

"I fancy it's time for his nap," explained Chesterfield. "Matt'r of fact, it's a bit after time. Fancy I forgot to tell you—Major Rums always goes up about two. It's nearly three now."

And so the luncheon came to an end, and the Earl of Billingsbridge's sixty-nine year old son was escorted up to his room for a nap.

A half hour later, after Mrs. Bellair had left and Chesterfield had set out alone for a walk, the Pikes were gathered in the upper hallway for a consultation. Of a sudden sounds of growling emanated from the Honorable Bertie's chauffeur, and Gynes, his elderly valet, appeared, wearing a somewhat perturbed expression.

"What is it now, I wonder?" said Lucy.

"If you please, madam," Gynes shuffled toward them, "Major Rums can't seem to sleep. The noise, he says. Busses on the avenue outside, madam."

"Dear me, we can't stop the busses, I'm afraid," said Lucy.

"We can change Major Rums' rooms, though. Let me think." Mrs. Pike put one fat finger to her brow. "I know! George, he can take your room, in the other wing. It's more quiet."

"But," protested George J. Pike, "all my things are in there, Nell!"

"Well, you can get them out."

"But all my——"

"It won't take but a minute—Pollock'll help you." His wife waved away his objections, and turned to Gynes. "Tell Major Rums we're having another suite made ready for him now."

"Thank you, madam." The aged valet bowed and shuffled off.

"O Lord," groaned George J. Pike, "all this bother——"

"Hush!" commanded his wife. In the old days she had assisted in building up the Pike pork and bean industry; now, through this international marriage, she was assisting in building up a Pike social dynasty.

"We must make the best of it. And you, Lucy—don't be disappointed because Major Rums isn't a beardless boy!" Her green eyes glittered. "Some day, darling, he'll inherit the title."

And the fair haired Lucy, standing there gazing out a casement window on the bare branches of the trees in Central park, dreamed of herself as the Countess of Billingsbridge (pronounced Badger), taking tea with the king and queen at Buckingham palace.

That evening Lucy sat next the Honorable Bertie, leaving Chesterfield to the mercy of Mrs. Bellair. He did not like Mrs. Bellair. She was one of those Americans who lose no time in telling you they are of English descent. It was, as George J. Pike announced, just a quiet little dinner—only themselves, you know. And to the joy of every one, the Honorable Bertie appeared in a measure recovered from Le mal de mer. He even made so bold as to devour a crumbling piece of celery and a ripe olive; though for the most part he kept to his diet of toast, and drank nothing but milk and vichy. During the early stages of the dinner he was not so grumpy as he had been at noon, and all the Pikes rejoiced. After all, thought Lucy, perhaps it was not going to be so bad. Yet for some reason or other she sought to avoid the eyes of Nigel Chesterfield.

When Mrs. Bellair made some flattering reference to Rumblesham's career as a soldier, the major expanded pleasurably, and recounted a tedious yarn about his last campaign.

"What," queried Lucy sweetly, "was your last campaign? The Somme—in 1916?"

"No, no!" growled Rumblesham, "the Soudan—in 1885."

"O," murmured Lucy.

Mention of the last war seemed to have upset him.

"Somme!" he grunted. "That was no campaign! Anybody could win a war with a flock of airships, tanks, an' cannon that shoot a hundred miles! Huh! 'Pon my soul, there aren't any real soldiers today—not one!" Whereupon he waxed so furious over the paucity of military genius that he grew apoplectically purple, and choked on his milk and vichy until he had to be whacked on the back by two footmen.

Mrs. Bellair tactfully changed the subject; but gone was Rumblesham's good nature, and he lapsed into a gloomy silence, as if these Americans and their stupid dinner bored him insufferably. Every one felt uncomfortable.

At length the ordeal was ended, and they all trooped off to be put into wraps and coats; a shining car wheeled round to the porte cochère, and away they went to the opera.

This was to be the great moment, the supreme triumph of Mrs. Pike's New York existence: to enter her box at the Metropolitan just before the overture—while all the lights were blazing—so that everybody might view the Honorable Albert Rumblesham. Newspapers had been, for days, heralding his arrival as the Pikes' guest. Here, tonight, the fashionable world would behold him in the flesh—the younger son of the Earl of Billingsbridge! Indeed, Mrs. Pike had timed this magnificent entrance that it might take place at precisely the proper moment; but, alas! a trifle just wrought havoc to her plans. When they arrived the first act was well under way, and nobody saw them come in save two sleepy ushers.

In the shadows of the box Nigel Chesterfield discovered, to his sorrow, that he was once more seated beside Mrs. Bellair. Lucy's mamma had thrust the Honorable Bertie into the most conspicuous chair, plumped herself down on one side of him, and put Lucy on the other. George J. Pike, who took opera as small boys take paregoric—manfully, albeit not without protest—hovered in the background, wondering how long it would be before he could escape for a smoke.

A diva who was not Farrar was singing "Carmen."

"Isn't she wonderful?" whispered Mrs. Pike.

"Humph!" grunted Rumblesham. "Doesn't compare with Patti!"

But as the first act ended in a clamorous finale and the lights came up there was an incandescent smile on Mrs. Pike's painted countenance and her heart was beating fast. This was her moment of triumph. Now the haut monde might view her, sitting next the younger son of the Earl of Billingsbridge. People in other boxes would stare; opera glasses would be trained on her. How wonderful life was! Mrs. Pike beamed, fanning herself (though it was chilly in the box) with an enormous green ostrich plume fan, while one plump hand patted the glittering tiara on her hennaed coiffure.

Complete was her triumph, however, when they all sallied forth for an entr'acte promenade. The Honorable Bertie, it must be confessed, went reluctantly, and as he was swept along, with his hostess on one arm and Lucy on the other, grumbled at every step and scowled at everybody. Nigel Chesterfield followed, conversing absently with George J. Pike, whom he infinitely preferred to Mrs. Pike. Americans, he was thinking, were so much more charming as Americans than when they attempted to be English. As they sauntered along the promenade the young gentleman but half heard his host's mail remarks and comments: he was gazing upon the fair haired beauty of Lucy Pike and wishing with all his heart that he were the younger son of the Earl of Billingsbridge—not merely that younger son's secretary. Lucy had severe taken fifty notice of him all evening, and as they returned to the box he sighed gently.

There during the second act the Honorable Bertie fell sound asleep and snored most fearfully, to the humiliation of Mrs. Pike and the wrath of every one in the vicinity. At the end of the opera he was awakened—peevish and growling.

"Now," proposed George J. Pike, with forced animation (for it was late, and he had never become completely weaned from the bedtime hour of Illyria, Ohio), "we'll all go up to the Ritz for a little supper. How does that strike ye, major?"

"Supper!" grumbled the Honorable Bertie. "No, no! Damned digestion won't stand it!"

"Oh, what a pity," cooed Mrs. Pike, disappointedly. She had wished to exhibit her noble guest at the Ritz.

"I dessay Major Rums is fatigued," Mrs. Bellair remarked.

"Fatigued!" snapped Rumblesham. "I'm half dead! Didn't sleep a wink on that damned boat! Your car here?"

George J. Pike and six doormen ran off to summon the limousine. And when, after much confusion, Pikes and guests were stowed aboard, both Mr. and Mrs. Pike commanded, "Home, Rowley!" in one voice; then glared at each other. The nervous strain was beginning to tell on all of them; all, that is, except the Honorable Bertie. He was asleep again, and did not waken even when they dropped Mrs. Bellair at her hotel.

IN the great hall of the Château Pike, where the panels of carved black oak were hung with tapestries and ancestral armor (which had belonged to somebody else's ancestors) Lucy gazed wistfully up the baronial staircase. The Honorable Bertie was being ushered up to bed by every one, it seemed, in the house; her father and mother, Chesterfield, Gynes, his valet, Pollock, and one or two footmen. It reminded her of a ship, escorted up the harbor by a flotilla of tugs. A little smile played across the corners of her pretty mouth, and she sauntered on to the library, where some logs burned dully in the wide Florentine fireplace. What sycophants they were, she mused. And yet—wasn't Rumblesham the son of the Earl of Billingsbridge? He had crossed the sea to marry her. It would be a brilliant mariage de convenance. Well, she would go through with it. Why not?

A step on the polished floor behind her, and Nigel Chesterfield walked into the circle of firelight.

"O, hello! Thought you'd gone up."

"No," answered Lucy. "Why? Would you rather be alone?"

"I say, that's a bit thick." Nigel laughed softly.

"Do you know," said she, "I'm hungry. Are you?"

"Yes—if you are."

"I think the servants have gone up."

"I hope so," he grinned.

"We might go out and look around."

So out they went together to the pantry, and beyond to a chilly room where stood a huge, white enamel, glass doored ice box. Inside were trays upon trays of delicacies: strawberries, cold breasts of guinea hen, a Virginia ham, plates of salad, cream tarts, round boxes of gruyère cheese.

"I feel most fearfully bucked," murmured Chesterfield as they knelt together, selecting their supper. "This is no end of a lark! What?"

And Lucy Pike, thinking of her sixty-nine year old fiancé, grumpily going to bed above-stairs, sighed.

Next morning the household was assembled in the sunny breakfast room when the Four out of Five is Pyorrhea's Toll

Nature warns with bleeding gums

When Pyorrhea comes, the teeth loosen, and drop out or must be extracted. Pus-pockets form at the roots and poison spreads throughout the system.

Comparatively few persons are immune. Statistics show that four out of every five past forty, and thousands younger, are subject to this sinister disease.

Heed Nature's Warning

At the first sign of Pyorrhea, Nature gives her danger signal—tender gums which bleed easily when the teeth are brushed.

Fortunate is he who heeds that friendly warning; his teeth may be spared, while he who neglects that admonition may pay the extreme penalty.

At the first sign of tender, bleeding gums, go to your dentist for teeth and gum inspection and start using Forhan's For the Gums at once.

Forhan's For the Gums is the scientific formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S. If used consistently and used in time, it will prevent Pyorrhea or check its course.

In addition to its efficacy in the treatment of Pyorrhea, Forhan's For the Gums is an excellent dentifrice. It contains nothing but the most beneficial ingredients that keep teeth white and clean and the gums firm and healthy.

Remember, statistics are all against you. Science proves that four out of every five are doomed after forty. For that reason it is good health insurance to start using Forhan's For the Gums today.

Forhan's For the Gums is sold by druggists everywhere. Start a good habit today, the habit of strict oral hygiene. Go regularly to your dentist and brush your teeth twice a day with Forhan's. 35c and 60c in tubes.

Honorable Bertie nodded in and greeted a reluctant "Good morning."

"Why," exclaimed Mrs. Pike, "you aren't dressed for riding, major!"

Lucy was in riding things—whipcord, with polished tan boots—and looked exceedingly trim in them.

"Riding?" snapped Rumblesham.

"Yes," beamed George J. Pike. "Hoss back riding." His wife and daughter had never been able to break him of calling it "horse back riding."

"Huh!" growled Rumblesham. "Haven't been on a horse since 1898!"

Nigel Chesterfield sauntered in, looking fresh and well groomed in riding clothes that had obviously been made in England.

"I'm sorry you're not riding, major," said Mrs. Pike. "Lucy and Mr.—ah—Chesterfield will have to go by themselves."

"That," smiled Chesterfield, "will be charming."

Mrs. Pike glared at him. She had no use for socially inferior secretaries.

Lucy and Nigel, in polo coats, let themselves out the front door and, dodging motor cars upon the avenue, scurried across to the gates of Central park. A groom stood waiting with two spirited chestnut horses.

"I say," murmured Nigel as they swung off at a fast trot down the bridle path, "this is perfect!" He was marveling at how well she rode. In England a girl, to sit a horse so well, had to be born in a hunting country; at least brought up to horses and hounds. This American girl, with perhaps no more than half a dozen years of riding, rode as well as any one he knew at home. And how beautiful she was!

It was a spring day, at the tag-end of winter; the sun was warm, and there was a fragrance in the air that presaged April.

"'O, to be in England, now that April's there,'" quoted Nigel, for no reason at all. "Browning was right. Only I'd much rather be here—unless you were in England."

"Did Browning write that?" Lucy asked. "I thought it was a line from one of Ethel Barrymore's plays."

"It may have been," he laughed; "you Americans are a progressive people!"

They put their horses into a canter and rode on through the sunny park, conscious that they were inordinately happy.

THIS was the day of Mrs. Pike's luncheon: a long anticipated affair in honor of the Honorable Bertie, to which every person of fashion whom Mrs. Pike dared, under one pretext or another, to invite had been invited. And, oddly enough, most of them had accepted. Ladies who would not have deigned to look at Mrs. Pike upon the avenue were coming to her house to meet the younger son of the Earl of Billingsbridge.

It is a curious fact about our great American democracy that the fashionable worlds of New York and Chicago will, for any Englishman at all, stand on their heads or turn handsprings. And, just as our lecture platforms are crowded with English novelists, so are our drawing rooms thronged with Englishmen who are not novelists—before whom the beau monde does homage. As Nigel Chesterfield remarked, "Have you a little Englishman in your home?" has become a popular slogan.

To Major the Honorable Albert Rumblesham, who had spent the morning twiddling his thumbs, the luncheon offered little diversion. It was but his second day in America, and already he was wishing himself back in London. At the long table, heaped with flowers and gold plate, he found himself between beaming Mrs. Pike and the red nosed wife of a former ambassador. Across from him sat one of those dapper men one can always procure for luncheons in New York and a sad faced woman with teeth like a horse.

"She," whispered his hostess, "is Mrs. T. Burden Tompkins, our real leader of society, you know."

"Hm," growled the Honorable Bertie.

The luncheon bored him intensely. A dull man himself, he detested dullness in others, and these overfriendly people, chattering all around the table, annoyed him. Within a few minutes the boredom of it drove him to signal one of the thirty footmen and permit his glass to be filled with sherry. He had not, in several years, been allowed by his doctors to touch a drop of anything. The sherry warmed him pleasantly. He had a second glass. Then an 1874 sauterne was served. The Honorable Bertie sat up and took a new interest in life; and after his second glass of sauterne discovered that the red nosed wife of the former ambassador was really a charming creature. Indeed, he went so far as to tell her that outrageously funny story about Lord Alby in the garden, whereupon she tapped his wrist with her fan and chortled: "O, you naughty man!"

But with the coming of the champagne his nature unfolded like a flower. He began a spirited conversation with the red faced lady across the table, and when Lucy, who before the luncheon, had changed her place card that she might sit beside Chesterfield, looked up, he was, in loud tones, telling everybody something he had once said to the queen.

"Ah," cried Mrs. Pike, in rapture, "Queen Mary is——"

"No, no!" interrupted the noble guest. "I'm talkin' about Queen Victoria."

"My word!" mused Lucy to herself. "He must be the most ancient man in the world!" Then she turned to Nigel: "Are you sure this is dear old Bertie's first visit to America?"

"Quite sure," he answered. "Why?"

"I thought," she said, with a twinkle in her lovely eyes, "he might have been over here at the time of the revolutionary war!"

The Honorable Bertie had just downed his fourth glass of champagne. His toupé was awry, and he was proposing toasts to a parrot faced dowager at the other end of the table.

"Good heavens!" murmured Chesterfield in mild alarm. "The old boy's tight!"

"He is rather merry and bright," laughed Lucy. "But, then, I suppose these young fellows must sow their wild oats."

"His," said Nigel, "were sown so long ago that it isn't funny." Then he looked gravely into the eyes of the girl who was to marry Rumblesham. "Are you," he asked in a low voice, "really going through with it?"

Lucy Pike laughed gayly. "Why not?"

Chesterfield glanced away. "Of course," he said. "Why not?" After all, she was no different from her mother: a cold, calculating girl, ambitious to marry into the nobility of England. He had been wrong in believing she was made of finer stuff.

With the arrival of the port the Honorable Bertie's mood of gayety changed to one of ponderous dignity. He became an impressive figure; and, getting to his feet with difficulty, hiccoughed an apology to his hostess and announced that he must send a cablegram to the prime minister.

Chesterfield rose hastily. "He's quite blotto!" he whispered to Lucy. "You don't know how funny that sounds—cabling the prime minister—because Bertie's the most frightful old snob. If he met the prime minister in Piccadilly he wouldn't speak to him! Old conservative, you know: despises all these upstart politicians. I'd better look after him. Pardon." And he hurried off to assist Rumblesham from the room.

"That's it," growled the old gentleman, with vast dignity. "Give me your arm, Nigel. I seem to be wobbling a bit. Must cable the premier."

And nothing would dissuade him. Mr. Pike's secretary, a meek, spectacled fellow, was summoned, and the Honorable Bertie himself dictated the cablegram:

"'The Prime Minister, 10 Downing street, London. Sir: Your speech of yesterday, which I read in today's newspaper, convinces me more than ever that you are a damned fool.' Signed, 'Rums.' What? Certainly I want it all in the message. Never mind the expense—charge it to Mr. Pike. Now, Nigel!" He listed suddenly to port, and Chesterfield caught his arm.

"Don't you think," he suggested suavely, "we'd better go up? It's time for your nap."

"Right-o," muttered the Honorable Bertie, swaying gently and hiccoughing. "Let's go up."

Lucy Pike was rather a clever girl. At least she knew what she wanted. And all day she had known that she did not want Major the Honorable Albert Rumblesham. The glamour of an alliance with the family of the Earl of Billingsbridge, which at first seemed so wonderful, seemed now, in the light of recent events, considerably less wonderful—in fact, not wonderful at all. Her mother was, of course, still intent on the match. That was all very well. Her mother did not have to marry a withered antique whose digestion had gone wrong in the Victorian age. As Lucy thought of him becoming disgracefully obriate at luncheon she did not know whether to laugh or cry. That luncheon had been rather a fiasco: the noble guest had staggered from the table before its conclusion, and the others had taken themselves off soon after. Whereupon Mrs. Pike had cried a little and her husband departed for one of his clubs. Chesterfield, after putting the fickle Bertie between sheets, had slipped off for a walk. Sitting alone in the vast, empty library, surrounded by books she had never read, Lucy wished that he would return. Four o'clock chimed. She was lonely. For an hour she had been thinking of the expression in his eyes when he looked at her. Surely, if she were any judge of male symptoms, Chesterfield had fallen in love with her.

WHEN dinner was announced Mrs. Pike was pacing restlessly up and down the pink rug in the ivory and gold drawing room. Lucy and her father and Mrs. Bellair conversed in hushed tones. The Honorable Bertie had not appeared. Then, as they waited, Chesterfield came down, and Lucy, looking her loveliest in a gown of peach colored velvet, greeted him with shining eyes. Never had she known a man who appeared so well in a dinner jacket.

"Sorry to be late," he smiled. "I was——"

"Where is Major Rums?" cut in Mrs. Pike coldly.

"He will not be down for dinner," explained Chesterfield. "Matt'r of fact, he's feeling a bit under the weather."

"Hm!" Mrs. Pike's green eyes glittered.

Her husband chuckled. "Bet he's got a pippin of a headache!"

"I don't know," answered Chesterfield; "I couldn't wake him up to find out."

They went in to dinner.

Later that evening Mrs. Bellair, somewhat perturbed as to the outcome of the match she had engineered, found herself at the theater chaperoning Lucy and the Honorable Bertie's secretary. The Pikes père et mère, had, in the absence of the Honorable Bertie himself, declined to come; and Mrs. Bellair was not having a particularly jolly time. She had seen the play before, and it was a comedy, and she did not enjoy comedies. Moreover, she was upset because Lucy appeared to be interested in the young man beside her. A frown crossed Mrs. Bellair's sharp face. But then, she assured herself, there was no danger of Lucy's actually falling in love with a fellow of this sort. Secretaries would do to flirt with—but that was all. Besides, Lucy's mamma had decided her daughter should marry Rumblesham.

In the motor, after the play, Lucy leaned forward and took up the speaking tube. "Take Mrs. Bellair home first, Rowley."

"But—my dear!" objected that lady, very much shocked, "I am your chaperon!"

Lucy smiled sweetly at her. "You know," she said, "that Tappé hat you liked so well?"

"Why, yes——"

"It will be delivered to you in the morning. Good night, dear Mrs. Bellair!"

The car had stopped in front of her hotel; Mrs. Bellair capitulated.

"Now," cried Lucy gayly as they drove away, "we'll go up to Montmartre and do some plain and fancy dancing!"

Nigel laughed delightedly. What a girl! The Club de Montmartre was decidedly more interesting than any dancing place he had ever visited in London: a spacious upstairs room, crowded with tables, where the smoke of many cigarets drifted under dim lights; and in the center, upon a small dance floor, dozens of suddenly gowned women, clinging to men in dinner clothes, swayed and stepped to the most superb tootling, jangling music Chesterfield had ever heard. Lucy Pike was apparently well known here. Obsequious captains escorted them to a table just far enough from the orchestra, and supper was brought.

AFTER a time they danced; and Lucy discovered that Nigel was the only Englishman she had ever known who danced well. He held her close in his arms, and as they circled about the crowded floor to the saxophone harmonies she knew beyond a shadow of doubt that she was completely in love with him. Gone now were all thoughts of the international alliance and the Honorable Bertie. She would not give a last year's hat to be Countess of Billingsbridge and take tea with the king and queen at Buckingham palace! What a fool she had been to consider it at all! Poor old Rumblesham! Suddenly she laughed, and Chesterfield bent his head closer to her fair, fragrant hair.

"I say," he asked, puzzled, "are you laughing at me?"

"No; at myself!" She looked up and their eyes met.

There was, in the chatter of the people about them, in the dance music, in the atmosphere of the place, an air of tense, gay excitement. It thrilled Chesterfield, and the witchery of Lucy Pike's eyes completed the devastation. A sort of midnight madness seized him, and his arms drew her closer.

"Tell me," he demanded, "you're not going to marry Rums!"

"No," Lucy shook her head, "no, I'm not."

"Then you are going to marry me!"

She looked up, her eyes twinkling. "When?"

"Tomorrow!" cried Chesterfield joyously. "You darling!"

When the music ended they somehow found their way back to the table and sat gazing rapturously at each other, as young people do who have been in love less than twenty-four hours.

Of a sudden their dream was pierced by a shrill laugh. A late arriving party had just come in: two portly, pink jowled men and two painted ladies in gorgeous fur wraps. As they passed Lucy's table the pretty Titian-haired girl with scarlet lips stopped short.

"Nigel Chesterfield!" she screamed, and, throwing herself into his arms, pressed her vivid red lips to his.

"Maisie!" Appalled with embarrassment, Chesterfield struggled to his feet.

"Darling!" laughed Maisie, clinging to him. Her breath was like sweet, hot fumes of gin. "My God, I'm glad to see you! When did you leave dear ol' Lunnon? An' how's the sweet little Prince of——"

"I say—look here, Maisie!"

The other girl and the two portly old men swept her along with them. But she waved back at him and her voice rose shrilly:

"Call me up, Nigel! Plaza 42——"

"But mother—we're not engaged!"

Then the music began again, and Maisie was gone.

Lucy Pike sat stiffly in her chair, a cold rage possessing her. All about, people were laughing. To them it was comedy—a rollicking farce: but to her it was tragedy. Chesterfield, flushed with embarrassment, leaned toward her, attempting painfully to smile.

"Really," he murmured, "I'm awfully sorry——"

An unreasoning wrath, wherein were mingled wounded pride and jealousy, consumed her. She hated him.

"Who," she inquired frostily, "was your charming little friend?"

Chesterfield fluttered a handkerchief across his brow, and his eyes were pathetic.

"Maisie Marlowe," he stammered. "I—she was playing in a revue in London this winter, and——"

"O—an actress? I thought perhaps she was a school teacher."

"Please don't be unkind. You see, I knew her in London."

"Yes, I gathered you weren't total strangers."

"Won't you give me a chance to tell you? As a matt'r of fact, Maisie——"

"That's quite enough—please." Her short laugh cut him like an icy knife. "I don't care to hear all the details of your amours!"

"But I——"

"Will you get the check?" She knew that she was being unreasonable; hated herself for it, and hated him.

"You must listen to me," he pleaded.

"Must?" Her eyes blazed coldly, like sapphires. "Really, you are amusing."

She was gathering her chinchilla wrap about her, and Chesterfield, the most miserable of men, helplessly signaled a waiter.

MORNING found the Pike household in a state of turmoil. The Honorable Bertie, having for nineteen hours slept off the effects of his unwise imbibation, sat huddled in an armchair in his room, one foot bundled up on a stool, suffering frightfully from gout, and growling about everything in general. Lucy Pike was weeping in her boudoir, and refused to unlock the door even to admit her maid with a breakfast tray. Nigel Chesterfield had taken a taxi down to the Battery. And Papa and Mamma Pike, with their social aid, Mrs. Bellair, were in consultation in the library.

The Honorable Bertie, after roundly abusing his valet all morning, had just dispatched him to the kitchen for some sort of gruel, when a knock sounded on the door. It was Pollock, the butler.

"Please, your lordship——"

"Demmit!" roared the old gentleman in the armchair, "how many times must I tell you not to address me as 'your lordship!'" Having existed in anticipation for sixty-nine years without inheriting the title, his indignation on the subject was intense.

"Beg pardon, sir." The butler quailed. "But Miss Pike——"

"Ouch!" The Honorable Bertie uttered a howl of pain. He had twitched his gouty foot a fraction of an inch. "Ouch! O—demmit!"

"Miss Pike," continued Pollock timidly, "desires a word with you, sir."

"Oh, she does!" The Honorable Bertie ceased growling and cocked a bleary eye toward the ceiling. "Hm-m. Well—ask her to come in."

As Lucy, in a simple taupe morning frock, entered the room there was about her eyes a suspicion of recent tears.

"Good morning," she said in a subdued little voice.

"Morning, my dear." The old tyrant looked up at her, and his expression softened.

"I'm sorry you're not feeling well."

"O"—he scowled suddenly at his foot, trundled on the stool—"just this demned gout. Shouldn't have taken that port yesterday!"

Lucy banished a méchant smile. She was wondering how he excused the sherry, the sauterne, and the champagne. Port, though, was doubtless his ancient enemy.

"Major Rums," she said swiftly, "you—you don't want to marry me, do you?"

"What? O, I say!" spluttered the old gentleman in confusion.

"Really, truly, I mean." Her eyes regarded him gravely. "You don't want to marry me."

"My dear child! Hem!" His embarrassment was grotesque. "I say, now——"

Standing beside his chair, she slipped her hand in his. Until this moment she had never known what a lovable old fellow he was.

"I understand," she said quietly. "You know, neither of us had much to say about it."

The Honorable Bertie plucked at his drooping gray mustaches. "Look here," he demanded abruptly, "you're in love with my secret'ry, aren't you?"

"No!"

"Come, now."

"Well, I—I was." She lowered her eyes.

"Nonsense, my dear—was! Absurd. Two perfect children like you and Nigel. I know all about your silly quarrel."

"You do?" She gazed wistfully out the window.

"I'm fond of the boy," went on Rumbleham gruffly, "deuced fond of him. And this affair has quite knocked him out. Matt'r of fact, he's gone."

"Gone?" echoed Lucy, startled.

"Told me this morning he couldn't stay, under the circumstances. Sailing today, if he can get a cabin on any of the Cunard boats." With a smile cunning he watched her expression. "Don't you think," he went on kindly, "you were a bit hard on him? Now, that girl last night—Maisie what's-her-name—was no particular friend of Nigel's. Not in the least. He'd merely met her at parties while she was playing in London. Matt'r of fact, she went around a bit with Nigel's pal, young Mannering."

"O." Lucy stared down at the pattern on the Persian rug, and her eyes were misty.

"My dear," said the Honorable Bertie gently, "a great deal of unhappiness can come from a silly misunderstanding." He patted her hand, and there was a far away look in his eyes. "Sit down here; I want to tell you a little story."

Below, in the library, Mrs. Bellair (wearing her new Tappé hat) was cunning up the situation.

"Of course," she explained, "Major Runs hasn't said anything about the marriage—yet. He feels, no doubt, that any proposal should come from Mr. Pike."

"Don't know why," put in George J. Pike, digging the elk's tooth on his watch chain. "He's the fella that's getting married!"

"But this," said his wife, "is an international match. It isn't conducted like a wedding in Ohio."

"You said something there!" he nodded. "Gosh, foreigners are funny fellas. You know, Mrs. Bellair, after manufacturing canned beans all my life, every time I hear these Englishmen say 'beans' I think they're talking business!" He nodded over his own wit.

"George," interposed his wife sharply, "this is no time for joking. We must decide what's best to do. I think we should go right up to his room and have a frank talk with him—discuss the settlement and all other details, so we can announce the engagement."

"But look here," protested Pike, "we aren't sure Lucy wants to marry him. She hasn't said——"

"Of course she wants to marry him. I talked it all over with her the day Major Runs came."

"O, yes," sweetened Mrs. Bellair sweetly, "Lucy's too smart a girl to turn down the chance of being the Countess of Badger. Why don't we go up to the Major's room now—and talk things over?"

"That's the thing to do," nodded Mrs. Pike, deftly patting her bonneted coiffure. "Come along, George." And she strutted out of the library, followed by her husband and Mrs. Bellair.

As they paused in the doorway of Rumbleham's room a spectacle met their gaze that brought joy to the hearts of the two women and caused George J. Pike to blink. For there in an armchair sat the Honorable Bertie, and beside him, with his arm about her and her fair hair resting against his shoulder, knelt Lucy.

"Now, my dear," he was saying, "I want you to think it over."

"My stars!" gasped Mrs. Pike in ecstasy, forgetting for the moment her English accent, "he's proposed to her!" And, unable to contain herself, she burst in upon them. "Well, well!" she effervesced, "I just must congratulate you—bless you hearts!"

The sixty-nine year old younger son looked up in astonishment, and Lucy raised her head.

"So it's all settled!" Mrs. Pike went rushing toward them and unwittingly bumped Rumbleham's gouty foot.

"Ouch!" he howled. "Ow! Dammit!"

And in the next moment they were all swarming solicitously about him, muttering apologies.

"So sorry!" cried Mrs. Pike. "But I couldn't help it. I—I just had to tell you how delighted I am!" She embraced her daughter frantically. "My little girl!"

"My foot!" groaned the Honorable Bertie.

"Mother!" protested Lucy, struggling from her clutches, "I don't understand——"

"We're congratulating you, darling—you and Major Runs! I suppose I must call him Albert now——"

"But, mother—we're not engaged!"

"What?"

"Major Runs and I?" Lucy threw back her head and laughed. "No, indeed! But—she caught up one of his gnarled hands affectionately—"we are the best pals in the world."

"Lucy!" cried Mrs. Pike, aghast, "you're not—not going to marry Major Runs?"

"Why, no."

THE two women stared at each other in amazement. Mr. Pike jingled his keys. And at that moment Nigel Chesterfield walked into the room. He was rather pale, and in one hand carried a pigskin traveling bag.

"Good morning." He bowed courteously to them all, and set down the bag; then, without glancing at Lucy, addressed Rumbleham:

"I managed to get a stateroom on the Mauretania, sailing this afternoon."

"Nigel!"

He turned. Lucy took a step toward him, and her lovely eyes were misted. "Nigel, I'm sorry."

"What? I say!" His face lighted. "Really? My word!" Then he grasped both her hands and, bending over, kissed them.

"Lucy!" Mrs. Pike's mouth opened in horror.

Her daughter looked up with a radiant smile. "I," she said, "am going to marry Mr. Chesterfield—if he'll have me!"

"You darling!" murmured Chesterfield.

The two women stared blankly at each other. Gone now was Mrs. Pike's dream of having her daughter a countess and lionized at court. Gone now was Mrs. Bellair's commission.

"Lucy! Have you lost your mind? Do you realize what you're doing?"

"Indeed I do, mother."

"It's an outrage!" stormed her mother. "I won't have it! I—I——" She darted wrathfully upon her husband. "George—why don't you say something?"

"All I can say," mumbled George J. Pike, grinning sheepishly, "is, 'Bless you, my children.'"

"Don't be a fool!" In rage Mrs. Pike shook a finger at her daughter. "You don't marry this fellow! Do you hear? My daughter shall not throw herself away on a mere nobody!"

"I don't care what he is," said Lucy, "I love him."

"Eh?" The Honorable Bertie leaned forward and scowled fiercely at Lucy's mother.

"He's nothing but your secretary!" she snapped.

"He's a gentleman," announced the Honorable Bertie with ponderous dignity, "and a soldier with a record to be proud of! His father was my old pal, Jack Chesterfield—Colonel Chesterfield of the Guards."

"Really?" gasped Mrs. Pike.

"And what if he were, madam, a mere secretary, as you say? It's who a man is, not what he is!"

"Major," pronounced George J. Pike, "you said something!" And, stepping forward, he wrung Nigel's hand. He had liked him from the first.

"Oh," murmured Mrs. Pike, suddenly overcome with sweetness, "of course, we didn't know!" She beamed upon everybody. After all, an Englishman was an Englishman—and Chesterfield was a charming chap. With outstretched arms she swished forward and kissed them both.

Lucy's father was a practical man. "Say," he queried genially, "what are you two going to live on?"

"I haven't any money," admitted Nigel honestly, "but there's a post waiting for me in the diplomatic service. I daresay we shall get along." He smiled at Lucy and she squeezed his hand.

"Diplomatic service!" chirped Mrs. Pike. "Indeed! Now, isn't that nice!" Instantly she was conjuring up visions of her son-in-law as an ambassador.

"The future," said George J. Pike, "will take care of itself. I'll see that it does. Now, folks," he proposed jovially, "let's all go down and drink their health. How about it? Little cocktail, or a glass of port, or something?"

"Ouch!" growled the Honorable Bertie, "my foot!"

"MOTHER OF GOLD"

MADRE d'ORO

By EMERSON HOUGH

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT.

The Pursuit.

FOR a time Palmer sat moody, disturbed, kicking together the embers of the breakfast fire.

"Well," he said, "we're partners now, the only men who know the secret, unless it is one other—old Pedro. He may or may not be alive today. So we might as well make a little map, in case anything should happen to me. We have got to share our knowledge from this time on, and the closer we come to the place the greater will be the danger.

"Bring me that manta, Allison," said he. "Maybe it will do for our little sketch."

Allison brought the pack cover of heavy canvas, its inner surface still bearing traces of its original whiteness. Palmer spread it down and began to trace with a piece of charcoal which he picked up at the edge of the fire.

"This is where we are now," said he. "We've only a few more days to go, and we can take it easy. Off this way is a little village which they call Dos Pasos—that's near the old Spanish road.

"But on ahead, east of where we are now, is one valley which the Spaniards overlooked. They knew they were missing something, but the great mines into the northwest were so rich they couldn't stop to hunt for Madre D'Oro. They envied the richness of the Aztec people. All the time they knew something about the old legend of Madre D'Oro—that's true without a doubt or question in the world. Mariana, the Tlascalan sweetheart of Cortés, Mariana the traitress—she knew, perhaps she told. But because the country was so rich otherwise the Spaniards never really made a scientific hunt for Madre D'Oro.

"Of course, you and I know the secret valley is a volcanic rent in the rocks. Tomorrow we'll see the peak of old Orizaba—dead these centuries, but once mighty active. If you want the real secret of Madre D'Oro, ask Orizaba."

He pushed up the brim of his hat as he looked up from his work, slapping the heavy object in his pocket. "That gold which our old workmen here found was melted gold, volcanic gold! Somewhere down among the

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

JOHN PALMER, a veteran engineer; "Pug" Halleck, Dan Silsby, and Buck Allison are in Mexico seeking "Madre d'Oro," the mother lode of the world's gold, which Palmer has located. The prospectors meet a beautiful girl, Luisa Martinez, sister of the girl Palmer stole from her proud Spanish family and married. The Americans take Luisa with them.

Back in Deerville, O., Allison had confided his secret to Mary Westlake, and she had promised to wait one year for him. But Randall Trent, the richest man in town, loves her and follows when Dr. Blakely orders Mrs. Westlake to Mexico for her health.

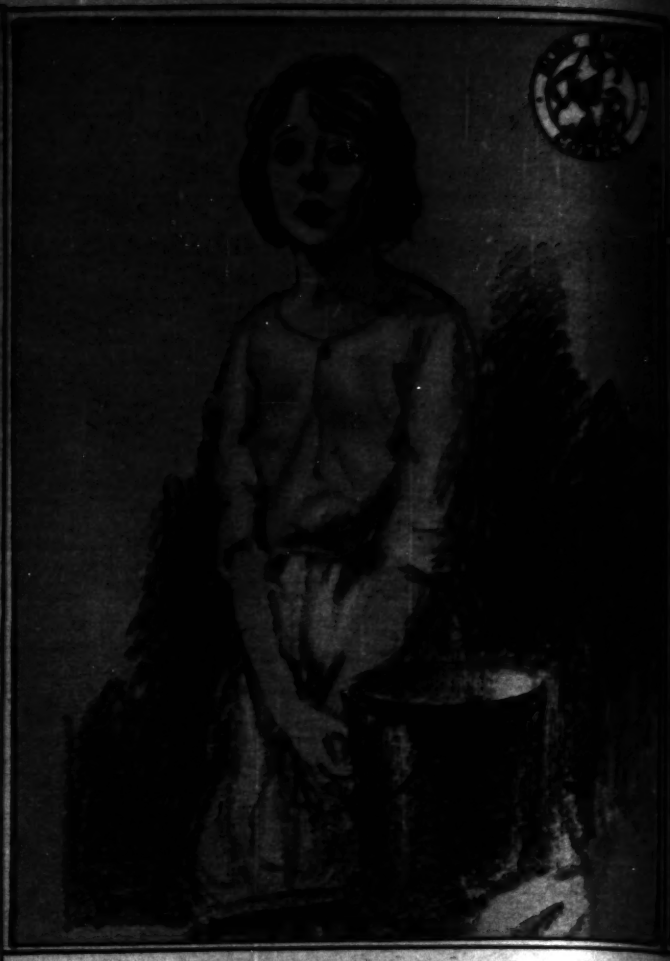
Father Ernesto, a Samaritan of a district where folks never grow old, tells Mary that John Palmer learned the story of Madre d'Oro from Pedro the Old, the ancient servant of the Martinez family. On an old Spanish map he shows her the supposed location of the mother lode. Mary leads a party to old Pedro in the desert and tries to pry from Pedro the secret of Madre d'Oro. The knowledge that a woman knows so much of the great Aztec secret kills Pedro.

Trent tries to learn from Mary what she knows of Madre d'Oro. Failing, he intimates he will try to beat Allison and his party to the treasure. At the same time Palmer is telling his companions all he knows of the great secret.

The leader fell, shot dead in his saddle.

The Negro scenery in the costume show is strong on the character stuff. You should hear her say "Lan sakes, honey, jes' you tell ole Mammy Jinny 'bout it!"

Maids and butlers in a drawing room play scene is typical that the laughs would be waiting for a moment, like women does Lady Augusta Appledore pull the bell rope that Police trips in. (This, we feel, is basically correct, for in real life the bell would be out of order.)

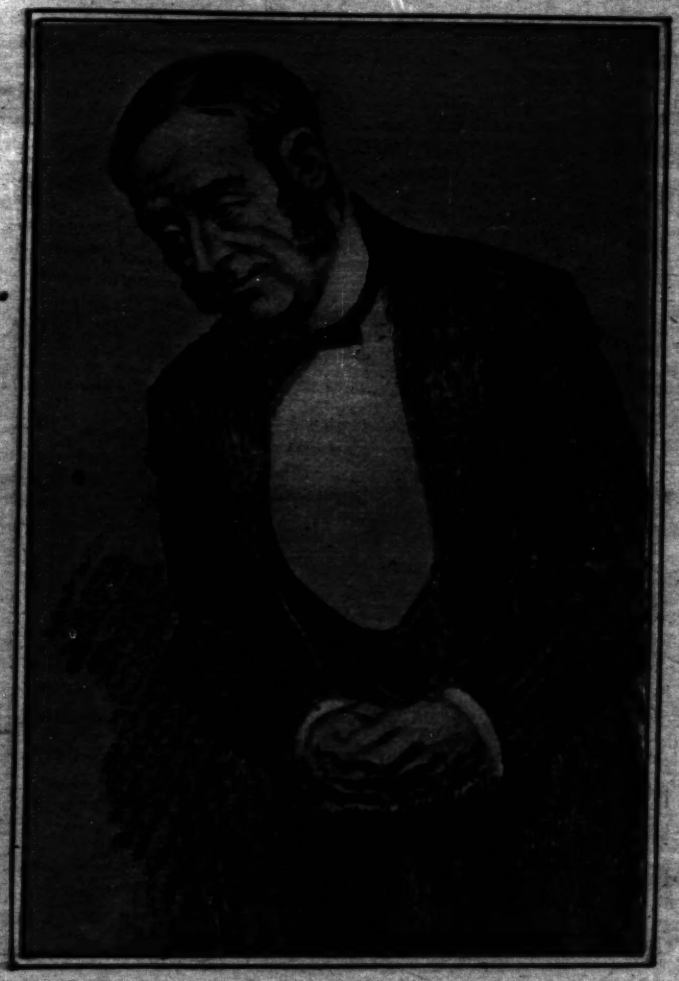


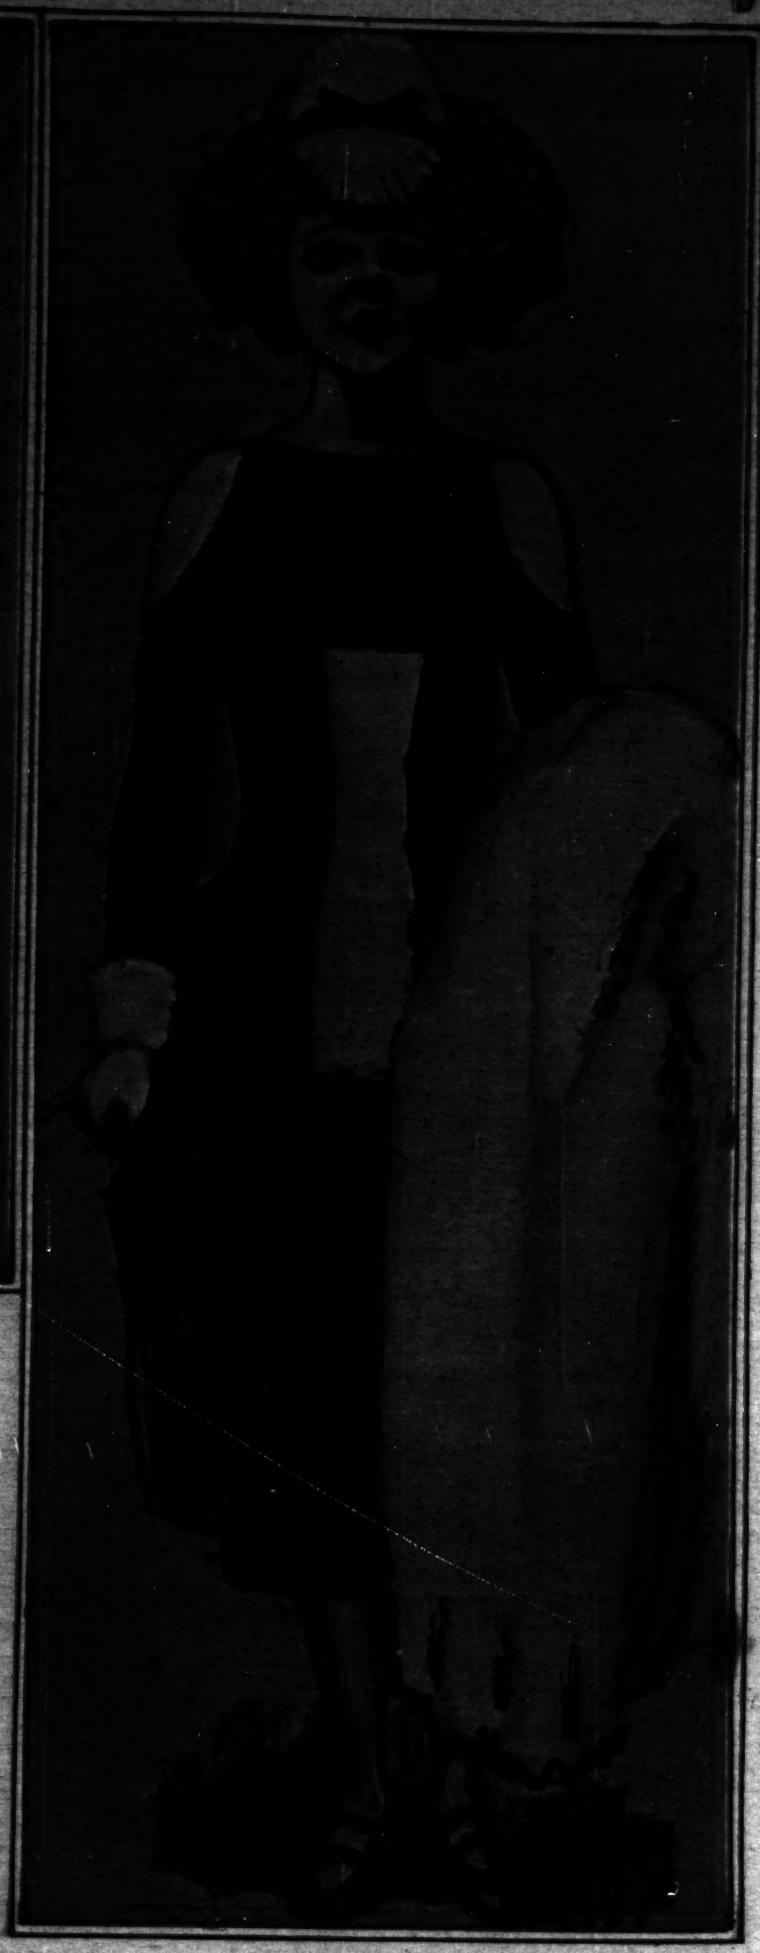
A stage slavy is always wanting to see the country, and trees and flowers, and being too wistful for words about it.

The butler in the mystery play turns out to be anything and everything a butler shouldn't be. Invariably involved lately with the servant problem. Sometimes he is a detective out to catch the homicidal, and then again at five minutes to eleven it comes out that he is none other than the nobleman who wants to murder the entire cast. (Only two others we wish he could.)

The servant with the problem to solve before eleven ten, in the gripping play of [illegible] upside, is a very strong character. She is always getting into the strong [illegible] tells she drops everything, screams "Oh, not you, not you!" to the son of the [illegible] time. Her big scene is where she breaks down and defies them all. "The [illegible] best Long Island accent, when they try to buy her off. By the end of the [illegible]

The servants in a musical show can be depended on to make a hit out of anything short of a prison sentence. Even then they would probably be doing eccentric all over the warden's office to the tune of "The Prison Sentence Blues."





The maid in the French farce is very Frenchy, indeed, with her high heels and her "vee Mamzelle." Also it is a tradition that any French maid in a farce will commit herself to Bedlam, arson and murder, for any sum over one pound sterling.

Wouldn't it be great, if, at times of financial stress, the butler, in real life, would come to us and say: "Pardon your pardon, sir, but there's my little savings which I'd be proud to allow you," the way they do on the stage?

Blackheads

Keep your skin free from blackheads by this treatment

Perhaps your skin is especially susceptible to blackheads.

If so, you must use a special method of cleansing, in order to overcome this trouble.

Follow this treatment, to keep your skin free from blackheads:

EACH night before retiring, apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough wash-cloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Within a week or ten days you will be surprised to see how your skin has improved in clearness.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

that belong to you—whiter, prettier teeth

Here is the way to whiter teeth. Millions now employ it. You see the results wherever you look today.

Let us send you a test to show you what it means to you and yours.

Combat That Film

This method combats film on teeth—that viscous film you feel. Film clings to teeth. Under old methods, much of it remains. It becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats, and teeth lose their luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few escape those film-caused troubles under old methods of teeth cleaning.

Dental science has now found two effective film combatants. One disintegrates the film, one removes it without harmful scouring.

After many careful tests, a new-type tooth paste was created to apply those methods daily. The name is Pepsodent. Now careful people the world over employ it, largely by dental advice.

'Twill Delight You

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, which digests starch deposits on teeth. Thus every use gives manifold power to these great protective agents.

The results are quickly seen and felt. They will amaze and delight you. You will always want them for yourself and your family.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Do this for your own sake now. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

"MOTHER OF GOLD"

big forces the veins of the mountains must have melted, must have run fluid gold. I suppose that melted mass ran into a cocoon, a great mold, just as you would pour custard into a mold, or ice cream. Now, how deep that was I do not know. But after a while old Orizaba—assisted by Mr. Temblor, his working side partner—took another heave or two at this country. They ripped a rent, tore open a valley. And maybe from down below, close to the everlasting fires, there thrust up this mold of solid gold. I am telling you, it was more than a quarter of a mile long.

"Then, just to be fair about it, they broke off the top of that mold—Orizaba and his ally—and left the yellow gold shining there in the sun—shining and shining—a century, a dozen centuries, twenty, a hundred centuries, thousands of centuries, for all that any man may know. These trees came and these hills were made all over again. And the silence came and the sky looked down on the valley. And the gold—the solid, pure gold, my friends—lay there undiscovered."

His friends fell silent. The older man for a time did not go on. At length, however, he resumed the half idle markings with his charcoal point. "Now I am putting in, away down here," he went on, "the Valley of La Luz. That little river runs out of the Valley of Madre D'Oro. As I have told you, I lived on the upper waters of La Luz for almost ten years. I have told you what I saw there. I have explained to you why that country never was known—they didn't run their sheep and cattle in there from below, because there was a loco weed, or something, which poisoned them. That's one way of looking at it. Another is that there may be a sort of superstition that has kept the natives away from there—I don't know and don't pretend to say.

"But here's your little river of La Luz, making off southeast toward the great gulf—and never getting there. Now, here we come to the Spanish road. That's easy, for we just follow up this little creek where we are now. We jog down the Spanish road a few hours until we strike a place where we jump straight south into the wilderness. Now you see this tall mountain, and back of us there will be a niche between two tall peaks. When we reach that cross line—there's where we jump south into the country Orizaba made.

"You face at a right angle on that line, less one degree, and you sight south by your compass—I am marking that now. You will see back of you the top of a long, low, black ridge, through which we will have gone by that time. There isn't any good landmark to sight by in there, hence the need of the compass, setting off almost a right angle to the south.

"Now look here—follow out your compass line and you see a low notch to the south. That's the only place you can get through those mountains. It's a day's march from here to where our first cross lines meet. But if you strike that notch the rest is easy. That's the last landmark this side of La Luz. All you have to do is to go down that slope from the little notch in the rim, and you can't help striking La Luz. You will then be just below my house.

"We shall stop at my house, gentlemen, if it still is there."

A cloud came over the old man's face.

"Not so happy a place. But you might almost call that the end of our journey. There we are within a day's ride of the head of La Luz. And when you get to the head of that little stream you're at the end of the world and at the beginning of time!

"Under a little scooped out place in the face of the mountain a well spring comes out. There's a big leaning rock against the face of the mountain, but it fits as tight as though a mason had put it there. You don't try to move that rock. On the contrary, in order to get into the valley you have got to lie down in the bed of the stream itself—take your chances of getting smothered.

"Now you need heart. Push in under the face of that rock. Follow the thread of the water. You pass through the very bowels of the mountain itself.

"And so only can you do what I have done—and so only can you go where I have been—and so only can you see what I have seen.

"And that sight, gentlemen, is one which the eyes of man never yet have equaled from the dawn of time till now!

"You see, don't you, the need of putting the secret in the hands of men who are fit? The Aztecs were wise in their day and generation, whoever they were and wherever they may have come from."

John Palmer cast his charred stick into the ashes and pushed the piece of canvas back toward Allison.

"Another thing we ought to do," he added, presently. "We must write down the names and addresses of all of us, and the names and addresses of any friends or relatives outside. That's only a wise precaution. Write them down. I know, Silsby, that you want word sent to Sally Catherwood of Denver when you make your fortune."

Silsby nodded, his white teeth showing in the tan of his face.

"You, Allison—that's Mary Westlake, Deneville, Ohio." And Allison nodded gravely.

"Hallock?"

The blue eyes of the last of their party turned unconsciously toward the edge of the little encampment, where Luisa Martinez sat in the shade, her eyes fixed out across the distant mountains.

"I don't know my address," said he, at length. "I'm pretty much alone in the world. General Delivery, San Diego, California, used to catch me—but it never will again."

"Her sister was as beautiful as she is," said old John, quietly. Hallock flushed.

"So be it, then. The address of any of us thirty days from now may be hard to guess. We're ready for the last lap of our journey. Let's pull out."

THE treasure seekers left their bivouac while the sun still was low in the east. It was a gentle world that lay about them, seemingly holding no trace of toil, danger, turmoil. The rich green of the valley bespoke a gentle climate. Flowers, half-tropic shrubs, tall strange trees were on every hand.

John Palmer, when they were ready for the morning line of march, did not turn back to the trail which led to the distant plain. He followed an opposite course, directly up into the foothills, the babbling of the little stream still accompanying them. The scene became half tropic. Green parrots flashed across the path—other birds of vivid plumage. The feel of the world was gay, light. They passed as though in some comedy, some gentle drama, meant for the allurement of the senses. A strange world this for these men fresh from the north.

They rode in silence, and each man now had both rifle and revolver loose and ready for work, although they made no war-like front with their little cavalcade. Upon two of their pack animals, lightened by the disappearance of their original loads, they had put pack loads of short wood, as though they were pieladas passing to market. In garb they all were poor, in demeanor ready to give way to their superiors. Three of them, at least, spoke Spanish as natives. All were unshaven, burned dark. The women were shaded by their rebosos. Taken in detail, the party was not one to attract attention on any road where many similar parties passed. It was their hope to shuffle through without being halted by any authority or any idle curiosity.

Thus far they had found the presence of Luisa and her woman, Serafina, no handicap, indeed of actual service. When their scanty larder had need of replenishment it had been the custom to send Serafina on alone into this or that little placita, where she could do her bargaining or marketing like some native woman and bring back her purchases mule-back. On the whole, it would have been difficult, even with keen examination of their little train, to have suspected them of being anything but innocent travelers, native to the country.

But at length they must abandon furtive methods and little known trails and trust all their fortunes to the open road, where surely they could not escape meeting many strangers. Palmer explained this to them.

Before the morning was spent they broke down from the forest fringe of the hills and swung out, as though stepping from a door, into the great, gray, dusty and broken thoroughfare of the old Spanish road, a highway whose glory long since has departed.

Weary as they were, having lived as they had on fare none so rich these many days, they hardly needed to assume the native apathy as they jogged along, straw sombreros pulled over their eyes, their serapes high above their chins. Other cavalcades of like sort passed them by, natives with burros heavily laden, foot passengers still more heavily laden, bearing their cheap wares to some distant market. Many passed them at a speed greater than they thought advisable. Their one was not to show any haste, but to blend into the landscape of the country and its customs as best they might. Had they been peaceful Americans openly traveling by rail they would have been safer than Americans thus in disguise.

The great highway upon which they found themselves had its long history. Repairs it seemed not to have known in many years. In places the ancient paving remained, for the old Spaniards built it well and truly in their day, but the flagging in many places long ago had vanished, and long stretches remained where the road, broad as it was, lay nothing better than a dust heap. None the less, winding in stately curves among the mountains, for the most part steadily descending, it lay in a certain proud disdain of time and its ravages, one of the great roads of the world even today.

Around distant curves, hidden by trees that flanked the way, now and again could be heard the tinkle of a bell, the sound of travelers chanting. Clouds of dust would announce the coming of any party from other direction. A sort of dreamy calm lay over everything. Had these wayfarers been entirely otherwise they must have found all this new experience not failing in charm.

FOR hours they advanced, for the most part to the southeast and along the highway, and no untoward incident occurred to break their growing content with the manner in which fortune was handling their affairs. It was almost noon and they were thinking of leaving the trail for rest when they heard behind them the sound of rapid riding and the clink of steel, soon followed by calls and sharp commands. Some party of authority was coming, surely.

Hurriedly they drew aside to the outer edge of the roadway, as those who would allow nobility to pass. But nobility proved to be a band of riders in the half uniform of the Mexican Rurales. They all were armed, well mounted, were under the command of an officer, and all were bent on some well recognized errand down the road.

Their leader, a dark, middle aged man, attired in the full charro costume of the well to do Mexican—short leather jacket, bright trousers, high sombrero and billowy shirt—pulled up across the way, ahead of them, the others following him.

The Americans were surrounded, nor did one of them dare draw a weapon. Indeed, each of them knew that safety lay only in the ability to make a peace parley.

"Quidado!" called out the low voice of Palmer, not trusting himself to any English. They understood his command for silence. No one had any opportunity to explain, to make any movement in defense or offense; although the hand of each of the Americans was ready to his weapon.

"You are of this district?" demanded the leader, who spoke in Spanish, addressing Palmer, whom he suspected to be the leader, since he pushed forward. The latter answered in the same language.

"Is it please your excellency," said he, "Tranfaro to Espinas, below, with humble lumps, as you see."

"From what village do you come?" demanded the officer. "We have not heard of your party within the last three hours. We have ridden hard, two leagues to the hour."

"That could be sure with horses so good as those of the capitan and his men. Would that we could do so well. No, excellency, we came into the road horseback, from the country to the north of here. We are poor. The men of our party are obliged to ride very far to obtain a few cloquet."

"But why so many of you to guard a burro load or two of wood?"

His keen eye was noting the details of the little cavalcade. He saw hung over Sandoz's mule a long string of eggs—she had wrapped each in a corn husk and tied them to a line, transporting these after the native fashion. This and other details about the equipment seemed to give the suspicious leader a certain pause. He returned to his accusation none the less.

"Why do you ride with arms—pistols and Winchesters, American weapons? You say you are poor—how come you to buy such arms as these? Well, it's all the same; we shall take them from you. Ourselves, we don't have weapons so good. Yet we are officers of the Rurales and we need arms of the best. We thank you, Señor Peludo." He grinned sardonically.

John Palmer turned his head over his shoulder. "Cuidado!" his men heard him whisper once again. But he turned toward the officer.

"In the name of the saints, we would live in this state in safety, capitan," said he, "but the capitan knows that for generations we who farm have lost all we had—and he knows that weapons may be had in certain service. Is it not true? The revolucionistas, the patriotas, the bandidos—they take all we have. And when shall one not meet one of these? It is necessary that we be armed—as necessary that we have rifles as that we have plows."

"But where did you get those weapons?" insisted the leader. "Don't tell me that you bought them. You lie."

"Last spring we worked at the mines near Guanajuato, señor capitan. There were Americanos there at the mine, very rich. They gave us these for our own, saying they were going home and would send them no more. That's well. In this country of ours need no gringos!"

"You say that well," rejoined the leader, quickly. "How comes it that you yourselves all have light hair and eyes of blue? That is not common, certainly not among the people from whom you claim to come, my friend!"

"Hah! You speak well, señor capitan. We were not always poor. It is the revolutions that have broken us. Once we had lands. See this lady—her woman—she once had property as well as we. We all came originally from Guadalajara. You know the Andalusians there—one finds there the blue eyes and light hair. Sure, yes, señor capitan; but it is God who gives hair and eyes, and these matters are as they may be. Now we are poor people, may the saints be pleased!"

"Uncover this woman!" suddenly demanded the harsh voice of the leader.

Then there must have been trouble; but with one motion of her hand Luisa swept off the rebozo, turned eyes of youthful pride upon the leader. It was a bold act, a brave one, yet unfortunate. The next moment her face went pale.

The laugh of the partisan leader rose high and exultant. "So!" he exclaimed. "You are poor people, but you have with you a high born lady! I should know this señorita here. She is the very one whom we have been seeking! The saints be rewarded for their goodness—we have found her by accident at last!

It was a bold act.

"Listen now, you fellow!" he went on, turning to John Palmer. "We have been traveling for days. We do what Pancho Villa wants, the great chieftain, though he is not now at war. This is his woman—he took this girl from down below here. Espinosa, you said? Yes! He suspected she might be going back. He sent us after her. So we find her—and you others. Pour—you, very poor! You've gone going to market, you, you, sure, it is true! Well, one does not disappoint the general!"

PALMER, as though by accident, drew his horse across the road between the leader and the horrified woman who heard his words. "But the Señor Capitan will be sure first? He will easily know that we are but chance travelers whom this lady overtook."

"You said you came, all of you, from Guadalajara."

"It is true, Señor Capitan, but in Guadalajara are many who do not know one another. But the good saints forbid that any of us should cause a tear to fall from the eyes of any woman. She is fair to look upon—is not that the truth?"

"The general found her so! And when he has found a woman so, that woman never escapes from him, no matter where she travels. Come now—I know where this girl comes from. We've after her—you would you others. We'll take her back with us. She must travel north this day."

A sudden note of strength came into the voice of John Palmer; his head rose, his face hardened. "Where has been the señor, Señor Capitan?" he said, imperiously. "You ride as officers of the government of the Republic of Mexico. With what warrant do you pick up a lady on the road? If we were criminals, if we were Apaches, law breakers, fugitives—that would be different. But, by God, if this woman be guilty of any crime we do not know it!"

The captain of the Rurales laid back his head and uttered a roar of laughter, in which all his men joined. They felt perfectly safe; were accustomed to their way wherever they rode. "Crime!" he exclaimed at length. "A crime? Why, it is a crime that one so fair of face should be hid from view! Come now, we have gone far enough and waited long enough. Unbuckle your rifle scabbards and drop them. Loose your pistol belts! If you've any money with you, you had better let us know. If you will be peaceable, we'll take the girl and let you go. If you make trouble——" A sign, a gesture, told the rest.

Palmer turned the head of his horse just a little, his right hand away from the man who spoke. He tried to get humility in his voice. "But, Señor Capitan," said he, "we have not yet reached the market place." And what his own men heard as he jerked his face aside was, "Get ready!"

"What was that!" exclaimed the leader, pausing to roll a cigaret. "What was that you said—that was not in our language!"

"You must pardon me," said John Palmer, suavely. "A word or two of English I learned from the Americanos at the mine. I asked my men if they had any silver among them. I ask your pardon."

All this time John Palmer's horse was being turned slowly, a little bit more and more to the right. A sudden tenseness came into the air. By some fatality the leader of the Rurales did not yet act; went on talking.

"I have come for this señorita," said he, at length. "I have ridden far. It is of concern to you to do as I tell you. The girl we take with us, that's sure. For you—what do you wish? Unbuckle your weapons, I tell you, and let them drop!"

Still John Palmer's hand remained lightly poised; he made no move. His voice tried to shuffle.

"These weapons are worth so much, Señor Capitan! We need them as much—we can never buy others to replace them. Surely the Señor Capitan is only irritated with us, his poor friends."

"I am not irritated—I do not trouble with such as you. You may, perhaps, live, if you don't irritate me or my men. The Rurales never argue."

In cool insolence he went on with the manufacture of his cigaret, his men lolling securely in their saddles, grouped loosely around him, back of him. Perhaps they all had concluded that the girl had bribed these natives to ride along with them.

But Luisa knew the truth. She knew the issue here could not be avoided. Suddenly her voice sounded high and clear.

"Say to him," she cried, as though she could not condescend to speak to the leader himself, "that I will go with him! You must not follow, any of you. Leave me! It is for me alone! Adios! Adios!"

The smart face of the leader turned to her with a leering smile. "So, then, the lady gives you good advice, gentlemen! She returns with us! They always do when the general sends! Yes, she returns with us!"

But it was not then that the four Americans acted their duty in those circumstances. Before the side swing of Hallock's body could have been sustained as he reached for his revolver, the head of John Palmer rose almost in the face of the partisan leader. The latter fell, shot dead in his saddle.

Then a group of plunging horses, the bright sunlight, and a quick shout of pain, pungent smoke.

FROM the first instant all the Americans had known they must fire; whereas the fleeing bandits, outlaws, whoever they were—and that was hard to say in Mexico at the day and place—had felt so safe and sure that they were not keyed up to the actual break which every one of the men before them knew must come. This gave the Americans that fraction of a second of advantage in time which makes the difference between life and death in an affair such as this.

The horse of the fallen leader plunged back against that of the man next to him, forcing his hand even as he reached for his carbine butt. That was his doom. A second shot of Palmer's heavy automatic caught him through the neck, and the shock of the heavy Blunt ball dispatched him before he ever raised his hand at all.

By now the weapons of the other Americans were working; those of the Rurales as well. Of the latter it could not be said that they lacked courage or skill at arms, for they had seen other days in bandit warfare and the smell of smoke was not new to them. But the better condition and higher spirit of their animals made now a handicap. Their horses reared and plunged, needed attention; into them came the fire of the four Americans, each a master of his weapon.

Hallock had managed to jerk out from the saddle scabbard the short, high-powered rifle which he carried. The stock came to his face by instinct, the finger lever dropped once, twice, three times. Each man struck at this short range with the soft nosed bullet was nearly cut in two by the impact. Sibley and Allison were firing with automatic pistols. What seemed to require minutes really asked only for instants. Plan or purpose could not exist. Sibley saw a man, crowded to one side, try to catch the rein of Luisa's horse. He made a quick flirt and snap shot of his automatic and cut him down. Yet another tried, and Hallock killed him with a fourth shot of the carbine. Three to one, the Rurales were beaten before they ever got into action.

Suddenly one of them threw up a hand. "Have done! It is over! We surrender!"

Palmer's revolver remained half dropped, at forty-five degrees in the air above his

Cleans them and keeps them clean

This tooth paste cleans thoroughly and causes your mouth glands to keep your teeth clean

Temporary cleaning is not enough to keep your teeth safe.

The acids of decay can be kept from your teeth only by a constant heavy flow of fluids from the mouth glands.

Pebeco makes mouth glands that have slowed down, flow more freely. As soon as it enters the mouth it starts the glands working—sending a full heavy flow of fluids in between the teeth and all about the mouth—neutralizing the acids and washing them away.

Pebeco cleans the teeth thoroughly to start with and helps the glands keep them clean for the rest of the 24 hours.

The Queen of Sheba studied the Sun as well as the Moon—

SOLOMON was no callow young man to be dazzled easily by the first maid that came along. He knew all the tricks of love. He understood the art of woman's beauty.

The Queen of Sheba had to know more than merely the tricks of moonlight to win so worldly-wise a king. She had to know how to be glamorous in the daytime.

She lived thousands of years ago, but today most women haven't learned what she knew. They are lovely in the kindly lamplight of evening—but in the daytime they use the same face powder and rouge, and the sun's harsh rays make their faces haggard, with sharp splotches of red.

Such women do not realize the necessity for real daylight shades of face powder. If they did, they would know about Peaches-and-Cream and Peaches, the two new shades of Bourjois JAVA Face Powder.

Peaches-and-Cream is a tan-and-rose out-of-doors shade, radiant and soft.... Peaches is a delicate tan with the faintest touch of pink, giving the glowing effect of wind and sun.

Bourjois has been making JAVA Face Powder for 50 years. It took years of scientific experiment to develop Peaches-and-Cream and Peaches. For the first time in the history of face powder manufacture such shades can be offered to the women of America with the assurance that they have passed every test of the sun's harsh rays.

Peaches-and-Cream and Peaches are on sale at all good drug stores. If you are unable to secure them at your druggist, mail the coupon for a sample.

"MOTHER OF GOLD"

shoulder. Now, for the first time, he dared look around. Silsby sat swaying in his saddle, his hand against his side.

"I wish," said he; "I think—I think—"

But what was on his mind to say they never knew. He tried to swing out of the saddle, his foot slipped and he fell, stumbling forward, and gently lay down in the dust to die.

The sight of that enraged Hallock. He fired once more into the bunched figures ahead of him, would have kept on firing so long as one remained but that the hammer of his weapon snapped again and again above an empty magazine. Palmer called out to him, swung his horse straight toward the few remaining members of the posse of Rurales. They all held up their hands, more or less indifferently, in truth, for the sight of a dead man or so was nothing new to them. They expected nothing but death.

"Look to Silsby, Allison!" cried out Palmer. "Come here, Hallock! We'll watch these men. Don't shoot again!"

Allison dismounted, put his hand under the body of his friend. Under his fingers he felt between the folds the crinkle of paper, as though of some letter resting in an inner pocket. It was a letter—the one Silsby's sweetheart had written to him. He had read it almost every night since then. Allison carried him to the shade of a tree at one side of the road, laid him down, pulled his hat across his eyes, and went back to join the others. He motioned to Luisa to ride a little way apart.

"What shall we do with these men?" demanded Allison. "Silsby's gone!"

"We ought to kill the last of them!" shrilled Hallock. "That boy was my friend. If we let these people go they'll follow us, sure as hell."

"Let me be!"

By this time he had refilled the magazine of his rifle, and perhaps, enraged as he was, he would have shot down the last of the Rurales as they stood.

But Palmer raised his hand. "Let me talk!" said he. "Yes, they may follow us. But if we send them back thoroughly cowed that may be better than if we killed them. Maybe they'll tell others to let us alone.

"Now, listen to me, you dogs!" he called out in their own tongue to the huddled group. "We told you we were innocent people, guilty of no crime, just passing through the country. You began this thing. Your blood be on your own heads.

"Oh, we shall spare you—so that you can carry back the news. You have met no innocent pelados here, you dogs, but Zapatistas, friends and allies of that Pancho Villa whom you say you represent. You have made enemies of us, and you have made him your enemy. Go back, now then, and report to him. See what he says to you. Make one move and we'll kill the last of you. Go back to the general—perhaps he will do the same service to you all!

"Yes, you listen to me? Go tell the general that you found four stupid travelers, that you killed one of them and had eight of your own men killed. Tell the jefe político in the nearest town that you have met patriotas, savage men, whom you had better left alone. The crosses will show where we fought you. Tell them that if we are followed there will be more crosses should we meet.

"Now, you ruffians, dig graves for your own people! We brought shovels for such as you!"

He motioned to Hallock, who loosened a pair of long handled shovels from the pack, under its strings of onions and egg encasements. By good fortune, no travelers had come upon the spot from either direction, because at this hour of the day most of them were resting after the noonday meal. Palmer obliged his prisoners to loosen their pistol belts, to leave their carbines at their saddles. Sullen, surprised that they were left to live, perhaps supposing that they would fill the graves they were now digging, the beaten Rurales went to work under their new master.

And so now, after a little time, there were new crosses of lashed sticks erected by the side of the old Spanish road, marking so many more shallow graves. Upon the opposite side of the road they laid poor Silsby, wrapped in his blanket, with everything done for him which now might be done by his friends.

"Now go, you people!" commanded the hard voice of John Palmer, when this work had been finished. "Go tell the general you didn't bring the woman, and that no man ever will."

He stood, weapon in hand, commanding the weaponless men to mount again and turn back on their trail; watched them until they were out of sight. They rode humbly enough, not unused, perhaps, to the misadventures of guerrilla warfare.

WHEN their dust cloud had turned the corner Palmer had done with inaction. "Quick, now!" said he. "Get up, all of you. We've got to ride. They know who we are now. We'll have to make a run for it."

What remained for them to do at this place required but a moment longer. They threw the discarded weapons of the Rurales into the thicket alongside the road, saving only a belt or two of ammunition which they might need. The horses they tied bridle to bridle, cast bridles over saddle pommels, and left them standing huddled near the bloody spot in the road. A few moments and their own dust cloud was lessening down the highway. The sun spoke of peace once more. Birds, gently singing, perched nearby.

The two mules, with loads of wood and the bulkiest of camp equipage, fell far behind and were abandoned. "We can't wait for anything," said Palmer. "Come on down the road. Maybe we can make it through before it is too late."

All the time his eye was scanning eagerly the landscape on either side the highway. At length he drew rein, threw up a hand. "Wait!" he called, "here's where we're going to leave the road."

He showed them now, spreading out his arms wide to serve as sighting lines, the point which he had kept in mind as marking the place of departure from the old Spanish road and their definite plunge into the wilderness that lay below it.

"Come on, now; we'll see if you're riders."

A little distance from the rocky set-off where he really intended to leave the trail Palmer began to back his horse, setting him back a few feet at a time steadily, seeing that he did not swerve, the others following as best they could. Surely the tracks left in the dust of the old road must have been puzzling to any one who tried to follow them out, even had there been suspicion of their actual departure from the road.

Palmer at length whirled and pushed up the rocky slope which lay upon the southern edge of the road. Always he kept to the hard going, drew off to the right, following across the slide rock of a bald hill that lay there. There was no definite or easy trail left by the animals. He trusted to their own speed to throw off the track any pursuer, who must lose time in puzzling out their trail, if indeed it could be followed at all by the average man.

At the end of an hour Palmer once more pulled up his horse, facing to the southward. "Yonder is our country," said he. "One ridge and one mountain after another. That's the Orizaba wilderness, all volcanic, on ahead. The Valley of La Luz is what we must find."

Tired, dusty, worn, haggard from the scenes which they had passed through but now, the little party was grouped around the leader. The cheeks of Luisa still were wet with tears, the wrinkled face of old Serafina more than usually drawn, as though she, too, would have wept had not her eyes long been dry.

"What have you said, Señor Juan?" demanded the Spanish girl. "What is it that we are to see on ahead there?"

The old man turned to her, smiling in his gentle way. "Be not alarmed, my sister," said he. "You have seen us care for you? So far as we are able, to the last of us now remaining, we still will care for you and hold you safe. You understand?"

"I understand, Señor Juan! But I am afraid. I am frightened. You are but three."

John Palmer turned his face to his friends. "We are but the remaining three today," said he.

They spurred on, following at an angle the steep slope of the long mountain side. Save for an occasional stone clinking under hoof, there was no sound. They had left the last touch or trace of civilization behind them and were threading into the lower half-tropic wilderness, below the shoulder of Orizaba. Around them lay the dead land which Orizaba herself had created—green now and sprinkled with many flowers; a land of many secrets.

Fulfilling the Great Obligation of Motion Pictures/

Warner Bros. for the Season 1923-24

are making 18 new pictures which set a higher standard of screen achievement. These pictures deal with the fundamentals of human life. They appeal to the universal human heart.

For the production of these greater pictures, Warner Bros. have engaged additional actors and screen directors of international fame.

See all of these new screen classics. They will grip —will hold you—will lure you again and again. You will say that every one is a masterpiece. You will say that NOW the screen is coming into its own. Here are the first:

Three Great Human Dramas of the 18 New Warner "Classics of the Screen"

The Gold Diggers

Definition—"'A Gold Digger' is a woman who extracts money from her male friends without making adequate returns."

Warner Bros. screen classic "The Gold Diggers," starring Hope Hampton, Louise Fazenda and Windham Standing, is based upon the BELASCO production of the comedy by Avery Hopwood. A spectacular picture—full of surprises and thrills.

Little Johnny Jones

A brilliant and fast-moving drama of the turf—the story of an American jockey who is out to win the Derby and a sweetheart at the same time. "Little Johnny Jones," starring Johnny Hines, is the turf classic.

The Printer's Devil

This Screen Classic starring Wesley Barry, is a typical Barry story, with a few tears and many smiles. Wesley does everything his fans expect of him, from running the printing press to getting the editor out of jail and capturing the real crooks. A picture with an intensely human appeal.

Ask your favorite theatre when you may expect to see the new Warner Classics. Remember the name WARNER is always the guarantee of a picture worth your while going to see.

No other cook could get that same flavor in pancakes

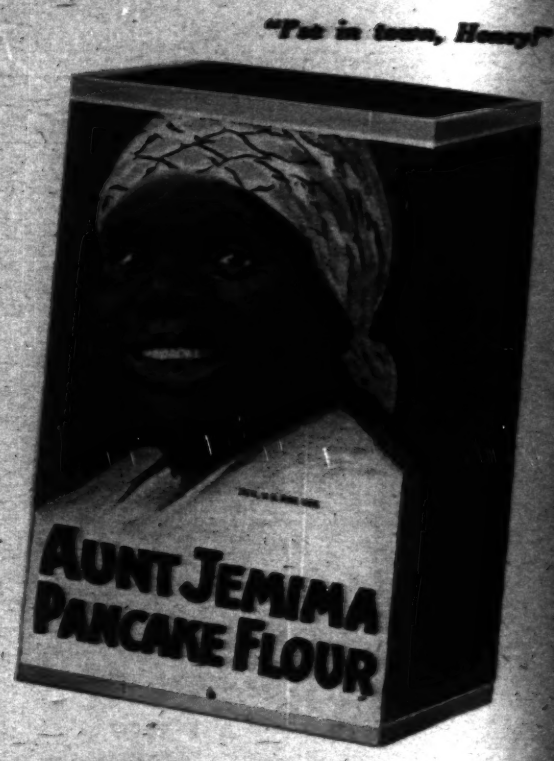
Now millions are getting it with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour —her recipe ready-mixed

The recipe that Aunt Jemima used in making those pancakes which became the "talk" of the old South, we use today in making Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour. But we have mixed FOR you all the choice ingredients she mixed by hand. Now you can make her pancakes in a minute, with no trouble at all.

"Pat in town, Honey!"



IN a land of good cooks; in the old-time South when every gentleman was happiest as host, and each mammy cook outdid herself to win her "massa's" favor—that's where Aunt Jemima first won fame.

Her pancakes! No other cook could equal them. All of Colonel Higbee's guests agreed on that.

Tender, wonderfully light, with a fine golden-brown color—well, some other cooks might come close to Aunt Jemima's pancakes on those essential points.

But to match her flavor—that was their despair. Something about her recipe—they never learned just what it was. And no one knows today except the millers of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour.

Why no one else can get that flavor

Even with the original recipe, they had to work months before they perfected the ready-mixed flour that made pancakes with the old-time Southern flavor.

For Aunt Jemima never used in her pancakes ordinary flour. She always had on hand a special kind, an exceptionally fine grade of wheat flour.

That same fine-quality wheat flour is used in Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour today: we mill it especially for this purpose.

And to it we add smaller quantities of other flours, just as Aunt Jemima did, to get that distinctive flavor. You can't get these flours in the stores today. They're ground in the Aunt Jemima Mills just for Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour.

Most important of all, the proportioning of these flours and the other ingredients of the recipe must be done just so, or the pancakes can't be like Aunt Jemima's.

That is why no other ready-mixed pancake flour or no pancakes that you can mix at home—work as you will—can have that same old-time Southern flavor.

Now you can have them in a minute

Have some Aunt Jemima Pancakes tomorrow morning. See for yourself why millions prefer them.

All you do is mix water (or milk) with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour—your batter is ready for the griddle. Easy! It's done in no time. And your pancakes are always perfect this way—light, tender, healthful, with a flavor that you'll agree is wonderfully delicious.

Get a package of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour from your grocer now.

Or use this coupon and we will send you a trial package so you and your family can actually compare Aunt Jemima Pancakes with the kind you've been having. Compare them for flavor, texture, color, ease of making—on every point. We're confident you'll all vote for good old Aunt Jemima Pancakes. Accept the special offer at the right. Rough, red hands—

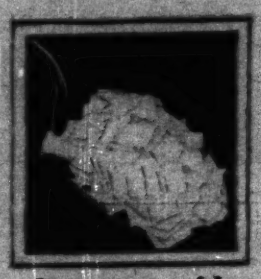
You can rid them for good of that in-the-dishpan look



Just one teaspoonful to a dishpan!

"Sometimes I was ashamed of my hands," she wrote, "they were so rough and red.

"It was next to impossible to make them look even clean—let alone well-groomed. They just seemed to shout out to everyone that I'd been washing dishes.

"But now that I am using Lux for washing dishes, I don't have to worry about my hands any more—they're as soft and nice as if I didn't do my own work."

Lux for washing dishes. It is bringing relief to women everywhere just in this same way. They don't have to worry about their hands any more. Lux is as "soft" on their hands, as easy on them, as it is on dainty fabrics.

It wouldn't occur to you to wash your hands with strong soap—yet for an hour and a half every day they are in harsh soap suds—washing dishes. An hour and a half—think of it!

Strong soap dries—fairly burns out—the important beautifying oils that keep your skin soft and supple. It inflames that chiffon-thin outer layer of your skin, making your hands red — not the passing redness such as hot water causes—but the permanent coarseness that is so distasteful to you. Naturally, if you use such soap for washing dishes your hands get that unsightly in-the-dishpan look.

Lux has no ingredient in it that could dry the essential oils—nothing to make the hands rough and red. It is as easy on your skin as fine toilet soap.

Keep a package handy on your kitchen shelf. Don't let dishwashing dry the beautifying oils of your hands. Wash your dishes with Lux. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Why Have Gray Hair or Dandruff?

Modern Science Says Neither is Necessary

Gray hair handicaps one socially and in business. Moreover modern metaphysical discoveries teach us that thoughts have a harmful effect upon the body, and, since gray hair makes us think of old age, we actually become old, despondent and discouraged. Wake up! Join the thousands who have banished gray hair and are defying old age and decay! Be youthful not only in appearance but in fact.

Thousands of men and women today are freed from the blight of gray hair by NOURISHINE—a genuine tonic which is positively not a dye. It is absolutely harmless and cannot cause the hair to become brittle, to deaden or to split. You do not have to state the color of your hair when purchasing, since the ONE LIQUID RESTORES TO YOUR ORIGINAL COLOR whether it be black, brown or blond. Nourishine restores the color evenly, naturally—NO STREAKS. You can easily apply it in your own home. You do not wet the hair all over but simply rub in vigorously at the roots, since Nourishine restores the coloring element through the roots, thus reproducing nature's process.

Nourishine cleanses the scalp, banishes dandruff and promotes the growth of the hair. Thousands who have no trace of gray hair use Nourishine for this purpose only. Remember Nourishine is a genuine tonic and is not a dye. If Nourishine did nothing else but remove dandruff it would remain a remarkable testimonial to the achievement of modern science. It stops itching and tones up the hair and scalp generally. For dandruff alone it is worth many times the price asked.

No matter what you have tried—try Nourishine today. Price $1.25 per bottle, leading drug and department stores, including Buck & Rayner, Hensel Cut Rate Drug Co., MacLean Drug Co., Walgreen Co., and leading dealers in cities surrounding Chicago.

POSITIVELY NOT A DYE

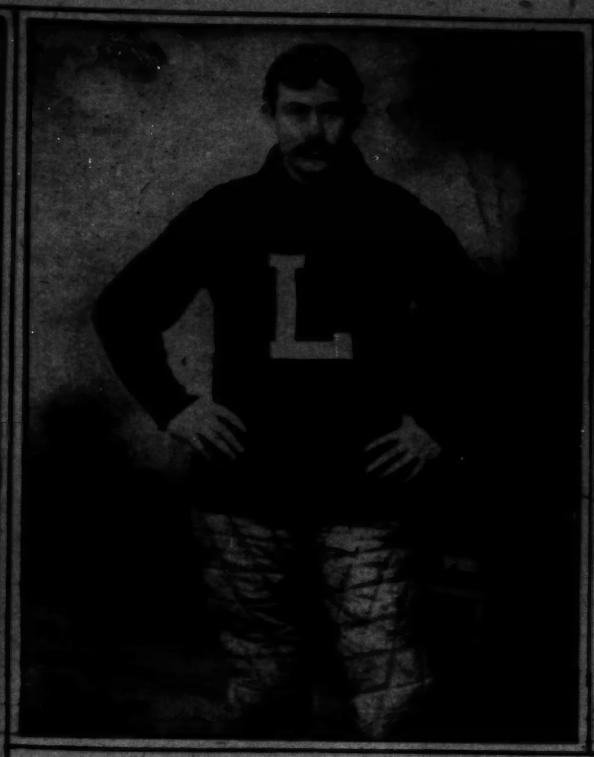
Absolutely Harmless—Wonderfully Beneficial—Pleasant to Use

NOURISHINE MFG. CO., 701 O. T. Johnson Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN——

CLARE BRIGGS was a schoolboy down in Dixon, Ill? His "Days of Real Sport," "When a Feller Needs a Friend," and other cartoons have been popular with Tribune readers for years. Time hasn't changed Clare's boyhood face, his friends will observe by this picture.

(Photograph from Mrs. E. C. Mitenbuler, 7415 Kingston Ave.)



FIELDING H. YOST helped make 1896 one of the greatest football seasons in the history of Lafayette college of Easton, Pa.? He was a tackle. Note the mustache—gridiron heroes wore 'em in those days. Since 1898 "Hurry-Up" Yost has been turning out great football teams at the University of Michigan. All good Ann Arbor men will swear he's the world's greatest football coach.

(Photograph from E. E. Enos, 6816 Perry Avenue.)

WILL H. HAYS, czar of the movie world, was this 8 months old baby in Sullivan, Ind.? He broke into politics there as soon as he was old enough to vote. He stayed at it till he became Republican national committeeman, and then postmaster general in the Harding cabinet. He quit the cabinet to clean up the film world when repeated scandals threatened the cinema industry.

IF YOU have any baby or childhood pictures of well known people, send them in. We'll pay $5 apiece for those we use. In case you wish the picture returned, you must send self-addressed, stamped envelope.

CORNS?

Safe relief in one minute

For quick, lasting relief from corns, there is nothing like Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads. They stop the pain in one minute by removing the cause—friction and pressure.

Zino-pads are thin, safe, antiseptic, healing, waterproof and cannot produce infection or any bad after effects. No strong acid or caustic that "burns" out the corn. Three different sizes—one for corns, one for callouses, one for bunions. Fine for blisters and tender spots caused by new shoes.

This special shape stops the pain of bunions

Get a box today at your druggist's or shoe dealer's. Cost but a trifle

Write for free sample of Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads and his booklet, "The Foot and Their Care" Address the Scholl Mfg. Co., Dept. H, 213 W. Schiller St., Chicago.

This one quickly and safely removes callouses

Put one on—the pain is gone!

The SOCIETY WOMAN contrives it

Her skin smooth - supple - young years longer than other women's

"A woman's complexion should be very nearly perfect. It must be smooth, supple and transparently fresh and it must never betray fatigue or the effects of weather." ¶ This, if it were written, would be the society woman's code. ¶ As proof of it, there is scarcely a woman of prominent social position whose age you can guess by lines or any dullness of skin. ¶ That does not mean she does not suffer or take part in whatever sports are in season. She is a zealous sportswoman by day and appears in the evening with delicate skin unmarred.

HER FACE SHOWS NEITHER AGE NOR FATIGUE. WHAT IS HER SECRET?

How do they accomplish it—Two essentials of skin loveliness

THERE are two fundamental needs of the skin that the society woman knows cannot be neglected without disaster—regular cleansing in the particular way that cannot possibly tighten or coarsen the skin—and careful protection and freshening for all day-time and evening appearances.

Long before even the society woman considered sports seriously, Pond's knew these two essentials, and to meet them, perfected two entirely different creams, which used together form the modern cure for woman's skin.

Pond's Cold Cream of a special lightness and fineness, not only cleanses but refines the skin's essential suppleness—Pond's Vanishing Cream, not only gives unfailing protection, but in addition beautifies the skin instantly, making it marvelously fresh and smooth.

With this method your complexion need never be roughened or reddened by exposure, nor lined or coarsened through neglect. Begin today to use Pond's Two Creams regularly to give your skin that well-cared-for look and smooth loveliness that distinguish the women who must be beautiful in spite of their active social life. Buy both creams today. The Pond's Extract Company.

Try this method—yourself

Do this tonight. With the finger tips, or a bit of moistened cotton, apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. Its fine oil is able to penetrate every pore. Let it stay on a minute—now wipe it off with a soft cloth. The black that comes off shows you how carefully this cream cleanses. Do this twice. Your skin looks fresh and is beautifully supple again.

Then in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream very evenly—just enough for your face to absorb. How velvety your face feels. The powder is even and smooth over this flawless base. Nothing can coarsen its fine texture.

EVERY SKIN NEEDS THESE TWO CREAMS. POND'S TWO CREAMS USED BY THE WOMEN WHO TAX THEIR SKIN MOST AND KEEP THEIR FACES LOVELIEST
